BALLOT RECOUNT TO BE PUT UP TO CIRCUIT ATTORNEY

Returns in Precinct 18 of Ward 21 Show Extreme Discrepancies, Election Board Reports.

CHECK WILL GO ON TOMORROW

Balloting on Candidates and Propositions Gone Over —Bond Issues to Be Taken Up Next.

Returns by officials of the eighteenth precinct of the Twenty-first Ward of the vote in the Nov. 8 general election will be certified to Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller for his consideration, because of extreme discrepancies disclosed by a recount by the Election Board, it was announced yesterday by William H. Woodward, chairman, and Claxton E. Allen, a member of the board.

Woodward and Allen said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that, in their opinion, the precinct returns indicated there had been fraud, unless some other explanation for the irregularity not now apparent was developed.

The recount was made yesterday of the ballots for public offices. It showed that, without exception, the Democratic nominees were credited with from 23 to 34 votes more by the precinct returns than shown in the recount, while the Republican nominees were credited with from 19 to 31 fewer votes.

There was no close uniformity in the precinct returns, except in the matter of excess or deficiency of votes in contrast with the findings of the recount. The total vote on the candidates' ballot was 353, as shown by the precinct returns, and 349, as shown by the recount, on the basis of the vote for candidates for Circuit Judgeships.

Although the Socialist nominees for United States Senator and State Superintendent of Schools were shown to have received a single vote each, in the recount, the precinct returns did not credit them with any votes.

Discrepancies on Propositions.

A recount of the ballot on the nine State propositions in this precinct was made by the board Friday, showing there were from three to 120 more votes credited in favor of seven propositions by the precinct returns than were found in the recount, and from eight to 69 fewer votes against the items credited in the returns than shown in the recount. In one instance the precinct credited fewer affirmative votes and more negative votes to a proposition than it actually received and in another it credited too many on both sides.

By items, the discrepancies follow: No. 1, yes, 71 too many; no, eight to few; No. 2, yes, 109 too many; no, 67 too few; No. 3, yes, 106 too many; no, 53 too few; No. 4, yes, 56 too many; no, 16 too few; No. 5, yes, 120 too many; no, 69 too few; No. 6, yes, 107 too many; no 54 too few; No. 7, yes, three too many; no, 31 too many; No. 8, yes, five too few; no, 69 too many; No. 9, yes, 26 too many; no, 58 too few.

Further Check Tomorrow.

The findings of the recount on the proposition ballot resulted in the order for the recount on the candidates' ballot and the city bond issue ballot. The latter check will be made tomorrow.

This precinct is in the ward represented in the Democratic City Committee by Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the committte. The polling place was at 4114W Natural Bridge avenue.

Officials who served in this precinct in the recent election, as shown by board records, were: Glennon Larkin, 3611 Paris avenue, and Frank Reader, 4141 Natural Bridge avenue, Democratic judges; F. B. Rehmund, 4186 Sacramento avenue, and M. C. Kippler, 4017 Ashland avenue, Republican judges; Elizabeth Barry, 4039 Labadie avenue, Democratic clerk, and Alvera Hoffeer, 4201 Sacramento street, Republican clerk.

The recounts began Friday in eight precincts, where differences were found in routine clerical inspection as between the number of votes shown in precinct returns and the number of voters shown by the poll books to have participated in the election.

Recounts for two of the precincts, completed yesterday, showed only minor discrepancies of one to 16 votes, but mostly not more than six, for the votes of candidates on both major tickets. In the twenty-fourth precinct of the Seventeenth Ward the discrepancy in each instance consisted of crediting candidates of both parties with a few

U. S. ORDERS 3 BATTLESHIPS AT COST OF $150,000,000

Armament and Ammunition for 35,000-Ton Vessels Will Be $75,000,000 More—World's Strongest Air Force Planned.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The navy gave new impetus to the administration's armament program today with orders for the construction of three 35,000-ton battleships at an expected cost of $150,000,000.

Officials said armament and ammunition outlays not included in the construction costs would raise the total expenditure for the three dreadnaughts to $225,000,000.

Beginning of work on a fourth battleship was delayed pending further study of the bid received, which was said to be considered high by naval experts.

Secretary Swanson awarded contracts for the construction of two ships by private shipbuilders at Newport News, Va., and Quincy, Mass. The third ship will be built in the Norfolk (Va.) Navy Yard.

Two other battleships now are under construction in Government yards in Philadelphia and New York. The navy also announced today that the 10,000-ton cruiser Wichita, built at Philadelphia, had been finished and was being fitted out to join the fleet. Capt. Thaddeus A. Thomson Jr., naval attache at Rome, was summoned home to take command.

Big Air Force to Be Built.

Simultaneously, from an influential house member came the prediction that the greatly-increased air force proposed for the army would be ready within four years. The new battleships will not be ready to join the fleet for at least five years.

Representative Snyder (Dem.), Pennsylvania, chairman of the military appropriations sub-committee, asserted after conferences with War Department officials that President Roosevelt's expanded national defense program would provide the world's strongest air force by 1942.

Snyder said his committee would begin hearings next month on a War Department appropriations bill about $100,000,000 larger than this year's. Regardless of additions expected to be made later, such an increase would indicate a War Department budget of nearly $600,000,000 for the fiscal year starting June 30, 1939, a peacetime record. The bulk of the additional appropriation was expected to be for expansion of the army air force, which Louis Johnson, Assistant Secretary of War in charge of the program, has said must be "doubled, trebled or even quadrupled."

Cost of Battleships Rises.

The Navy scaled down bids submitted Nov. 2 by more than $2,500,000 before awarding the battleship contracts, but even with this reduction the vessels appear likely to cost more than the estimate of $70,000,000 each given Congress this year.

Battleship No. 57, to be built at Norfolk, will be named the Alabama.

Battleship No. 58, to be named the Indiana, will be built by the Newport News Shipbuilding & Drydock Co., at its bid price of $49,540,000, which does not include the main propelling machinery, which the Government furnishes. To this also must be added $26,000,000, the calculated cost of armament, guns and ammunition which the Navy provides.

Battleship No. 59, to be named the Massachusetts, will be built by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation at Quincy, Mass., at its bid price of $49,815,000, to which another $26,000,000 also must be added for armament, guns and ammunition. The two ships, built under private contract, must be finished and delivered to the Navy in 52 and 55 months, respectively, after which they will go through long shakedown and testing periods.

Battleship No. 60, not yet allotted, will be named the South Dakota.

CLUB WON'T BACK DUCHESS SO DUKE OF ATHOLL RESIGNS

In Huff, He Tells Members She'll Win Commons Seat as an Independent.

By the Associated Press.

PERTH, Scotland, Nov. 19.—The Duke of Atholl resigned as president and member of a club of his wife's constituents today when it refused to renominate her for a sixth term in the House of Commons.

With the Duke presiding, the Kinross and West Perth Unionist Association voted 173 to 167 to instruct its council to name a candidate "who will support the Prime Minister's policy of peaceful understanding in Europe."

The outspoken Duchess of Atholl, friendly to Government Spain and opposed to Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign policy, has refused to follow the conservative whip in Commons.

Bristling at the vote, her husband, a soldierly Scot, immediately resigned, and declared the Duchess would run as an independent. "And she's bound to be elected," he snapped.

WIFE OF DENTIST HANGS SELF IN HOME

Body of Mrs. A. V. Sanders Is Found by Her Daughter.

The body of Mrs. Helen Sanders, 42 years old, wife of Dr. A. Vernette Sanders, dentist with offices in the University Club Building, was found hanging yesterday in their third-floor apartment at 3664 Washington boulevard. Police said she apparently had committed suicide.

The Sanders' 18-year-old daughter, Joanne, found the body, fully clothed except for shoes, at 2 p. m. on returning to the apartment after an absence of about an hour. It was hanging by sheets, torn in strips, from the foot of a folding door-bed, which was folded up.

No notes were found and neither Dr. Sanders nor the daughter were able to ascribe a motive for the act. The daughter said her mother had been cheerful earlier in the day.

NAZIS SAID TO HAVE DRIVEN 30 JEWS OVER CZECH BORDER

Military Patrol Reported to Have Threatened to Shoot Refugees If They Return.

By the Associated Press.

PRAGUE, Nov. 19.—A German military patrol near Taus yesterday drove a group of 30 Jewish men across the new German-Czechoslovak demarcation line into Czechoslovak territory with threats they would be shot if they returned.

The refugees were stopped at the Taus railway station by the Czechoslovak gendarmerie. They will remain in the custody of the Taus police over the week-end, after which it was believed they might be set free and not turned back to Germany.

The Jews, including several physicians and landowners, begged tearfully not to be sent back to death.

BODY OF ARIZONA BOY, 5, LOST SINCE NOV. 10, FOUND

Child Apparently Died of Exposure Two Days After Wandering From Camp.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Nov. 19.—The body of 5-year-old Jerry Hays, of Bisbee, was found today on a mountainside three miles above his parents' hunting camp, from where he wandered away Nov. 10.

The child apparently died of exposure within two days after he became lost.

The body was found by two forest service workers. Nearly 1000 searchers had tramped for eight days through Rucker Canyon, 50 miles north of here in the Chiricahua Mountains.

WOMAN'S $25,000 CLAIM ON POLLOCK ESTATE SETTLED

Action Is Shown by Dismissal of Suit of Mrs. Louise Hamilton on Promissory Note.

TERMS ARE NOT MADE PUBLIC

Validity of Instrument Executed by Late Federal Judge Was Previously Upheld.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OLATHE, Kan., Nov. 19.—Mrs. Louise M. Hamilton's suit to collect a $25,000 claim and interest from the estate of the late United States Judge John C. Pollock has been settled out of court, it was shown by court records today.

Mrs. Hamilton, keeper of a rooming house in Kansas City, Kan., based her claim on a promissory note which she declared that Judge Pollock gave her Nov. 25, 1936, two months before his death, because of an earlier romantic attachment between them. Probate Judge Bert E. Rogers of Olathe, in a ruling last May, declared the note valid, and Mrs. Beulah B. Pollock, the Judge's widow, appealed from that decision to the District Court.

Notice of dismissal of Mrs. Pollock's appeal, filed yesterday, indicated the fact of a settlement out out court, but not the terms. If funds of the estate were paid to Mrs. Hamilton or someone representing her, that fact would be likely to appear later in the Probate Court records, Judge Rogers said.

"For Value Received."

The note, introduced as the sole evidence of Mrs. Hamilton's claim, bore a signature resembling that affixed by Judge Pollock to official documents of record. Its wording was:

> Three years after date, for value received, I promise to pay to Louise M. Hamilton at Kansas City, Kan., the sum of $25,000 (twenty-five thousand and no-100) with interest from date until paid at the rate of 6 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually.

Mrs. Hamilton told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the "value received" was her abandonment of a claim she had made on Judge Pollock, alleging breach of promise to marry; also the surrender of letters relating to marriage, and one mentioning personal expectations in connection with an important case in Judge Pollock's court.

Tells of Friendship.

Mrs. Hamilton said she met Judge Pollock, then a widower, on a train near Los Angeles in 1916, and that when their acquaintance was renewed in Kansas City in 1923, they became engaged to marry. She went to Los Angeles, she said, and received a letter there from Judge Pollock, telling of his expectations in connection with a case in his court, and stating that he anticipated settling $100,000 on her and building her a $50,000 house.

Later, she said, an emissary of Judge Pollock asked her for this letter, but she refused to surrender it, and kept it until she received the $25,000 note. She said Judge Pollock's second marriage, in Los Angeles in 1924, came as a surprise to her. She told also of losing $2000 in an apartment house investment in Los Angeles, made on the judge's advice.

She returned to Kansas City and got a job as file clerk with the Federal Reserve Life Insurance Co., a concern then in receivership in Judge Pollock's court. She said that after various communications with her, Judge Pollock gave her the promissory note in 1936.

Judge Pollock died Jan. 27, 1937, at the age of 79, after 34 years on the Federal bench, to which President Theodore Roosevelt appointed him in 1903. His judicial career was stormy, and he was criticised as favoring corporations and hampering enforcement of the liquor and slot machine laws. Gov. Clyde M. Reed, now Senator-elect, publicly attacked Judge Pollock in 1930, declaring that his court was "a stench in the nostrils of decent people."

One of the outstanding cases in his judicial career was the receivership of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railroad. In 1917 he appointed as receiver William T. Kemper, Kansas City banker, who died intestate last Jan. 19. Subsequently, in the face of opposition by English and Eastern investors, he permitted Kemper to reorganize the road.

Kemper sold the properties in 1928 to the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, making a huge profit. Six years later he was permitted to settle for slightly more than 10 cents on the dollar the claim of the Internal Revenue Bureau for $777,443.73 additional income taxes for 1927 and 1928 on his sale of Orient stock.

SEVENTH BODY FOUND IN WRECKED ARMY AIR BOMBER

Only One of Eight Still Alive After Plane, Flying Low Because of Storm, Crashes in Georgia.

ONE DIES AFTER TELLING ABOUT IT

Says Ship Hit "Rough Spot and Bounced"— Survivor Is Unconscious —Inquiry Started.

By the Associated Press.

LA GRANGE, Ga., Nov. 19.—Tossed in a rainstorm, an army bomber crashed in a Georgia forest last night killing seven flyers in one of the worst tragedies in the history of military aviation. An eighth was gravely injured.

The bomber, a new two-motored, mid-wing Douglas, was on a routine flight from Mitchel Field, N. Y., to Maxwell Field, Ala. So isolated was the spot where it crashed the news did not reach the outside world until today.

Maj. W. A. Maxwell, Maxwell Field operations manager who came here to investigate, said from what he was able to piece together from a crew member conscious until his death in a LaGrange Hospital, "bad weather was the only apparent explanation."

The crew member was Private Joseph J. Nanartowich.

"We were flying low to get under the ceiling," the soldier related. "It was raining. We hit a rough spot (apparently a downward air current) and bounced. Next thing I knew the plane was ploughing through the trees. No mechanical defects as far as I could tell."

One Officer Still Alive.

Brought to the hospital by a rescue crew over muddy roads and through a wooded slope was Second Lieut. John D. Madre, who was alive tonight, but unconscious.

The plane, the investigators said, apparently was going about 200 miles an hour when it crashed in the forest seven miles northeast of here. It cut a path 150 yards long through trees, some of them as thick as a man's body.

Four bodies were found within a few yards of the smoking debris, two others in the wreckage.

One of the plane's two motors was catapulted out of the woods, where the crash occurred, into a bordering cornfield.

The bodies of the victims were carried by stretcher to a lane that led to a highway two miles away. They were transported over a muddy road in a farm truck which the rescue crew had to push over the worst spots.

Search for Eighth Man.

Maj. Maxwell said Nanartowich told him there were seven aboard when the ship crashed, although her clearance papers showed eight aboard. On this information, Maj. Maxwell ordered the search for the eighth stopped at one time today. After a check showed none had left the plane, however, he ordered it resumed.

The bodies were so torn and charred only two of the dead besides Nanartowich were immediately identified. They were Second Lieutenant Robert Ross McKechnie of the Air Reserve, son of Mrs. Elizabeth McKechnie of Cleveland, and First Lieutenant James W. Stewart of the Army Medical Corps, son of Mrs. A. L. Stewart of East Orange, N. J., assigned to Randolph Field, Tex., and en route home.

Maxwell Field officers announced the names of the others and their nearest of kin and home towns as follows: Second Lieutenant Robert Kirkland Black; mother, Mrs. R. Black of Meridan, Ga.; Second Lieutenant Allen M. Howery, son of Lewis B. Howery of Russellville, Tenn.; Sergeant Harry T. Jones, of Hempsted, L. I.; and Corp. Galloway, assigned to Third Weather Squadron at Dallas. Initials were not available but a Corp. Jerry E. Galloway was reported on furlough from the squadron. The latter is the son of J. C. Galloway of Sulphur Springs, Tex.

Nanartowich is the son of Mrs. Ursula Nanartowich of Highland Falls, N. Y., and Madre the son of Mrs. Frank H. Rayhorn of Memphis, Tenn.

SHOOTING OF WITNESS AGAINST LONDE LAID TO LEAK IN PROTECTION PLANS

Londe at Police Headquarters

ISADORE LONDE

FORMER convict whose bombing trial is set for tomorrow, photographed yesterday at Police Headquarters where he was questioned about the attempted murder of Lee Baker, Negro witness for the State.

MAJ. LAMBERT ORDERS FULL INVESTIGATION

Man He Designates Is Not in Custody — Gangster Facing Bombing Trial Tomorrow, and Associates, Questioned.

A thorough investigation to determine how the supposedly closely guarded police secret of the hiding place of Lee Baker, Negro, who was to be the principal witness tomorrow at the bombing trial of Isadore Londe "leaked out" and reached the underworld, was ordered last night by Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, president of the Board of Police Commissioners.

Failure of police to provide adequate protection for Baker resulted in an attempt to murder him Friday night.

Maj. Lambert told reporters he would assume personal supervision of the investigation. By his instructions, the investigation is to be directed by Maj. Adolph G. Amrhein, Inspector of Police.

Lured from his hiding place on a Southeast Missouri cotton farm by two men who represented themselves as policemen, Baker was shot twice, in the head and neck, and left for head in a deserted clubhouse on a lonely St. Louis County road. He is at County Hospital, where he received a blood transfusion last night from a professional donor obtained by St. Louis police. Physicians expect him to recover, barring complications.

Identifies Photograph.

Baker told police he would be able and willing to identify his assailants, and from a selection of police photographs shown to him at the hospital he selected one as a picture of one of the men who shot him.

The man whose photograph he picked out is an associate of Sylvester (Babe) Baldwin, business agent of the bartenders' union, who resides, at times, in a resort across the road from the clubhouse where Baker was shot. Baldwin, taken into custody at the resort, where he was sleeping, is held for questioning but police have not been able to find his associate, the man whose picture Baker identified.

Police and the Circuit Attorney's office had sought to conceal the identity of Baker as the witness who said he saw Londe, former convict and notorious gangster, bomb the Howards cleaning shop at Jefferson and Franklin avenues last June 2, but somehow the information got out that he was in hiding on a farm about 20 miles southwest of Sikeston, near the village of Hunterville.

Officially Known to Three.

That information was supposed to be known officially to only three persons—Lieut. Thomas Dirrane, head of the police bombing squad; his associate, Detective Sergt. James Shelton, and Assistant Circuit Attorney Robert Y. Woodward, who was assigned to the Londe prosecution. However, Baker said it was known also to his aunt, a Miss Duncan, who lives at 1522 Goode avenue, and he "guessed" to some others.

Chief of Police John H. Glassco, who instructed Lieut. Dirrane to protect Baker, and Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller, who had asked police to provide protection for the witness, told Post-Dispatch reporters not even they knew where the hiding place was.

Miller said he requested police to find a hideout for Baker and to be prepared to produce him when he was needed for the trial.

"I left the details entirely to the police," the Circuit Attorney added. "I knew he was down in the

WOMAN WHO LEFT BABY "ON IMPULSE" GETS GIFT OF $10

Anonymous Donor Offers Monthly Remittance If Police Will Set Her Free.

Mrs. Daisy Stewart, 23-year-old divorcee, who abandoned her infant son at the Greyhound Bus Terminal last Sunday, was $10 richer last night but police said they had no intention of granting the request of the anonymous donor that she be allowed to go free.

The writer of the note, mailed in St. Louis Friday night, offered to send at least $10 a month to Mrs. Stewart's mother at Cardwell, Mo., if the young woman was allowed to take her child and return home. The writer expressed the opinion that Mrs. Stewart was "a victim of circumstances in the middle of her trouble and got jittery and did the wrong thing."

After her arrest at Paragould, Ark., the mother told reporters she abandoned her 4-month-old son "on an impulse, hoping he would be placed in a good home." She said that when her mother and stepfather began preparations recently to move from Paragould to Cardwell, she felt she and the baby were no longer welcome.

A policeman gave the $10 to Mrs. Steward without comment. Her son, Wilbur Dean, is being cared for at City Hospital.

8 DROWN WHEN AUTO PLUNGES IN MINE HOLE

7 Crippled Boys, Man Driving Them to Clinic Perish in 30 Feet of Water.

By the Associated Press.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Nov. 19.—Seven crippled boys and a man driving them to a clinic for treatment drowned today when their automobile plunged into 30 feet of water in a mine cave-in.

The car plowed through a barrier of ash piles guarding the cave-in and sank in a hole 100 feet wide.

Floyd Brobleski, standing in a store, saw the car disappear and summoned a rescue crew.

The dead, all from the Wilkes-barre vicinity, are William McIntosh, 23 years old, the driver; Gerald Altavilla, 10; Vincent Wajers, 10; Frank Yankosky, 7; Francis Zionkoski, 11; John Pomionek, 9, his brother, Edward Pomionek, 7, and Lawrence Dress, 12.

Two of the children were infantile paralysis victims. The rest had been crippled since birth. The bodies were identified by Miss Miriam Velasco, executive secretary of the Wyoming Valley Crippled Children's Association, owners of the car.

A railroad crane on tracks beside the hole lifted the car to the surface. All the bodies were inside, the positions of some indicated the children had made a frantic struggle.

The cave-in resulted from a mine settling three months ago. A heavy rain yesterday softened the crumbling earth and deepened the water in the hole. The mine has not been used for three years.

NAZIS TELL CHURCH TO DROP USE OF NAME JEHOVAH

Protestants Ordered to Eliminate Also Mention of Hebrew Prophets in Old Testament.

JEWS FORCED TO GIVE UP PROPERTY

Instructed to Leave Nurnberg After Deeding 90 Pct. of Holdings to Labor Front.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 19.—Nazi Germany broadened its campaign to eradicate all possible traces of Jewry from national life today.

Protestant churches in some parts of the country were ordered to eliminate the word Jehovah, taken from the Hebrew for God and Old Testament names of Jewish prophets.

Friederich Werner, president of the Supreme Evangelical Church Council, who has authority only in North Germany, issued the order. His action is said to have followed threats in parts of Saxony that Christian churches permitting the use of such names would be set on fire.

Wealthy Jews in Nurnberg, according to advices received in Munich, were forced to sign over 90 per cent of their possessions to the German Labor Front, then were told to leave the city within three months.

A mass eviction of Jews was reported in Vienna. In Berlin thousands clamored in vain for permission to leave while officials debated ways and means of letting them go.

Lay teachers of religion in public schools asked that pastors and priests assume such instruction. They explained no German teacher could interest Nordic pupils in "Jew-written Psalms" and Old Testament history.

A police order was issued today forbidding Jews to use bridle paths.

Fourth Loan of Year.

These developments occurred in other spheres:

1. In Memel, a 1099-square-mile Lithuanian area detached from Germany by the Versailles treaty, the formation was announced of a uniformed German youth movement like the Hitler Youth in Germany.

2. The government announced its fourth loan this year "to meet liquidity in the money market." It was in the form of treasury bills amounting to 1,500,000,000 marks ($600,000,000), the same as the loan announced Oct. 1 "for continuing the tasks assumed by the Reich government."

3. The Defense Minister of the Union of South Africa, Oswald Pirow, conferred with Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, possibly about Germany's interest in the return of its colonies, lost after the war.

4. Newspapers devoted big headlines to reports of unrest and "revolt" by armed bands in the Czechoslovak province of Ruthenia. (The official news agency in Prague denied the existence of a revolt, but said Hungarian-Polish terrorists had killed six persons.)

5. Authenticated reports accumulated in offices of foreign missions regarding the killing of Jews in disturbances that followed the shooting to death of Ernst Vom Rath, secretary in the German Embassy in Paris, by a young Jew last week.

6. Seventy-five foreign newspapers were seized and their sale forbidden in Berlin. Apparently this was because they described anti-Jewish activities in Germany.

Many Jews Murdered.

Various envoys asked themselves how many German Jews had paid with their lives for the assassination. Cases on file in one diplomatic office included:

Hermann Fuerstenheim, director of a large firm in Chemnitz, was shot to death in the cellar of his home. His ashes were delivered later to his family. A medical doctor named Lewin, of Polzin, was shot when he opened his door in response to a knock.

A Duesseldorf restaurant owner named Markus was forced to watch the demolition of his property. Afterward he was killed.

At Kuestrin a Jewish attorney was shot to death.

Levy Still Uncollected.

On the material side, a levy of a billion marks ($400,000,000) has been decreed against the Jewish population. A week has passed since the announcement of the fine, but no intimation has been given about how it is to be collected.

Informed circles declared a behind-the-scenes controversy was going on to determine whether Jews should be expelled from Germany without funds or whether sufficient money should be left them collectively to make possible an ordered and regulated emigration in agreement with the International Refugee Committee established last July at a meeting of representatives of 31 countries in Evian-les-Bains, France. This indecision on policy has halted virtually all emigration.

Not knowing how much to exact from each Jew who wants to leave, the Finance Ministry, responsible for devising means of collection, has instructed its collectors to decline to issue certificates showing all the applicant's financial obligations to the State have been met.

15,000 JEWS FIRED FROM JOBS IN ITALY

Average of One to Each Family Ousted Under New Racial Laws.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Nov. 19.—Italy's new racial laws, expected to reduce most of Italy's Jewish breadwinners to the position of small tradesmen, are said to have resulted in discharge of 15,000 Jews from Government and private jobs in the past few days.

As the Government has estimated Italy's 57,425 Jews are in approximately 15,000 families, estimates of the newly unemployed Jews indicate an average of one in each family has lost a job.

Usually reliable sources reporting the action said it was in compliance with the decree of Nov. 10 excluding Jews from Government positions, restricting their businesses and professions and forbidding their marriage to Italian "Aryans."

Virtually the only occupations left open to Jews are operation of small businesses and manual labor and presumably the 15,000 now are looking for these types of work. The Italian press notes that few Jews are laborers.

Economic Distress Delayed.

Immediate economic distress of the displaced Jews was believed to have been averted by a provision that discharged Jews are to receive the usual legal indemnity of one month's salary for every year of service, and pensions where they have earned them.

Also seeking new jobs are an undetermined number of non-Jewish servants of the Jewish families that no longer may employ "Aryan" domestics.

Police in the last few days have visited at least, some of Rome's Jewish households to notify servants they must quit immediately.

Another phase of the racial laws, the marriage provisions, was reported to be the subject of negotiations by Father Pietro Tacchi-Venturi, Rector of Rome's Church of Jesus and a noted peacemaker between the Fascist Government and the Church.

Pope Writes a Protest.

Father Tacchi-Venturi was reported to be seeking a solution of the dispute over the bar on marriages between "Aryan" and "non-Aryan" Italians. Pope Pius has personally protested against the bar in letters to both Premier Mussolini and King Vittorio Emanuele.

Italian newspapers, while reporting Germany's reaction to foreign criticism of Nazi anti-Semitism, ignored the situation of Italian Jews.

BALLOT RECOUNT TO BE PUT UP TO CIRCUIT ATTORNEY

more votes than the recount showed them to have received. In the twenty-first precinct of the Twelfth Ward the difference generally was crediting candidates with one vote less than they were entitled to.

It is also planned to recount the bond issue vote in this Seventeenth Ward precinct. A recount will be made of the vote on State propositions in the nineteenth precinct of the Twenty-eighth Ward and on the bond issues in the following units: Ward 2, precinct 15; Ward 18, precinct 12; Ward 21, precinct 23; Ward 22, precinct 24.

Woodward and Allen said that the indications in the Seventeenth and Twelfth ward precincts recount so far were that the irregularities were only clerical errors. The precinct officials will be called before the board to explain their errors and be impressed with the need for accuracy.

ROOSEVELT PAYS TRIBUTE TO COLUMNIST WHO DIED

Praising Newspaper Men at Banquet, He Calls Rodney Dutcher a "Gentleman of the Press."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—President Roosevelt, speaking at the National Press Club's annual dinner tonight, recalled a dozen newspaper men with whom he had worked in the past 25 years and praised them as "objective" reporters.

Standing in the center of a long dinner table in the Press Club auditorium, the President said Rodney Dutcher, a Washington correspondent found dead at his desk today, was a "gentleman of the press."

Dutcher, 37 years old, died of a heart attack. He had been in the newspaper business since he was 16, starting his career in Worcester, Mass. For the last 11 years he had been writing a daily column on national and political affairs.

The President broke a precedent when he permitted publication of his praise for the newspaper man. Presidential remarks at dinners of the Press Club, the Gridiron Club and the White House Correspondents' Association are traditionally "off the record."

The President joked with members of the club about entertainment provided earlier in the evening which, in some instances, poked fun at portions of the New Deal.

SWANSON URGES RECRUITING NAVY TO WAR STRENGTH

"Highly Important" That 12,000 Men Be Added as Soon as Possible, He Says in Report.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Secretary of the Navy Swanson recommended to President Roosevelt today as "highly important" that the fleet be manned as soon as possible at full war strength.

"In view of the present disturbed international conditions," he said in his annual report, all vessels in service should be given full complements "so that the Navy as a whole may be immediately available in an emergency."

Only submarines are fully manned now, Swanson reported. The Navy's present 105,000 enlisted men, he said, permitted an average allowance for all ships of but 85 per cent.

War strength for all craft, other officials estimated, would require an addition of upwards of 12,000 men.

The recommendation was similar to Swanson's plea for more men a year ago, but was couched in more urgent terms and took on new meaning in the light of the billion-dollar fleet increase Congress voted this year and the administration's projected rearmament on a scale sufficient to defend all countries in the Western Hemisphere.

Other Needs of Navy.

Aside from men, Swanson reported the expanding Navy required additional officers, an "orderly program" of warship construction toward the authorized 20 per cent increase in total tonnage, more auxiliaries and aircraft tenders, and additional shore bases for ships and planes.

Regardless of what he pictured as deficiencies, Swanson said that "the efficiency, morale and spirit of the Navy have never been higher."

"The fleet is prepared to execute at short notice its most vital function, and that is to keep a war at a distance from our coasts and to bring the war to a close by defeating the enemy's navy at sea," he told the President.

On June 30, the end of the fiscal year, the Navy had 100 vessels building or appropriated for, a greater number than any Power, though Great Britain's 98 ships were larger.

Swanson reported that in the fiscal year the Navy operated 347 vessels of all types. Twenty-seven new craft, including five light cruisers and 12 destroyers, were placed in commission. Seventy were actually under construction.

On June 30, the Navy had 1390 first-line warplanes and 115 obsolescent planes on hand, and 642 aircraft on order, an increase of 205 on hand or building within a year.

Hint of Larger Battleships.

Swanson conveyed a hint of larger battleships to come in noting the 1936 London treaty had been amended to permit craft of 45,000 tons, and added: "Recommendations will be made during the coming year as to the tonnage of our future battleship which will best meet the needs of national security."

The six battleships the navy is building or has funds for are all of 35,000 tons. Models already are undergoing tests here for craft of upwards of 45,000 tons, designed to be the mightiest fighting craft in history.

Aside from enlisted men, Swanson said that on June 30 there were 6565 naval line officers, whereas 7211 were required for the navy of full treaty strength which Congress authorized in 1934 and is now approaching completion.

This shortage of 646 will be progressively relieved, however, he said, with the graduation of successive classes from the naval academy. Further prospective losses were reduced by Congress with a promotion law this year which permits retention of officers who otherwise would have been forced to retire on failing to win promotion.

Swanson repeated "emphatically" that the officers' pay should be increased, noting that it averaged but 10 per cent more than the level of 1908, whereas "the cost of living has increased 80 per cent meantime."

Other recommendations included:

1. Additional replacements for auxiliaries which are "slow and overage." Swanson commented that despite new construction, "the status of our naval auxiliaries is only slightly improved."

2. Creation of a merchant marine of modern, fast, efficiently manned vessels is "a measure of great importance to national security."

3. "With the naval expansion program in immediate prospect, active measures to increase the number of aircraft tenders and to develop adequate shore facilities (for aircraft) are inescapable requisites to its realization."

4. "The results of the year's tactical training have re-emphasized the advantages of basing the major units of the United States fleet in the same general operating area."

5. Additional or improved facilities are needed for training the naval reserves, Swanson said, listing armories in certain localities, armory equipment, additional vessels and funds for training more volunteer officers and men.

6. The marine corps, with 17,000 men at present, "should have a sufficient personnel to provide necessary marine detachments and guards for new ships, expanding naval activities, and to carry out missions assigned by the navy in basic plans."

7. "The authorized increase in the navy afloat necessitates a further shore development program of considerable magnitude which will be presented through prescribed channels," Swanson said.

He reported a broad plant-improvement program had been started, which officials estimated would involve a $107,000,000 outlay in the next 12 months. It was financed partly by PWA and WPA funds.

200 ARE REPORTED KILLED IN SPANISH ARMS PLANT FIRE

Travelers From Barcelona Say Loyalist Munitions Worker Dropped Shell, Which Exploded.

By the Associated Press.

PERPIGNAN, France, (At the Spanish Frontier), Nov. 19.—Between 200 and 300 persons were reported today to have perished in a fire and explosions which wrecked a Spanish Government munitions factory yesterday at Barcelona. Many were wounded.

This estimate of deaths was carried into France today by travelers from Government Spain. Authorities at the Government capital strictly censored reports of the disaster.

The travelers said the fire started from the explosion of a shell dropped by a worker. Many of the victims were said to have been asphyxiated, trapped in air raid shelters at the plant by smoke and chemical fumes. They had fled to the shelters, supposing the factory was being bombed.

The fire set off other shells and the explosions added to the casualties. Many members of the Barcelona Government watched as firemen tried to check the flames.

5 Killed, 40 Wounded by Bombers at Badalona and Mongat.

HENDAYE, France (at the Spanish Frontier), Nov. 19.—Five Spanish insurgent bombers killed five persons and wounded 40 today in a raid diverted from Barcelona to the towns of Badalona and Mongat.

Both insurgent and Government communiques reported all battlefronts were quiet.

The bombers, taking advantage of the confusion caused by yesterday's fire in Barcelona, swooped down first on the provisional capital but were driven off before they could bomb the city. Swinging northward to get away from heavy anti-aircraft fire, they unloaded their explosives instead on Badalona and Mongat.

Government pursuit planes reported they shot down one of the attacking craft. Two airmen who jumped with parachutes were taken prisoner.

Beacon Light Commemorates Hawaiian Who Died on Jarvis Island.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—United States officials on Jarvis Island dedicated a beacon light today to the memory of Carl K. Kahalewai, young Hawaiian colonist, who died of appendicitis on that Pacific outpost.

Two doctors, who were taken 1250 miles from Honolulu aboard the Coast Guard cutter Roger B. Taney in an attempt to save the colonist's life, arrived too late. He died Oct. 8.

REVOLT IN RUTHENIA IS REPORTED IN HUNGARY

Czechs Charge Budapest Spreads False Reports in Hope of Getting Further Territorial Concessions.

By the Associated Press.

PRAGUE, Nov. 19.—The lower house of the Czechoslovak Parliament voted autonomy for Slovakia and Carpatho-Ukraine (Ruthenia) today amid foreign reports of a "revolt" in the latter province.

The official news agency admitted trouble in Carpatho-Ukraine, stating "terrorist" bands from Hungary and Poland had caused six deaths along the border and were keeping the population in turmoil. Existence of a "revolt" was denied, however.

Officials said the reports, from Hungary and Poland, were efforts to prevent granting of autonomy to the Ruthenians and to make the world believe cession of the Carpathian Mountain region to Hungary was a necessity.

Regular Czech army troops are not yet demobilized, it was pointed out, and still occupy Carpatho-Ukraine and patrol the Polish and Hungarian borders as during the recent German-Czechoslovak crisis.

The Budapest newspaper Uj Nemzedek reported 39 gendarmes had been killed battling "rebels" at the village of Iza in Carpatho-Ukraine, which is Czechoslovakia's easternmost province. The paper said there was a widespread uprising against Czech authorities.

Iza is near the provisional provincial capital of Huszt. The newspaper Uj Nemzedek pictured a "state of anarchy" in the remote Carpathian mountain district.

It was reported also in Budapest that a delegation of Ruthenian leaders was en route there with petitions bearing 50,000 signatures asking annexation of their province to Hungary. The population of Carpatho-Ukraine is about 600,000.

The Budapest semi-official newspaper Esti Ujsag reported that Huszt, the provisional capital, was virtually surrounded by "rebels" and that Czech soldiers were being withdrawn.

In Warsaw the semi-official news agency carried a dispatch dated Rome saying Ruthenians had appealed to Budapest for military aid "to end Czech terror."

Officials here said no such information had reached here as that published in Budapest.

It is admitted here there is unrest among the Ruthenians, but this is attributed to "terrorist" raids from Poland and Hungary. The official news agency reported order prevailed throughout the province.

The six deaths officially admitted included four killed at the village of Rakosin in a raid by Hungarians and two killed at Torun. Forty Polish terrorists were reported to have attempted to storm the postoffice at Sinewerska Poljana.

Budapest reports that a Ruthenian delegation had gone to Budapest an danother to Warsaw to appeal for aid were scoffed at, as was another from Budapest that Premier Augustine Volisin of Ruthenia had fled to Slovakia with Government records.

Volisin himself appeared to have disposed of the reports by sending a telegram to Prague from Huszt answering a congratulatory message on the Ruthenian autonomy vote.

The program of autonomy for Carpatho-Ukraine and Slovakia which was advanced by Parliament today is expected to result next week in establishment of a Federal Czech-Slovak state. The Senate will pass on the autonomy laws Tuesday, and Frantisek Chvalkovsky, now Foreign Minister, is expected to be elected president of the transformed state later in the week. He is the only candidate.

The lower house passed the autonomy laws by overwhelming majorities. Slovak autonomy was voted 142 to 21, Ruthenia 147 to 23. The laws are a part of the country's constitution revision program resulting from the partitions of Czechoslovakia accomplished at Munich and Vienna.

With nearly one-third of the war-born republic now turned over to Germany, Hungary and Poland, the state is searching for a compromise between dictatorship and democracy.

The new federal state will consist of three autonomous parts: Bohemia-Moravia, inhabited mostly by Czechs; Slovakia, inhabited by Slovaks, and Carpatho-Ukraine, inhabited by Ruthenians.

Under the new Constitution, Parliament will have little occasion to meet, in view of an "enabling act" to be passed next week granting extraordinary powers to President and Cabinet. The legislative body will not be dissolved, however.

Harder work for less money and a daily pat on the back for Germany are among the new rules of life in transformed Czechoslovakia.

Anticipating lower wages which would prevent them from spending freely, Prague residents are flocking to theaters, movies and other amusements as though taking one grand last fling.

Confidence in Czechoslovak currency has returned, however, since the height of the September war scare when anyone with dollars or sterling could get his own price.

Bank deposits withdrawn then are coming back and there is money to borrow for those who want it.

But there is an atmosphere of uncertainty.

Business cannot settle down in a solid way until after the new frontiers are definitely fixed and the country's economic possibilities are gauged.

CITY WON'T ACCEPT $729,000 P W A GRANT

No Money for Maintenance of New Hospital, Mayor Declares.

A $729,000 Public Works Administration grant for construction of an eight-story hospital building on the City Santarium grounds will not be accepted by the city because funds are lacking to operate and maintain the hospital, Mayor Dickmann announced yesterday.

Sufficient money is available from 1934 hospital bond issue funds to provide the city's share of construction and equipment of the proposed $1,620,000 unit, the Mayor said. But no money for maintenance.

The matter will be discussed at the next meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, composed of the Mayor, Comptroller Louis Nolte and William L. Mason, president of the Board of Aldermen.

Mayor Dickmann said he was unable to estimate the maintenance cost of the proposed hospital for sanitarium patients, but pointed out that about $500,000 a year would be required for the new Malcolm A. Bliss Psychopathic Institute, which is expected to be completed by June.

It was proposed that the new sanitarium building house 600 patients who would receive hydrotherapy and other treatment for illness. It was to face Brannon avenue on the east side of the sanitarium grounds.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment recently rejected part of PWA grants totaling $1,347,300 and deferred acceptance of much of the remainder. These grants were for increasing facilities at Koch Hospital, for tuberculars, at the St. Louis Training School for the Feeble-Minded and for a new city dog pound. Lack of funds for maintenance was given as the reason.

A PWA grant of $184,090 for construction work in the Wellston School District was announced yesterday in Washington. Voters in the district authorized issuance of $225,000 in bonds for their share of the cost in a special election Oct. 25.

A new high school will be built and a new grade school for Negro children. Renovations of other buildings is included in the program.

ISADORE LONDE'S CRIME RECORD BEGAN IN 1913

Former Egan Gang Gunman Was Arrested 53 Times Before Sentence in Detroit in 1924.

SHOT ON ESCAPE IN MICHIGAN

Recovered, Then Was Freed on Parole in 1936 From Which He Was Discharged Last February.

Isadore Londe, gangster defendant in the bombing trial set for tomorrow at which Lee Baker was to have been the State's principal witness, obtained his discharge last Feb. 28 from the parole on which he was released from the Michigan State Penitentiary in March, 1936.

The St. Louis gangster was convicted of robbery in Detroit in 1924 and sentenced to 10 to 20 years in the penitentiary. He was sent first to the penitentiary at Marquette, where in the summer of 1925 he and two fellow convicts, all armed, forced a guard to assist them over the wall. They were captured several days later after a fight with guards in the north woods. Londe was shot through the lungs, but recovered.

He was later transferred to the prison at Jackson, Mich., where he established a record of good behavior. Among those recommending his release, after he had served 12 years of his sentence, were Circuit Judge John W. Joynt, office associate of Paul Dillon, Londe's attorney in the Howards cleaning shop bombing case; Rabbi Jacob R. Mazur, of Brith Sholom Congregation; Eli Sandperl, manager of a clothing store; J. M. Goldberg, dress manufacturer, and A. C. Carlson, president of the Independent Paper Stock Co.

Officials' Names Used.

State Senator Michael Kinney, who was listed in the Michigan records as the author of two letters recommending Londe's parole, declared he knew nothing about the matter. One letter was on Missouri Senate stationery and the other on the stationery of "Michael Kinney, Attorney-at-Law." Former Congressman James R. Claiborne, whose official Washington stationery was used for one of the letters of recommendation, said he had not dictated or signed the document, on which his name was written in ink.

Londe's sponsor under the parole was Ernest G. Stubley, head of the Volunteers of America, who said he took an interest in the convict at the request of a member of the Londe family. Londe presumably reported to Stubley during the parole period. The discharge, signed by Ralph E. Benson, supervisor of paroles, apparently was a routine release, issued nearly two years after the parole was granted, it was stated at the Michigan prison.

The parole was linked in sworn testimony with the bankruptcy of the Pearl Garment Co., owned by Londe's brothers, Louis and Morris Londe. Morris testified at a bankruptcy hearing in September, 1936, that he gave Louis $50,000 on the latter's representation that he had to pay for Isadore's parole. Morris later changed his story, testifying that Louis told him he spent the money and lost large sums gambling. ¶Louis and Morris Londe were sentenced to five-year terms in Federal prison early this year on criminal charges growing out of the bankruptcy, in which their creditors lost $125,000.

Isadore Londe's Record.

Isadore Londe, one of the "bad boys" of the old Egan gang, has a criminal record which goes back to 1913, when he was convicted of a minor offense. At 14 he was sent to the industrial school as a delinquent; when he was 17 he served a term in the Boonville Reformatory, and in 1919, convicted of an attempted holdup, he was sentenced to a year in the workhouse.

In 1922 Londe was shot three times in a gang affray. In the heyday of the Egan gang he was known as one of its toughest gunmen. Prior to his conviction in Michigan he was arrested in St. Louis 53 times on suspicion of various crimes, including bank robbery and shootings. His only convictions during that period were for carrying concealed weapons, charges on which he twice paid fines.

FIRST WIFE SUES SECOND ON ALIENATION CHARGE

Mrs. Sybil C. Waymire Seeks $25,000 Damages After Divorcing G. B. Waymire.

Suit for $25,000 damages, alleging alienation of affections, was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Mrs. Sybil C. Waymire, 2913 Wisconsin avenue, against Mrs. Theodora Wolski Waymire, 2700 South Broadway.

Mrs. Sybil Waymire obtained a divorce from Glenn B. Waymire two months ago, after which he married Mrs. Theodora Wolski. He is unemployed. Neither he nor his present wife would comment on the suit.

Shooting of Witness Against Londe Laid to Leak in Police Plans

"Important Witness."

"Baker is a very important witness for the State. The loss of his testimony would be a distinct blow, but I would not say that the State would be unable to make a case without him."

Miller instructed Woodward, his assistant, to confer today with Dr. Curtis H. Lohr, superintendent of the County Hospital, to learn when he would be able to testify.

Trial May Be Delayed.

"Even if we have to bring him into court on a stretcher," Miller said, "we will do that to get his testimony. I think, though, that it is hardly possible we will be able to proceed with the trial tomorrow."

Asked by the reporter what steps he had taken to assure himself that Baker was properly protected, Miller said he had left the matter entirely to the police. He would not say what members of the police department he had consulted on the matter.

Woodward said he had received a written report from police on where Baker was hidden, but had immediately returned it to the Police Department. He did this, he said, as a measure of precaution because he did not want the information to be in his files for fear it somehow might become known.

Police Commissioner Otto F Harting told a Post-Dispatch reporter: "There must be a leak somewhere—very bad." He said he did not mean to imply the leak was in the police department.

Chief Glassco's Comment.

Chief Glassco told a reporter he had urged Lieut. Dirrane to take every safeguard possible to protect Baker, "knowing the caliber of the men we had to deal with."

"I left the entire matter to Dirrane," the Chief added. "He told me a short time later he had hidden Baker in a safe place where he would be entirely out of reach. I did not ask him where he was hidden and I did not want to know. I just thought the more there were who knew about it the greater was the chance of a leak."

From time to time, Chief Glassco said, Lieut. Dirrane told him he had been in touch with Baker that he was available as a witness when wanted, and was "absolutely safe."

"The big thing I want to know now," the Chief added, "is how did it leak out?"

Found Own Hiding Place.

Baker's hiding place was one that he found for himself. In a detailed statement he gave late yesterday to Associate Prosecuting Attorney John H. McNatt of St. Louis County he said he went there in September, and, after he arrived, wrote to Lieut. Dirrane to inform him where he was.

Lieut. Dirrane and Sergt. Shelton were not available to reporters yesterday. They were in the field, investigating the attack on the witness they had been assigned to protect, and departed, in the afternoon, for his Southeast Missouri hideout.

Londe, Associates Questioned.

Held for questioning with Baldwin were Londe, John F. (Bab) Moran, recording secretary of the union which Baldwin heads, and Carl Fiorito, a gunman and former convict who associates with the others held. All four were viewed at the hospital by Baker, who said none of them was one of his assailants.

The secretary of the bartenders' union, Miss Helen Neil, was also taken to police headquarters for questioning. Miss Neil, who lives at 4314 Lindell boulevard, was taken from the office of the union at Grand boulevard and Olive street. Chief of Detectives John J. Carroll told reporters she gave no information of value.

Baker, in describing the automobile in which he was driven back to St. Louis, said it was a dark—he thought black—Pontiac sedan. A Pontiac automobile was found in front of the resort at which Baldwin was arrested, but it was maroon, and a two-door coach, not a four-door sedan such as Baker described.

The deserted shack in which Baker was shot is on Creve Coeur Mill road, about five miles from the St. Louis waterworks station at Howard's Bend, to which the wounded Baker finally made his way about 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

It is across the road and about 300 yards away from the resort, operated by Michael Duffy and Dan Zimmer, at which Baldwin was arrested. Duffy and Zimmer, before opening their present establishment, operated their resort at the building in which Baker was shot.

Baker, left for dead by his assailants, crawled from the house when they had gone and was hiding in the weeds when they returned, sometime later. He saw them enter the house, search it with flash lights, and when they came out he heard one of them say, "Drive like hell."

Deputy sheriffs found that the floor in a room adjoining the one in which Baker was shot had been ripped up beneath a staircase and a hole four feet deep, two and a half feet wide and five feet long, had been dug in the earth. Cement was piled loosely on top of the freshly dug earth. In another room they found a sack of lime.

These circumstances led deputy sheriffs to the conclusion that the men who shot Baker had returned with the intention of burying him.

Two Deputy Sheriffs, each armed with a riot gun, stood guard last night at Baker's bedside. The Sheriff's office arranged for a day and night guard, four deputies working in two 12-hour shifts, to protect Baker from any further attack.

One of the bullets which struck Baker grazed his right shoulder, ranging up through the right side of his face to emerge below his eye. The other went through his neck, from right to left. In the room where he was shot Deputy Sheriffs recovered two .380-caliber cartridges and a spent bullet.

Bakers' Statement.

Baker, in his statement to McNatt, said he had been staying at a place known as Trailback Farm. "The St. Louis police sent you there?" McNatt asked. "No," Baker replied, "I wrote back and told them where I was."

Baker said he could not remember who, besides the police and his aunt, might have known where he was hiding.

"There were two men that shot me," he said. "They came down there in the country in a 1938 four-door Pontiac sedan. I was at the Trailback Store when I first saw them, about 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

"One of them told me the Lieutenant sent them. He said the Lieutenant told them to give me some money if I needed any. And I said I could use some, because my overcoat and my suit of clothes needed pressing. He gave me $5. I got my clothes and put them in the back of his car.

"They both came back and we drove off. We stopped in some little town and got two half pints of whisky. I don't know what town it was. They got it at a drug store called the City Drug Store. That was about two and a half hours after we started for St. Louis.

Stop for Gasoline.

"Right after sundown, about four or five miles farther on, we stopped at a filling station and bought 10 gallons of gas. There were two white pumps at the filling station.

"The drug store and the filling station were both on Highway 61, on the right side of the road.

"We drove on, and when we got near where they shot me, one of them said he had to go down and see a guy about going hunting. He told me they were going to go hunting there the next day, because they had four days off.

"I said 'Yes, sir,' and he went over to a house, a clubhouse where women were dancing. There was a name Zimmer or something like that on the club.

"The big fat one went in there for a while and then he came out. He told his partner that the guy had gone over to the house and got drunk. So he said we'd go over there. We went over to the house and he flashed a light on it.

"All three of us went in. They were behind me and all at once he shot and hit me—the little fellow shot me. When he shot me, I fell on my stomach. And the little one said to the big one, 'You'd better shoot the———again,' so he put his pistol right on my neck, I could feel the pistol. And he shot me again.

"I laid there quiet until they left. I heard a car leaving. I crawled out of the house, after I heard the car leave. In about five minutes they came back and went into the house. I was out of the house, hiding, and they come out and said, 'Drive like hell!'"

Wandered for Hours.

Apparently Baker, who is 39 years old, wandered about in a daze for several hours before he arrived at the waterworks station. He reached there about 2:30 a. m. He thought it was about 8 o'clock when he was shot. Orval Ramey, a farm laborer who lives about two miles southwest of the scene of the shooting, told Deputy Sheriffs Baker appeared at his home at 10 o'clock Friday night, and asked for a rag to bind his wounds. Baker told Ramey, and at first told State Highway patrolmen who were sent to the waterworks station, that he had been in an automobile accident, saying nothing about having been shot.

State highway patrolmen were assigned to canvass Highway 61 for the filling station and drug store mentioned in Baker's narrative, in the hope that additional witnesses who might identify his assailants could be found.

The smaller of his assailants, Baker said, was addressed by his companion as "Tom." He said "Tom" had a "poor skinny face, and poor shoulders." This man, he said, weighed about 145 pounds and was about five feet, eight inches in height, taller than his companion. He wore a dark suit and a blue overcoat. His hat was brown, with a turned up brim.

The other man he described as stocky, weighing about 200 pounds. This man had a stubble of beard. He wore a dark gray overcoat over a heavy gray sweater, and his hat was light felt, with a black band.

Baker said he thought he recognized the stocky man as someone he had seen before.

He recalled that there were light tan straw seat covers in the automobile in which he rode back to St. Louis; that there was no license sticker on its windshield, and that the stocky man had a "heavy" voice.

The bomb exploded at the cleaning shop at 5:30 o'clock on the morning of June 2, and that same day Baker picked from police files a photograph of Londe, saying he was one of the two men who placed the bomb. Police searched for Londe without success until they found him, three weeks later, at the home of his mother, 746 Westgate avenue, University City.

The Circuit Attorney's office tried to hold Londe in jail without bond, pending the trial, but his attorney, Paul Dillon, instituted habeas corpus proceedings before Circuit Judge Frank C. O'Malley, and the Circuit Attorney's office then agreed to Londe's release on bond of $25,000. In opposing bond originally, the Circuit Attorney's office contended the offense charged might be punished by death, as bombing is a capital offense when a human life is endangered. A man was sleeping in quarters adjoining the cleaning shop when it was bombed.

At the time of the bombing Baker lived at 2309 Washington avenue, a few blocks from the Howards shop. He was on his way to bakery for breakfast rolls, he told a reporter yesterday, and was on the northwest corner of Jefferson and Franklin avenues when he saw a large blue Buick sedan stop across the street in front of the cleaning shop.

Two men, both wearing sun glasses, were in the car, Baker said, and the driver wore a handkerchief over his face. The man beside the driver was the one Baker identified as Londe. He said Londe got out, struck a match, and took a package from the automobile. He tossed the package to the door of the shop, got back into the car, and it was driven east.

The explosion, which caused damage of $1000, followed a few seconds later.

Londe's car, taken from a public garage, was removed by police to the garage at Police Headquarters. From among 15 others, Baker picked Londe's automobile as the one in which the bombers had fled.

Supporting Baker's identification was the circumstance that at about the time of the bombing Detective Sergt. William Greenspan and two officers noticed a Buick sedan, occupied by two men wearing sunglasses, turn into Twentieth street from Franklin avenue.

Greenspan noted that the first three digits of the State license number of the Buick were 625. A check of records disclosed that the number 625-643 had been issued to Londe for a Buick sedan. When police obtained possession of the car they found two pairs of sun glasses in a compartment of the machine.

The Howards cleaning shops have had labor trouble for more than a year. Several of the company's establishments have been bombed.

AUTO SHOW ENDS; ATTENDANCE FOR WEEK EXCEEDS 75,000

Officer of Dealers' Association Says It Probably Is Greater Than Any Previous Year.

The thirty-second St. Louis Automobile Show ended last night at the Arena, the final day's crowd of 9466 bringing total attendance for the week to 75,189.

Joseph A. Schlecht, secretary-manager of the St. Louis Automotive Dealers' Association, sponsor of the show, said the attendance was probably greater than at any previous exhibition. It was 17 per cent greater than last year, but the admission charge was reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents for the 1938 show.

GLASSCO SAYS BAKER DIDN'T ASK FOR GUARD

Nor Did Police Have Any Request From Circuit Attorney, Chief Says.

Chief of Police John H. Glassco said to a Post-Dispatch reporter last night that the reason Lee Baker, Negro witness in the Londe bombing case, was not provided with a police guard was that neither Baker nor the Circuit Attorney's office had requested such a guard.

There are four detention rooms at Police Headquarters, equipped with beds and shower baths. Glassco said these quarters were used for material witnesses only at the request of the Circuit Attorney or when a witness himself asked protection.

The present guard for Baker at St. Louis County Hospital — four deputy sheriffs working two at a time on 12-hour shifts—was arranged after a conference between city detectives and the Sheriff's office, the Chief said, adding that he considered the arrangement satisfactory. He pointed out that Baker's condition does not permit his removal to a city institution. The guards at the hospital were selected from among the Sheriff's staff of 25 salaried deputies.

The attempt to kill Baker recalls two murders of Negro witnesses in criminal cases.

John C. Johnson, important witness against the kidnapers of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley, was slain May 13, 1934, at the home of Deputy Sheriff Harry Newbold of St. Louis County, where he was in protective custody. Murder charges against Monroe (Blackie) Armes and John R. (Bab) Moran were dismissed last May because the State was unable to find an important witness. Armes is now in Federal prison at Alcatraz.

Erris Pillow, Negro bank messenger, was shot to death in front of his home May 9, 1921. Pillow had identified Jimmy Hogan, a gangster, as one of the men who had robbed him. Hogan, tried five times for the robbery, was finally acquitted. No one was convicted of the murder.

The type of protection given State witnesses is in contrast to the elaborate precautions taken by the Government to safeguard important Federal witnesses. Frequently they are retained as "guests" in various county jails, and moved occasionally from one county to another as an additional precaution.

TWO MORE GROUPS JOIN REDS AGAINST DALADIER DECREES

Rightist Croix de Feu Opposes Premier Who Now Runs France Without Majority of Deputies.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 19.—Two Rightist political parties today joined the Socialists and Communists in calling for the overthrow of Premier Edouard Daladier's Government because of its financial program.

Francois de la Rocque's French Social party which, as the Croix de Feu, led the riots against a previous Daladier cabinet in February, 1934, called the Premier's program "dangerous and inopportune."

The French People's party, headed by Deputy Jacques Doriot, declared the new financial measures "threaten only the working man."

Candidates to succeed Daladier when Parliament meets Dec. 6 already have been put forward in the Chamber of Deputies. The most favored appeared to be former Premier Edouard Herriot, now president of the chamber.

Today Daladier is governing France with a majority of the deputies against him. His own party split last night on the financial program, nine of the 112 radical Socialists deputies voting against the program and 31 abstaining from voting.

At least 320 of the 618 votes in the chamber can be counted against Daladier.

The Communists called a huge mass meeting for tonight at the Paris Sports Palace to protest against the financial decrees. Hundreds of police were assigned to patrol the streets in the vicinity.

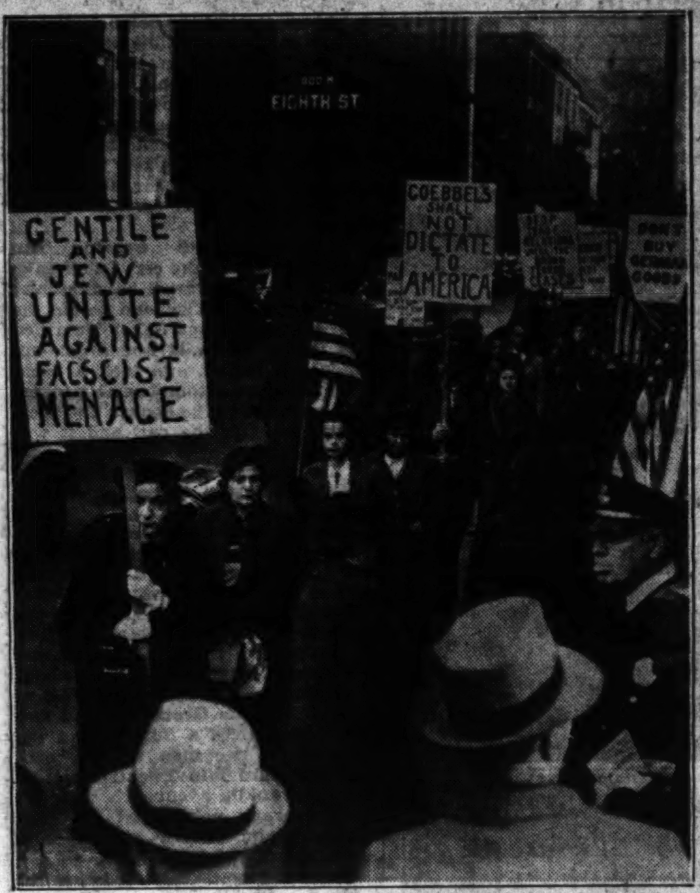
Anti-Hitler Picketing At St. Louis Consulate



EIGHTH ST
GENTILE AND JEW UNITE AGAINST FACSCIST MENACE
GOEBBELS SHALL NOT DICTATE TO AMERICA
DON'T BUY GERMAN GOODS

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

PICKETS with placards and flags marching yesterday in front of the International Office Building in protest against German persecution of Jews and attacks on Catholics and Protestants.

Persons Carrying Placards and Flags March for Hour—Try to Present Letter of Protest.

Persecution of Jews and attacks on Catholics and Protestants in Germany were protested against yesterday by pickets carrying placards and flags who marched for an hour beginning at noon in front of the International Office Building, 722 Chestnut street, in which, on the fourteenth floor, is the office of German Consul Herbert Diel.

At times shouting in unison, "Stop Hitler's Murder," the pickets carried nine signs and seven American flags, the signs including such statements as "Persecution of Jews, Catholics and Protestants Must Stop," "Not the Swastika but Democracy," "Stop the Brown-shirted Madman," and "Stop Trade Relations Until Germany Stops Barbarism." Sponsor of the demonstration was the St. Louis branch of the American League for Peace and Democracy.

After it ended, Miss Louise Spencer, secretary of the league, and other officers took a short letter to the consulate offices, asking that the protest be reported to the German Government. When an attache refused to accept it, Miss Spencer had it delivered by a messenger with a request for a reply. That was refused.

A Post-Dispatch reporter was told earlier by the same assistant that Dr. Diel was at his office, but would have no statement to make about the picketing.

The letter, addressed to Dr. Diel, read in part:

"We ask you to report to your Government our indignation at the cruel treatment being meted out to the Jews of Germany, merely to distract the suffering German people from the real causes of their conditions. The feelings of decent people everywhere are outraged at the spectacle of torturing an innocent people in order that an oppressive group may remain in control of the Government.

"We urge you to report further that we condemn also the continued attacks on Catholics and Protestants. We furthermore advise your Government through you that no dictatorship can survive through continued oppression of its people. We continue in our good will toward the German people, and we say for them, since they dare not speak out, that the peace of mankind can best be served through your Government's abandoning its present policies of oppression of its own people and of intense aggressive nationalism."

Handbills Announce Meeting.

At the time of the demonstration, handbills were distributed announcing a fellowship meeting of Catholics, Protestants and Jews of St. Louis, in protest against the German action, to be held Friday at 8 p. m. at Sheldon Memorial, 3646 Washington boulevard. The Rev. Truman B. Douglass of Pilgrim Congregational Church was listed as the principal speaker.

Last March 26 the league sponsored similar picketing in front of the International Building, that time in protest against "the Nazi seizure of Austria and the flaunting of a swastika in the faces of St. Louis citizens." On the day when German troops marched into Austria, the Nazi flag fluttered from the window of the consulate.

ACTIVE UNION RED CAPS FIRED, THEIR AGENT SAYS

Terminal Denies Discrimination in Discharging Four of 19 More Recalled.

A representative of Union Station Red Caps charged last night that their employer, the Terminal Railroad Association, was guilty of discrimination in firing four Red Caps who have been active in union affairs. A Terminal spokesman denied the charge.

The force of Red Caps, reduced from 105 to 57 Nov. 1, to facilitate compliance with the Wage-Hour Act, was increased by 15 yesterday because the smaller number was unable to handle daily station requirements. Roy Orr, vice-president of Local No. 20, Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, to which the Red Caps belong, said 19 men were called back to work and four discharged.

The four who were laid off were officers or grievance committee members in the old union of Red Caps, before the affiliation with the brotherhood, he said. Seniority was not followed in calling the 19 back to their jobs, he asserted. An officer of the Terminal said the discharges were for "the good of the service."

'WE WANT TO EXPORT JEWS,' GOEBBELS SAYS

In Sarcastic Speech Hopes Other Nations Will Take Them Off Nazis' Hands.

By the Associated Press.

REICHENBERG, Sudetenland, Nov. 19.—Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels said today it was Germany's wish that the world "become so pro-Jewish that it would take our Jews off our hands."

Goebbels referred sarcastically to the Jewish problem in a speech before an election mass meeting in this Sudetenland capital.

"We do not want to export anti-Semitism; on the contrary we want to export Semites," he said in a speech delivered in connection with the forthcoming Dec. 4 supplementary elections to admit Sudeten Germans to the Reichstag.

"Supposing the whole world was anti-Semitic, how should we rid ourselves of our Jews? It is our wish that the world may become so pro-Jewish that it would take our Jews off our hands.

"The English should not get so excited over what is happening to Jews here, but rather concern themselves with the undeniable ill-treatment of Arabs in Palestine."

The Propaganda Minister then launched into an account of Nazi achievements and "invincibility" and unloosed his often-repeated tirade against democracies.

"We have no interest in making England and France National Socialistic," he said. "Our interest is that they remain democratic even longer than they want to, for National Socialism makes a nation strong and we feel no inclination for strengthening them."

Critics of Germany complain that Adolf Hitler "has just all the luck," he went on.

"That's just it," he said. "Leadership of state does need luck, but one must admit that people are happier under lucky government than under an unlucky one. Others should really have been the lucky ones, for they keep telling us we are pagans and pray to Wotan, whereas they often talk about their God as though he were a party member."

"The world will calm down on the Jewish question—I certainly hope so, especially in the interest of Jews still remaining in Germany," Goebbels asserted.

(The Propaganda Minister on Nov. 11 served notice on Jews outside Germany that their behavior as well as that of German Jews would determine future treatment of Jews in the Reich.)

Turning to the recent Czechoslovak crisis, Goebbels described how Hitler determined in advance the date he would take action in Sudetenland if his territorial demands were not met.

"He did not play all his trumps at first," he said. "The first thing he did was to fortify the western frontier so as to eliminate danger from this quarter. Others said the Nazis were threatening war. It is just because we threatened war that war was avoided. True we took risks, but adding 10,000,000 people to our nation was worth taking risks for."

Goebbels said that "so far as human foresight goes" no international crises were expected to arise from either the Sudetenland annexation or the Jewish issue.

LEGION ASSAILS HITLER FOR JEWISH PERSECUTION

Executive Committee Closes Session; Continues Attacks on Communists, Fascists and Anarchists.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 19.—Closing its three-day annual meeting here today the executive committee of the American Legion adopted a resolution denouncing the German Government for its anti-Jewish acts. Copies were sent to President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull.

"Distressing news of the persecution of racial and religious minorities in Germany portrays a horrible spectacle of innocent peoples of all faiths, being subjected to imprisonment, punishment, destruction of property, deprivation of the opportunity of earning a living, with many resultant suicides and much misery," the resolution said.

The committee turned over to the national headquarters staff its renewed fight against Communists, Fascists and Anarchists.

The committee adopted resolutions yesterday asking for the enactment of a Federal law to expel from the United States alien Communists or anarchists and asked for a new appropriation to continue the Dies congressional committee investigating un-American activities.

The committee said Harry Bridges, West Coast director for the Congress of Industrial Organizations, was "a glaring example of the indifference of the Federal authorities to expel undesirable aliens."

Richard Hartshorne of New Jersey, chairman of the Law and Order Committee, said the Legion still stood for freedom of speech.

Headquarters for the 1939 Legion convention already have been opened in Chicago, Phil W. Collins, executive vice-president of the convention corporation, said. The convention will open Sept. 25.

DIES AID LISTS GROUPS ATTACKING U. S. JEWS

Tells Committee They Have Fomented "Rising Tide of Anti-Semitic Feeling."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The House Committee investigating un-American activities received testimony today that there was "a rising tide of anti-Semitism and anti-religious feeling through the country.

This testimony was presented by John C. Metcalfe, committee investigator, who asserted that the "situation in Europe" has contributed to anti-Semitic feeling in this country.

Metcalfe testified 135 organizations had been reported to the committee as fomenting "class, racial or religious hatred."

About 75 per cent of the organizations, the witness said, are "rackets" established for the profit of their promoters.

Chairman Dies (Dem.), Texas, of the committee, noting that all the organizations were incorporated, said he would write to Secretaries of State in the various states and request the groups be required to comply with statutes making it mandatory for corporations to file annual reports.

Dies said he had received a communication from Robert L. Vann, Pittsburgh Negro leader and former Assistant Attorney-General, calling attention to propaganda from the German-American Bund."

It was this "propaganda," Metcalfe testified in response to Dies' questions, that recently caused an upsurge of anti-Semitic feeling among Pittsburgh Negroes.

Reading from a long list, Dies called the names of numerous organizations which he said were engaged in promoting class, racial or religious hatred. These included:

America First, Inc., Washington; American Aryan Folk Association, Portland, Ore., and New York City; American Christian Defenders, New York City; Knights of the White Camelias, St. Albans, W. Va.; American Fascisti Order of Black Shirts, Atlanta, Ga.; American Fascists, Chattanooga, Tenn.; American Fascist Khaki Shirts of America, Philadelphia; American Gentile Protective Association, Chicago; American Guards, Chicago; American League of Christian Women of California; American National Committee, Chicago; American National Labor Party, New York; National Socialist Party, New York; American Nationalist Party, Los Angeles; American Nationalists, Washington; American Rangers, Chicago; American Consumers' Mutual Association, Washington; Bodyguards and Builders of Business Brotherhood, all of Chicago; American White Guard, Los Angeles; Black Legion, Detroit, and Black Shirts, Takoma, Wash.

ADMITS ATTACKING MRS. C. A. SCHREINER

Chicago Youth, 19, Charged With Kidnaping Former St. Louis Woman.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—The Federal Government moved today to prosecute a 19-year-old Chicago boy on a kidnaping law charge under which the death penalty could be inflicted.

Assistant United States District Attorney Martin Ward began the move by filing charges of kidnaping, transporting the victim across state lines and inflicting bodily harm, against Charles Griesmer, who police said had confessed abducting a South Side matron. Mrs. Adele Schreiner, wife of a Chicago grain broker, last Oct. 25 in her automobile and holding her prisoner for five hours, forcing her to drive to Gary, Ind., where she was robbed and twice attacked.

Police said the boy, who was arrested yesterday for driving through a stop light, also confessed he shot and wounded William R. Smith of St. Paul, Minn., a salesman for a religious supply house, near Watseka, Ill., two weeks ago when he found that Smith had no money. Smith, who since has been removed to St. Paul for an operation, told police he had picked up his assailant in his automobile when driving near Kankakee.

Meanwhile, Griesemer was held by police, who said records showed he was wanted for violation of his parole last May from the St. Charles (Ill.) reformatory.

Mrs. Schreiner is the wife of Charles A. Schreiner, who is the son of Jacob Schreiner, grain broker, 6307 Waterman avenue. Charles Schreiner and his wife left St. Louis to make their home in Chicago in 1914.

BRANDEIS CONFERS WITH ROOSEVELT ON REFUGEE JEWS

President Also Sees U. S. Envoy to Italy, Where Anti-Semitic Campaign Is Under Way.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19. — The plight of the Jewish population of Germany received renewed attention at the White House today at the end of a week in which German-American relations suffered a severe strain.

Justice Louis D. Brandeis, deeply stirred by the latest outburst of anti-Semitic measures in the Reich, called on President Roosevelt to discuss the best means of bringing relief to the refugees.

The President talked also during the day with Ambassador William Phillips, American envoy to Italy, where repressive measures against the Jews are under way, and with Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador. The Jewish resettlement problem was thought to have been discussed during Sir Ronald's unnanounced visit.

Brandeis Silent on Conference.

Justice Brandeis' appearance at the White House indicated his great concern for the members of his race. During his 22 years on the bench, he has taken part in no public activity except court affairs.

After a White House conference on the same subject in mid-October, Justice Brandeis refused to comment on rumors that he would resign to devote full time to the aid of refugees.

Neither the 82-year-old Brandeis nor the President threw any light on conclusions reached today.

Another development was an appeal by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom that the President call a special session of Congress to increase immigration quotas as they apply to "the victims of European pogroms."

"We are confident," said a statement from the league, "that all political parties would co-operate in this humanitarian effort. We recognize fully the difficulties which would be raised because of the labor situation in this country. Yet we are confident that all wings of the labor movement would raise no serious objections if assurances were given that the refugees would be handled as a special problem."

Taylor Sails Next Week.

Myron C. Taylor, former head of the United States Steel Corporation, will sail next week to confer with other members of the inter-governmental committee set up in London to deal with political refugees. Secretary of State Hull said yesterday that developments in Germany had redoubled the urgency of finding homes for hundreds of thouhands, but that despite requests Germany had shown no readiness to confer with the United States delegate, George Rublee.

At the German Embassy, it was said today that Ambassador Hans Dieckhoff, who has been recalled to Berlin to report on the Roosevelt administration's attitude, had not decided when to depart, although he expected to leave late next week.

Dieckhoff has not asked for a farewell appointment with Hull, such as Ambassador Hugh Wilson made at the Berlin Foreign Office before departing for Washington in response to an order to consult with the President.

Jewish Leaders' Parley.

The United Palestine Appeal announced, meantime, that Jewish leaders in seaboard states from Maryland to Florida had been summoned to an emergency conference here tomorrow "to consider the British Government's proposed plans for the mass settlement of refugees made homeless by new waves of anti-Semitic oppression in Germany."

These leaders, meeting under the auspices of this American Agency for Jewish Resettlement and Reconstruction of Palestine, were expected to demand no cessation of Jewish migration to the Holy Land despite Arab resistance.

"While a broad settlement program in outlying parts of the British Dominions would entail huge expenditures for preliminary development and preparation, Palestine settlement can be carried out immediately with far lower costs owing to the extensive reconstruction achievements of the Jewish community of 450,000 already settled there," the appeal said in a statement tonight.

YEAR FOR 'CHASING NEGROES' IN GEORGIA RACIAL DISORDERS

One of 19 Men Indicted Pleads Guilty and Is Sentenced; Others Forfeit Bonds.

MARIETTA, Ga., Nov. 19.—Buck Miller, 23 years old, one of the 19 men indicted in connection with racial disorders at Smyrna a month ago, today was sentenced to a year in prison for "chasing Negroes and leading others in the chase."

Superior Judge J. H. Hawkins imposed sentence on Miller, who pleaded guilty.

The others indicted forfeited bonds of $1000 each by failure to appear in court yesterday. Judge Hawkins said reviews might be sought in the latter cases, however, at the January term of court.

The demonstrations against Negroes followed the killing of a farmer and his daughter by a Negro, now under death sentence in the case.

WOMAN AND MAN, HIT BY AUTOS, DIE OF THEIR INJURIES

Mrs. Margaret Tennal, 64, and Benjamin Wiener, 67, Victims —They Were Hurt on Friday.

The deaths of two persons from head injuries suffered Friday when struck by automobiles were reported yesterday. They were Mrs. Margaret Tennal, 64 years old, 919A Cass avenue, and Benjamin Wiener, 67, 1317 Bayard avenue.

Mrs. Tennal died yesterday at City Hospital of injuries suffered at Twelfth boulevard and O'Fallon street when struck by a machine driven by Forest Dement, 3325 Eads avenue. He told police she was crossing Twelfth from east to west when she ran into the path of his southbound automobile in an attempt to avoid being hit by another southbound machine. Witnesses said the electric signal gave north and south traffic the right-of-way.

Wiener, who died at Jewish Hospital Friday night, was struck when he tried to cross Page boulevard at Bayard avenue by the automobile of Coleman Brown, 8237 Jackson street, Vinita Park. Brown said his machine skidded when he swerved to avoid striking Wiener.

Three Girls, Running From Man, Are Struck by Auto.

Three young girls who were running away from a man in an automobile who was trying to pick them up were injured early yesterday when they ran into the path of another car on South Broadway. Two of the girls are in serious condition at City Hospital.

They are Miss Ella Reichenbacher, 15 years old, 2716 South Broadway, who suffered a fractured pelvis, and Miss Thelma Bates, 17, of Granite City, employed as a housemaid at 1218 Russell boulevard, who suffered a skull injury. The third girl, Miss Helen Dzubin, 15, 406 Lami street, was permitted to leave the hospital after treatment for cuts and bruises.

Miss Dzubin told police that she and her two friends were walking south on Broadway at 1:30 a. m. When they were crossing Marion street, she said, a man in an automobile drove in front of them, blocked their path and began talking to them. When they tried to run around the rear of the car he backed up and when they tried to cross in front he went forward.

They then ran quickly across Broadway and into the path of another automobile. The driver, who said he was James Kean, 5044 Raymond avenue, told police that he was going at a moderate rate of speed, but that the girls appeared in front of his car so quickly he was unable to stop.

The driver who first talked to the girls told police he was Frank Ponder, 6640 Idaho avenue. He was also held.

FERTILIZER TESTS BY TVA ASSAILED BY INVESTIGATOR

Congressman Jenkins Charges It With Trying to Compete With Private Industry.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Representative Jenkins (Rep.), Ohio, accused the TVA today of attempting to compete with the private commercial fertilizer industry and encroaching on the sphere of the Federal Department of Agriculture.

Jenkins, member of the congressional committee investigating the Government's Tennessee Valley development, made these charges after Dean Thomas P. Cooper of Kentucky University had praised agricultural co-operation of TVA with land grant colleges in seven southern states.

Cooper told the committee that the development of triple superphosphate production through an electric blast furnace process by TVA benefited farmers throughout the United States.

Jenkins disputed this in questions and asserted that the agricultural functions of TVA should be handled by the Department of Agriculture, while fertilizer production and distribution should be left in the hands of private industry.

Questions Dean's Opinion.

Saying he was "something of a farmer myself," the Ohio Congressman asked Cooper, dean of agriculture at Kentucky University, whether he thought "big rich states like Illinois will set up their own fertilizer plants to give fertilizer to farmers, or the private commercial industry will use TVA methods?"

The Kentuckian declined to forecast fertilizer developments. Cooper said TVA had distributed more than 50,000 tons of fertilizer for agricultural experiments and detailed TVA co-operation with the agricultural colleges and experiment stations in Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi.

Francis Biddle, committee counsel, informed the committee that the TVA phosphate extraction process made possible the development of large phosphate supplies in many western states.

Representative Jenkins contended that the chief benefactors of TVA fertilizer experiments were farmers in the Tennessee Valley area.

Willkie's Offer Declined.

Earlier Biddle disclosed the committee had declined an offer from Wendell Willkie, utilities executive, to open his personal income tax returns and bank accounts for inspection by the committee.

Biddle told reporters that Willkie had suggested that committee representatives examine these records in their inquiry into the proposed sale of the electrical department of the Tennessee Electric Power Co. to the TVA and municipalities.

"The committee representatives told Mr. Willkie 'certainly not, we do not wish to go into your private affairs,'" Biddle said.

The committee recalled C. W. Kellogg, president of the Electric Institute, to the stand today for questioning about his contention that the TVA does not furnish a true "yardstick" of power costs.

HEARING THIS WEEK FOR PROSECUTOR OF COLE COUNTY

Testimony to Be Taken in Attorney-General's Suit Intended to Oust Carl F. Wymore.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 19. — Hearings in an ouster suit filed in the Missouri Supreme Court by Attorney-General Roy McKittrick against Prosecuting Attorney Carl F. Wymore of Cole County, charging Wymore with failure to enforce the laws against gambling in Jefferson City and the county, will begin here Monday before a special commissioner appointed by the court to take testimony.

So far subpenas have been issued by Special Commissioner Perry G. Storts of Marshall, at the request of McKittrick, for 199 persons, most of whom reside in Jefferson City. The list is said to include all of the liquor dealers in Jefferson City and numerous persons reputed to have some knowledge of slot machine operations and other gambling activities.

The wholesale issuance of subpenas, including summonses for Circuit Judge Nike G. Sevier of Cole County, bank records, business men, attorneys and others, caused considerable speculation as to how much "heat" would develop in the Attorney-General's drive in Cole County.

McKittrick has indicated the "heat" will continue, in increasing degree, for some time. The hearings likely will be in progress for a week or more.

The Attorney-General also has declared his move in Cole County is a forerunner of ouster proceedings against local officers in other counties, if gambling laws are not enforced.

History of Ouster Suit.

The ouster suit against Wymore was filed by McKittrick on Aug. 24, 1937, as an immediate aftermath of action by Gov. Stark and McKittrick in calling on the prosecuting attorneys in 37 of the 114 Missouri counties to move immediately to break up "the slot machine and other gambling rackets." No other ouster proceedings have been filed so far.

McKittrick charged in the quo warranto proceeding against Wymore that the latter had failed to prosecute slot machine operators and other law violators in Cole County. The Attorney-General said an investigation by the highway patrol and others disclosed slot machines and similar devices were operating at the time in 128 places in Jefferson City and Cole County.

The Attorney-General charged Wymore was "a member of a conspiracy to permit the unmolested operation of gambling devices," and asserted that violation of the criminal laws in Cole County had become "open and notorious."

Wymore has entered a denial of all of the charges. The young prosecutor is nearing the end of his first term and was re-elected last Nov. 8 for a second term.

McKittrick announced this week that on Monday he would file a request for leave from the Supreme Court to amend the ouster petition, to ask for disbarment of Wymore, as well as ouster from office. He said it would be contended that the allegations offered as the basis for the requested ouster of Wymore also would constitute grounds for disbarment from the practice of law, if sustained.

Question as to New Term.

Some question has been raised as to whether an ouster order, if one is issued by the Supreme Court, would apply to the new term for which Wymore was elected, since the charges in the ouster proceeding all involve matters alleged to have arisen during the present term.

Opening of hearings on the merits of the ouster proceeding was delayed for more than a year due to controversy over jurisdictional questions, involving a point raised by defense counsel that the exclusive legal remedy for ouster of a county officer was by filing a complaint in the Circuit Court, and not by quo warranto proceedings in the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court last September overruled this contention and held it had jurisdiction of the quo warranto proceeding to oust Wymore. The ruling opened the way for filing of such ouster proceedings by the Attorney-General against any county officer, except those who may be removed only by impeachment, directly in the Supreme Court instead of in local Circuit Courts.

Hearings before Special Commissioner Storts will be held in the courtroom of Division No. 1 of the Supreme Court. After the taking of testimony is completed, Storts will file his report and findings with the Supreme Court, and the case then will be set for argument before the Supreme Court.

TRAIN ENGINEER DIES IN CAB

Fireman Stops Rock Island Locomotive Near Topeka.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 19.—Marshall E. Davis, 59 years old, engineer on the Rock Island Railroad between Herrington, Kan., and Kansas City, died of a heart attack in his engine cab just outside the Topeka yards today.

C. R. Cassody, an engineer acting as fireman, stopped the train. Davis lived in Kansas City.

GROUP SAYS U. S. SHOULD LIFT ARMS EMBARGO AGAINST SPAIN

Lawyers Group Declares This Would Keep Fascists From Getting Springboard to Latin America.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—President Roosevelt should lift the arms embargo against Spain immediately, said spokesmen for a group of 200 lawyers who met here tonight for a two-day discussion of American relations with Spain.

"The President not only can, but should revoke the embargo now," declared John Q. Tilson of Massachusetts, former Republican leader in the House. "Only through such action can Hitler and Mussolini be kept from overrunning Spain, and using that as a springboard to cross the Atlantic and dominate Latin America."

Dr. David Efron, Argentine educator, contended the embargo against arms shipments to Spain was "a contradiction to the intentions of the good-neighbor policy."

"The domination of Spain will mean that the Fascists dictators would have an Atlantic base for expanding their already dangerous operations in Latin America," he declared.

UKRAINIAN-AMERICANS DEMAND INDEPENDENT STATE IN EUROPE

Meetings Held in New York and Other Cities to Protest Against Terrorism in Poland.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Ukrainian-Americans of the metropolitan area demanded today that an independent state be created for the 45,000,000 Ukrainians they claim are living in Eastern Europe.

At a meeting called to protest against alleged terrorism of Ukrainians in Poland, representatives of 82 Ukrainian-American Societies, estimated by police to number more than 5000, passed resolutions also demanding the right of self-determination for 7,000,000 of their compatriots in Poland. Charging that Polish military and police forces had plundered villages of Western Ukraine and killed numerous Ukrainian citizens, the delegates also requested appointment of an international commission to investigate reports of violence.

A parade preceded the meeting. Similar demonstrations were held in Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Boston, Philadelphia and other cities with large Ukrainian populations.

ST. CLAIR COUNTY TAX LEVY BARRED BY COURT

Judge Says Illinois-Iowa Power Co. Is Victim of "Constructive Fraud."

Circuit Judge Maurice V. Joyce of Belleville, in issuing an injunction yesterday restraining the St. Clair County treasurer from collection of $88,098 in taxes from the Illinois-Iowa Power Co., declared the County's Board of Tax Review had practiced "consrtuctive fraud" in assessing the concern's real estate and personal property for 1935-36.

Judge Joyce declared the board knew the assessments were excessive and that it had acted deliberately in making them, adding that his court had the "jurisdiction to prevent the perpetration of such a fraud against the taxpayer."

"The Board of Review made no attempt whatever to ascertain or assess the fair cash value of the physical property of the plaintiff in 1935-36," the Judge remarked in his order. He declared also that the valuation had been based on the concern's earnings in the State of Illinois rather than on value of the property within the county.

The Board of Review, Judge Joyce asserted, ignored verified schedules filed by the company and the reports made by an engineer for the Illinois State Tax Commission.

The firm had protested against the assessments, paying 75 per cent of the amount fixed by the board. Members of the board could not be reached and other County officials were unable to say whether an appeal would be taken.

NEW LACLEDE LIGHT TAX SUIT BY CITY

$562,629 Sought as Occupational Levy From Jan. 1, 1934 to Oct. 31, 1938.

Suit for $562,629 in occupational tax for use of the streets from Jan. 1, 1934, to Oct. 31, this year, was filed by the city against the Laclede Power & Light Co. in Circuit Court yesterday, although a similar suit for $473,419 in taxes for the preceding five years, filed Aug. 8, 1934, has not yet been brought to trial.

It was explained by the City Counselor's office recently that the first action had been delayed in hearing because of a demurrer by the company and the loss of the files, for which substitutes had to be prepared. The city now expects that case to be set for trial next month.

Filing of the second suit had been deferred for some time with the hope that the original case might be adjudicated, either making the company's liability certain or pointing the way to judgment for the city in the new case. However, the city decided to wait no longer.

Claim Based on 1917 Law.

The claim is based on a 1917 ordinance, fixing the tax at 5 per cent of gross receipts. Charles M. Hay, then City Counselor, said, in filing the first suit, that the company never had paid the tax and no demand had been made until a short time previously. That suit sought to collect only from 1929 on because of a five-year statutory limitation. The limitation on the tax for 1934 would run until the end of 1939.

In the new suit, prepared by Associate City Counselor Harold C. Hanke, annual gross receipts and taxes are set out as follows: 1934, $2,095,455 receipts, $104,722 tax; 1935, $2,201,874 receipts, $110,093 tax; 1936, $2,389,885 receipts, $119,494 tax; 1937, $2,565,370 receipts, $128,268 tax; first 10 months of 1938, $2,000,000 estimated receipts, $100,000 tax. In addition, for each year interest is sought at 6 per cent from the first day of the following year.

Laclede Power & Light Co. is an electrical affiliate of Laclede Gas Light Co., both controlled by Utilities Power & Light Corporation. Laclede Power & Light has contended that, under its franchise and ordinances passed in the administration of Mayor Victor J. Miller, it was entitled to the same terms as Laclede Gas under the latter's franchise granted many years ago by the Legislature, and, therefore, was not liable for the tax.

Hay Questioned Gas Franchise.

It has been expected that the litigation over the tax would bring up the whole question of the Laclede Gas franchise, which has been asserted to be perpetual. Counselor Hay, when in office early in Mayor Dickmann's administration, took the position this franchise had expired and sought to have the utility ousted from business by quo warranto suit. However, both Attorney-General Roy McKittrick and Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller, the officials authorized to institute such a proceeding, declined to do so.

The occupational tax for use of the streets has been paid by Union Electric Co. of Missouri and the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. A month ago, Laclede Gas Co. made its first payment under a different ordinance, approved last May, fixing a license tax of 5 per cent of gross receipts for gas concerns. Laclede Gas had objected to paying the levy as an occupational tax for use of the streets on the ground its franchise exempted it from such a charge. The company has resisted paying the occupational tax on its business prior to last May 17.

No move has been made by the city to change the tax on Laclede Power & Light to a license tax in an effort to get around the objection in the same way as was done with Laclede Gas.

MISS PERKINS TELLS LEGION ABOUT BRIDGES

Deportation Case Merely Held Up for Supreme Court Ruling, She Says.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Secretary of Labor Perkins made public a letter today to Stephen F. Chadwick, national commander of the American Legion, explaining the attitude of the Labor Department toward the deportation case against Harry Bridges, West Coast labor leader.

Chadwick had sent her copies of resolutions adopted at the legion convention in which she was accused of failing to enforce the law because the department had not yet deported Bridges under the immigration act of 1918. This stipulates that aliens who are members of an organization "which advocates the overthrow of the United States Government by force and violence" must be deported. The department has received charges that Bridges was a Communist.

Miss Perkins wrote Chadwick that "I am in entire agreement with your thoughtful and responsible expression of opinion with regard to prompt, proper enforcement of law by orderly processes."

Then she repeated the position of the department—that the proceedings against Bridges were being held up pending adjudication this winter by the Supreme Court of questions that have arisen regarding interpretations of the 1918 act.

The immigration and naturalization service of the Labor Department had scheduled a hearing for Bridges last winter, when the Circuit Court of Appeals for the fifth circuit ruled in the case of Joseph G. Strecker of Hot Springs, Ark., that membership in the Communist party was not ground for deportation. Contending that this conflicted with decisions by other circuit courts of appeal, the department petitioned the Supreme Court to make a final decision.

Miss Perkins said the Bridges case and similar deportation cases have been suspended "in keeping with the usual Government legal practice of avoiding unnecessary expense and multiple litigation in the lower courts, when a test case was pending in the higher courts. The warrants in this class of cases have not been cancelled—litigation has merely been postponed."

Mrs. Roosevelt Chooses Gowns in Shades of Red

New Dresses for Winter Social Season Range in Color From Wine to Violet-Hued Rose.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19. — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was in town today to do some shopping, preparing for the winter social season in Washington which opens with a state dinner to the diplomatic corps on Dec. 13.

The wardrobe selected by Mrs. Roosevelt indicated that red, from glowing wine to violet-hued rose, was her favorite color this year.

The store described the gowns thus:

A dinner gown of rich Bagherra velvet of Lanvin red, which has the new square neck with jeweled clips; an evening gown of Persian coral glacier satin, which reveals the Molyneaux influence in its lovely violet shading and the two large corsages of violets worn on the left shoulder. This dress has a train and a gracefully draped scarf falls regally almost to the floor.

An evening ensemble, with a gold lame jacket, showing the Schiaparelli nature motif in its leaf buttons, worn over the simplest black crepe gowns designed especially for Mrs. Roosevelt's statuesque bearing.

A black crepe dinner gown, expressing Mrs. Roosevelt's fondness for the softly tailored shirtfrock in evening fashion. Gold filigree gleams on the pocket and the belt is trimmed in gold.

A costume ensemble of grape wine woolen, a full-length coat with sable-dyed skunk tuxedo revores over a matching satin-topped wool frock. With it are hat and shoes to match.

For afternoon, Mrs. Roosevelt has not deserted Eleanor blue, in a dress with the new Zouave waistline and fulled bodice. Fourteen strands of pearls circle the neck.

A blue afternoon frock enlivened with imported gold-striped lame at the neck and cuffs.

A sheer crepe formal evening gown of the fuchsia shades.

WOMAN CITY EMPLOYE FIRED, SAYS 'POLITICS'

Miss Lenora Valle, Ousted After 10 Years, on Inefficiency Charge.

Miss Lenore Valle, who was fired last Wednesday as an office assistant in the Municipal Dental Clinic, told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that she thought the reason for her dismissal was that she voted the Republican ticket in the election of Nov. 8, and not "inefficiency," as her superior said.

Miss Valle, who had been employed in the clinic for 10 years, said that on election day, as she was coming out of the polling place for the twentieth precinct of the Twelfth Ward, she was asked by John J. Callahan, Democratic precinct captain, what thenumber of her ballot was. She told him the number.

Two days later, she said, she was called on the telephone by Dr. Harry M. Stamm, chief of the clinic, who said, "I understand you're not 100 per cent for the organization." She said she asked him how he knew. His reply, she said, was: "Ballots talk. I thought you were smarter than that." Last Wednesday she received a notice from Health Commissioner Joseph F. Bredeck informing her that her services were no longer required after Nov. 30.

Dr. Stamm, who has been head of the clinic since the Democrats came into power in 1933, denied to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he had had any telephone conversation about her ballot with Miss Valle. He said, however, that he had recommended her dismissal. Asked for a specific instance of inefficiency, he said: "She was just inefficient—she didn't do her work properly."

He added that had he wanted to fire her for political reasons he would have done so a long time ago. Miss Valle, who lives at 8405 South Broadway, was hired by former Health Commissioner Max Starkloff, a Republican. She said she had always voted the Republican ticket.

Callahan and Dr. Bredeck, who is out of the city, could not be reached.

Miss Valle, who was transferred six months ago from the main office of the clinic in the Municipal Courts Building to the clinic at 5002 North Broadway, also said that for the last year the 30 employes of the clinic had been assessed 50 cents a month which, she said, "went to Dr. Stamm." She said she did not know the purpose.

Dr. Stamm said that the 50 cents was for flowers for funerals and wedding presents, but Miss Valle and Dr. T. Royal Tibbe, who was dismissed as one of the clinic's dentists last March, said that there were always special collections for such purposes and that the 50-cent levy was never explained.

KAMAL ATATURK'S FUNERAL AT ANKARA TOMORROW

Six Generals Bear Coffin at Istanbul Whence It Is Taken by Ship and Train.

By the Associated Press.

ISTANBUL, Nov. 19.—The body of Kamal Ataturk, father of modern Turkey, was taken by warship and train today to Ankara, the capital he built, where funeral services for him will be held Monday.

Mohammedan prayers and verses from the Koran were recited at the request of his family over the man who fought Moslem priests and transformed Turkey into a lay republic.

Thousands of wailing Turks outside Dolma Bagtche Palace saw six Generals carrying the lead-lined ebony coffin, draped with a silken Turkish flag, to a gun carriage.

At Seraglio Point, the coffin was placed aboard the Turkish battle cruiser Yavuz which, accompanied by foreign war vessels, crossed to the Izmid naval base in the Sea of Marmora. There the body was put aboard a train for Ankara.

ROAD ASSOCIATION COMMITTEE NAMED TO CONFER WITH STARK

Group Also Will Consult Legislative Leaders on Future Highway Plans.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 19.—A committee of five men to confer with Gov. Lloyd C. Stark and Missouri legislative leaders regarding future highway plans was named today by R. S. Brownlee, president of the Citizens' Road Association, which unsuccessfully backed a 10-year road program at the November election.

Members of the committee are Hugh Stephens of Jefferson City, campaign manager for the defeated highway amendment No. 6; former Supreme Court Judge Frank E. Atwood of Jefferson City; R. W. Brown of Carrollton, president of the Missouri Farm Bureau Federation; State Senator Michael Kinney of St. Louis, chairman of the Senate Roads and Highway Committee, and Charles Ferguson of Willow Springs, vice-president of the road association. Brownlee also will act with the committee, which was authorized at a meeting of the association here Thursday.

Gov. Stark has indicated he will rely largely on the association's suggestions in formulating his highway recommendations to the Legislature.

DRIVER OF AUTO THAT HIT BOY GETS 10 DAYS IN WORKHOUSE

Henry W. Schaefer, Fined $150; His License Suspended for Six Months.

Henry W. Schaefer, 21-year-old mechanic, was sentenced to 10 days in the Workhouse and fined $150 on a careless driving charge by Police Judge James F. Nangle yesterday. His driver's license was suspended for six months.

An automobile driven by Schaefer struck and injured 6-year-old Leonard Margolf, 3216 Chippewa street, at Jefferson avenue and Chippewa street Oct. 15. A witness, who said he was driving behind Schaefer, testified he saw him disregard two major street stops a short time before the boy was hit.

Schaefer, who resides at 3001A Chippewa street, denied that he failed to make the stops and said the boy darted into the path of his machine. He appealed. Leonard Margolf, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Margolf, suffered scalp wounds.

CHINESE HOLDING JAPANESE FORCES ON TWO FRONTS

Invaders Make No Reports of Gains in South China or in Drive on Changsha in Hunan Province.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 19.—A Japanese spokesman said today that despite more than a year of Japanese operations in the Yangtze River Valley, more than 200,000 Chinese guerrillas and bandits were operating between Shanghai and Nanking.

He cited this as the reason for the virtual blockade of the river against non-Japanese shipping. He said the presence of the guerrillas made river traffic dangerous and required constant military attention. His estimate of the number of Chinese irregulars worked out at a rate of about 500 for each mile of both banks of the Yanktze between Shanghai and Nanking.

The spokesman said the movement of foreign ships would interfere with mop-up operations, and expressed suspicion that the guerillas might get munitions and other supplies if third-Power vessels were permitted to go upstream.

Foreign shipping circles meanwhile furnished the names of Japanese vessels, the dates of their passage in the Yangtze and the nature of their cargoes imported and exported while American and other third-Power shipping was prohibited.

Questioned in a press conference on these and other phases of the shipping situation, the spokesman finally made the flat statement that "the Japanese control the Yangtze and are using it for military operations."

Meanwhile, Chinese armies appeared to have fought the invaders to at least a momentary standstill on the Canton, or South China, and the Changsha, or Hunan Province, fronts. Japanese announcements made no claims to advances in either section. The major objective was to close a 450-mile gap on the Canton-Hankow Railway.

The Japanese have pushed their central front into Hunan Province, at a point about 150 miles south of Hankow and 40 miles north of Changsha since Hangow fell Oct. 26.

On the South China front, ranging from east to northeast of Canton, the Japanese said they controlled all territory within a radius of from 20 to 40 miles from Canton, including Samshui, 20 miles west and Tsungfa, 30 miles northeast. The Chinese had reported recapturing Samshui and Tsungfa in a counter-offensive launched soon after the Oct. 21 capitulation of Canton.

East of Hankow and southeast along the Yangtze, the Japanese were attempting to mop up remnants of the army that failed to block their entry into Hankow after Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek withdrew his main forces.

The Japanese reported capture of Yingshan, at the base of the Tapieh Mountains 85 miles east of Hankow and near the border of Anhwei Province. Columns advanced on the die-hard force of Chinese from three directions and the battle was said to have lasted two days.

Jinrikishas Carry Refugees and Iron From Hankow.

By the Associated Press.

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 19.—The vanguard of a procession of jinrikishas bearing refugees and scrap iron from fallen Hankow was reported today to have reached Ichang, having traveled 250 miles west of the former provisional capital of the Chinese.

Before Hankow fell Oct. 26, 7000 of the two-wheeled, coolie-drawn vehicles were commandeered. They carried whole families and quantities of manhole covers, sewer gratings, stove parts and other iron articles.

The iron was said to have been removed to prevent the Japanese from using it as war material.

Delayed dispatches telling of the broadening of Japanese aerial warfare said the French Catholic mission at Ichang was damaged in a bombardment on Thursday. Ten bombs were said to have hit the mission hospital and the cathedral, killing 40 Chinese and wounding 30. No foreigners were injured.

In a bombardment of Sian, capital of Shensi Province, yesterday three bombs were said to have fallen in the doctors' compound of the British hospital but caused no casualties.

(Japanese, reporting to Shanghai on this raid, said the military and Communist headquarters was struck.)

Japanese Report Successes Against Guerrillas in North China.

PEIPING, Nov. 19.—Japanese army communiques recounted today successes against Chinese guerrillas over much of North China during the week.

The Japanese reported capture of the Central Hopeh guerrilla headquarters without severe fighting. No casualties were mentioned, indicating the Chinese force escaped intact. The Japanese admitted that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Governor for Hopeh, Zu Chung-lin, got away, but said they captured his wireless station.

In Northern Shansi Province the Japanese said they captured Yangkao, inside the Great Wall, killing 52 Chinese and taking 38 prisoners. In Southern Shansi 2000 Chinese were said to have been surrounded and to have lost 500 killed and 100 prisoners, while only seven Japanese were wounded.

A campaign along the Tsinan-Tsingtao railway in Shantung Province was said to have resulted in death for more than 700 guerrillas. The Japanese lost seven killed and 20 injured.

PLEA TO SAVE JOBS OF 450,000 ON W P A SENT TO ROOSEVELT

Workers' Alliance Chief Says He's Loathe to Believe Thousands Will Be Fired in Midwinter.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—David Lasser, national president of the Workers' Alliance of America, asked President Roosevelt today not to lay off 450,000 WPA workers.

This number is in danger of being discharged, he said in a telegram, because of a presidential order that present Works Progress funds must last until Feb. 28, instead of Jan. 31, as permitted by law.

"We are loath to believe," Lasser told the President, "that your administration would throw onto the streets hundreds of thousands of needy unemployed in the middle of the winter."

The Workers' Alliance is a union which includes WPA workers.

WIFE OF PHYSICIAN SWEARS TO ASSAULT

Testifies After Husband Admits Planning Abduction of Man She Accuses.

By the Associated Press.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Nov. 19.—Mrs. Elizabeth Kevin Berry, 27 years old, swore from the witness stand today that she was criminally assaulted by Irving Baker, former Coast Guard officer, whom her husband is accused of abducting and torturing.

Mrs. Berry's recital of events she said occurred on a lonely wooded road early on the morning of Last July 5 followed admission by her 50-year-old husband, Dr. Kent W. Berry, that he planned the abduction of Baker.

Baker denied repeatedly on the witness stand yesterday that he attacked Mrs. Berry. She said Baker volunteered to take her home from a Fourth of July party near Olympia. They left about 6 o'clock in the morning.

She related that after driving about a quarter of a mile, Baker turned into a side road, in a heavily wooded section, and assaulted her.

Her husband, and three other men are on trial charged with kidnaping and torturing Baker the night of Aug. 19.

NOTRE DAME WINS 8TH IN ROW, BEATING NORTHWESTERN, 9-7

HOFER BOOTS FIELD GOAL IN THIRD PERIOD AND OVERCOMES PURPLE LEAD

Quarterback Also Scores Touchdown for Layden's Team, Running 65 Yards After Intercepting a Pass —Evanston Eleven Counts After 45-Yard March.

By the Associated Press.

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 19.—Notre Dame's "Fighting Irish," striving for national championship honors they last achieved under Knute Rockne in 1930, cleared the semi-final hurdle in their path by conquering a stubborn Northwestern eleven, 9 to 7, today before a sell-out crowd of 48,500.

Southern California, to be played in Los Angeles Dec. 3, remains the last obstacle ahead of Notre Dame in the championship drive, with eight straight victories already in the throne room.

The name of Willard Hofer, a 22-year-old second string, unheralded quarterback of Rock Island, Ill., where his mother and father operate a resaurant, must be gloriously written in the victory of the Irish. In two smooth maneuvers, typical of the Irish rise to football emergencies, young Hofer scored all the points that whipped Northwestern.

In the second period, Hofer intercepted a pass and ran it back 65 yards for a touchdown. In the third period, with the Irish trailing 7 to 6, he kicked a goal from placement squarely between the uprights from the 20-yard line to give Notre Dame victory by its closest margin of the year.

The nine points young Hofer scored in his twin efforts were enough to offset the touchdown that Jack McGurn, Northwestern fullback, scored in a two-yard plunge atfer the Cats had marched 49 yards. It was young Hofer's biggest day of his career. He is a senior. Previous to this season, he was third string quarterback—and didn't even win a letter last year.

Today's savagely played game was typical of the Irish-Wildcat rivalry that has existed for 49 years. For longer moments than Notre Dame and its cohorts care to remember, Northwestern dominated the first half, gaining 205 yards to 77 for Notre Dame, and registering 11 first downs to four.

The Irish carried the ball into Northwestern territory only once, and then only to the 48-yard line, while the Wildcats had no fewer than five chances to score.

In the first half, the Wildcats staged marches of 37, 38, 48, 26 and 49 yards toward the Irish goal, finally on the last assault, they managed to score and take the lead when Nick Conteas kicked the extra point after McGurn had plunged two yards for a touchdown.

The crack first teams failed to score in the first period. At the start of the second, Coach Elmer Layden rushed in his second string outfit. So did Coach Waldorf of the Wildcats and the fireworks began to pop. The Wildcat youngsters, sparked by Paul Soper, marched to Notre Dame's 10-yard line but failed to score. The Irish punted to their own 47-yard strip, from which point young Hofer swung into action.

On second down, Soper hurled a pass intended for Ted Grefe. Hofer cut in ahead of the Wildcat end, snatched the ball on his own 33-yard line and started out to dig his way through pay dirt.

The huge crowd jumped to its feet. Down the right side of the field Hofer tore behind perfect blocking. Ahead of him was Jay Laskay, Northwestern fullback, the only man between him and the goal line. But Paul Morrison, Notre Dame substitute back, plunged into Laskay knocking him flat, and Hofer tore on unmolested. Morrison's try for goal was wide, making the score Notre Dame 6, and Northwestern 0.

Northwestern's first team came racing back on the field. McGurn returned the kickoff 23 yards and the Wildcats were on their way. Then Notre Dame's first team returned to the fray, but they could not stops the 'Cats.

With Bernie Jefferson, Northwestern crack Negro half, Ollie Hahnenstein and Jack McGurn smashing and passing, the Wildcats registered a first down on the 2-yard line. McGurn went over on the first play that culminated a 49-yard march. Conteas kicked the goal and the Wildcats led, 7 to 6.

In the third period, the Irish marched 29 yards to the Wildcats' 10-yard stripe. Three times the Notre Dame backs ploughed into the Northwestern line without gaining. On fourth down Hofer, rushing back into the fray, put the game on the end of his toe, booting a field goal from placement from the 20-yard line, with Bob Saggau holding the ball, to give the Irish a 2-point edge.

After that a tight Notre Dame defense checked and bottled up all attempts of the Wildcats to score. Outstanding in a losing battle was Jefferson, playing his last intercollegiate game, who gained more ground than any of the halfbacks. He played brilliantly on defense and punted sensationally.

Hahnenstein, playing in place of the injured Jack Ryan, also sparkled for the Wildcats. Zontini, Saggau, Sheridan and Thesing were great ball carriers for the Irish, but they never were able to get into the clear for long runs.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Fogging the Issue.

WHETHER Henry Armstrong's cut mouth has healed, whether he is physically "burned out," whether his sacro-iliac joint is now sound, or whether the fight has been pre-arranged—are conjectures that seem to be fogging pre-match discussions of the St. Louis Negro's coming welter title bout with Filipino Ceferino Garcia, scheduled at New York next Thursday.

Boxing clairvoyants are all tremulous about Henry's chances, to hear them talk. Our guess is that they are camouflaging, in order to keep the odds against Henry from shortening still further. No fun betting on a guy when you have to put up three to win one.

Ordinarily the situation would be clear enough—just a matter of "form," like this: Ross beat Garcia (three times); Armstrong beat Ross (badly); ergo, Armstrong should defeat Ceferino. Seems simple.

But not to the forecasters. They contend (so the typewriter beaters record) that—

The mouth injuries suffered by Armstrong in his fight with Ambers have not fully healed (although months have elapsed) and that this is shown by the special headgear he has worn in training.

The sacro-iliac injury suffered by Henry in training and which caused the postponement of the fight date from Nov. 2 to Nov. 25, can't have been fully cured.

The fact that one man controls the matchmaking of both fighters—and would like to have Garcia win this title—suggests that there may be a hen on.

Whether any or all of the above suspicions are fact or whether Armstrong has burned out his physique by his too-strenuous style is your guess—for guess is all that it can be. Possibly all are true; probably not one is.

Unless Henry plans to fight

ARMY SCORES FIRST VICTORY OVER PRINCETON

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 19.—Army at last knows the glory of a victory over the Princeton Tiger on the football field.

After 45 years, a span that found the two natural rivals playing only eight games with the Tigers thrice tied but never kicked into defeat by the Army mule, the Cadets marched through the rain before 40,000 soaked spectators today to a 19-7 triumph that left no one in doubt as to their full superiority.

The Army line, led by Bob Little from South Gate, Ky., a 175-pound guard who did about everything but steal the stadium and stop the rain that ranged from a drizzle to a pelting storm, was the big difference between the teams. The Cadet forward held the fine Tiger backs to a total of 35 yards by rushing, a stone wall that was only penetrated by Dave Allerdice's fine passing and a great catch by Tom Mountain that netted the Tigers their only touchdown.

The Cadets, sparked by a fine aerial attack and slashing runs and punt returns by Art Frontczak, Charley Long and Woodrow Wilson, never were headed. They scored in the first, second and third periods.

Bucking, passing, skirting the ends and plunging, they opened with a 68-yard march that failed by five yards to score but the drive ultimately produced their first touchdown. Rushed by the Cadet forwards, Mountain tried to punt from behind his goal and in plowed Johnny Samuel to block the kick. Little fell on the ball behind the Tiger goal for the touchdown and Long booted the extra point.

Princeton hardly had its mitts on the ball in that initial period but in the second the Tigers came back with a 41-yard drive to tie the score. The old Statue of Liberty Play, with Mountain running the ball, was good for 31 yards to the Cadet 10-yard line. Allerdice tossed

Minnesota Captures Big Ten Title, Defeating Badgers, 21-0

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 19.—Minnesota's mighty men, with a devastating running attack that produced three touchdowns and a second straight Big Ten championship, exploded Wisconsin's long-cherished dream of a football empire today.

Before a crowd of 39,000 spectators in Randall Stadium, the Golden Gophers routed the bewildered Badgers, 21 to 0, achieving the spectacular triumph with a bruising, rushing game that stunned thousands of Badger fans who had hoped to see Wisconsin win its first conference title in 26 years.

Minnesota's decisive victory gave it a season record of four victories and one defeat. Michigan's defeat of Ohio State aided the Gophers toward undisputed possession of the title.

Exactly 10 years ago Minnesota nosed Wisconsin out of a gridiron title with a hard-fought 6 to 0 victory. Today the Gophers again wrecked the Badger hopes, this time with a smooth yet relentless and machinelike performance that left Wisconsin few openings.

Badger Threat.

Only once did the Badgers threaten seriously, driving to the Minnesota 6-yard line in the final period. Then a pass interception ruined the hope of avoiding a shutout.

Minnesota failed to score in the opening period only because Wisconsin's line held Gopher backs to only four yards on as many plays to give Wisconsin possession on downs at its own 1-yard line. But the Minnesota power offensive, with Gopher forwards slashing big holes in the Badger line, was not long to be denied.

With less than three minutes of the half remaining, Minnesota took possession at the Wisconsin 27-yard line after a short punt. On the first play Larry Buhler smashed through left tackle, cleverly sidestepped the Wisconsin safety man and raced across the goal line. After a scoreless third period which saw Buhler injured, the Gophers turned the game into a rout.

With sophomore Bob Paffrath streaking 18 yards to highlight the march, Minnesota drove 33 yards to the Badger 12-yard line. Then George Franck, speedy halfback, knifed through left tackle for a touchdown, carrying two Badgers on his back in his final stride.

Gophers Score Again.

Again, with less than three minutes of the game remaining, Minnesota scored again. A long pass, Harold Van Every to George Nash, carried the Gophers to the Wisconsin 17-yard line. Franck got five at tackle and then Marty Christiansen, who had replaced Buhler, crashed 12 yards through center to score, getting great blocking which featured Minnesota's game all afternoon.

Minnesota's superiority was reflected by the statistics. The Gophers made 12 first downs to seven for Wisconsin and piled up 251 yards by rushing to Wisconsin's 118. The victors tried only three passes but completed two of them as Wisconsin made good on five of 19, most of them in midfield territory.

Howard Weiss, ace Wisconsin fullback, played brilliantly, making the longest Badger gain of the day as he sprinted 28 yards after taking a short pass in the third period.

Michigan Downs Ohio State, 18-0.

By the Associated Press.
By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 19.—Michigan's prowling Wolverines, impotent against Ohio State for four years, turned at long last today to beat the bucks, 18 to 0, in the season's finale before a crowd of 67,554.

The defeat, the most decisive suffered by one of Coach Francis A. Schmidt's teams in his five years here, knocked the Buckeyes out of a share of the Western Conference crown.

Thrilling as the contest was, it offered only a prelude to a bigger and better post-game battle between Ohio and Michigan partisans, who clashed under the goal posts as the invaders attempted to tear them down in celebration of the victory.

The steel posts, set in concrete, were bent out of shape by the surging throng, while the participants suffered scores of black eyes, scratches and bashed noses. Torn clothing was common, and several of the gladiators were carried to the sidelines while their mates continued the fight, which lasted for 45 minutes after the game ended.

The Wolverines, who had failed to score in the last four years against Ohio, while the Bucks were rolling up 114 points converted two intercepted passes and a recovered fumble into touchdown thrusts to end their long scoring drouth.

OKLAHOMA GAINS BIG SIX TITLE; BEATS IOWA STATE

YALE BOWS TO HARVARD, 7-0, BEFORE 62,000

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 19.—A heavily favored Harvard football team that had been outkicked, outrushed, outfought and generally outplayed for three periods clicked for one relentless 80-yard scoring drive in the final quarter today to beat Yale, 7-0, and light the Crimson flares of victory in the Yale Bowl for the first time since 1930.

For better than three-fourths of this ball game, witnessed by a crowd of 62,000 that first sat through a drizzle and then through a downpour, the Crimson's complex backfield maneuvers were short-circuited effectively by a combination of the weather and a savage Yale defense.

Given the ball on their 20-yard line after Johnny Miller's attempted field goal for Yale from the 27-yard line had fallen far short of its mark, the Harvards lost a yard in two shots at the spirited Eli line. Then Frank Foley, chief figure in Harvard's 13-6 triumph a year ago dropped back and fired a short pass over the middle to Torbert MacDonald.

The Crimson speedster, snaring the ball on his 25-yard line, sped to the 40-yard line before he was hauled down. Again Yale smeared one play for no gain, but it was merely holding off the inevitable, for MacDonald cracked the middle for five yards and Foley, starting from far behind the line of scrimmage, ripped around the Eli left end for nine yards and first down on Yale's 46-yard line.

This time Joe Gardella ploughed over guard for three, and then MacDonald, breaking over Yale's right tackle like a startled antelope, sprinted 33 yards before Gil Humphrey ran him out of bounds on the Yale 10-yard line. Once more there was a brief delay, as Gardella could get no more than two at the line, before Foley, running to his right, shot the touchdown pass into the end zone to MacDonald, who grabbed the ball out of the clutching arms of Eddie Collins Jr., Yale's defensive left halfback.

That, plus Chief Boston's handsome placement for the extra point kicked just as the rain was at its worst, was the ball game. As such, it marked the successful end to a Harvard season that began with four straight defeats and finished with four straight victories that took in Princeton, other member of the Big Three.

The defeat terminated the worst campaign any Yale team ever has experienced. Playing an all-major game schedule, Ducky Pond's boys in blue beat only Navy and Brown and lost to Columbia, Pennsylvania, Dartmouth, Michigan, Princeton and Harvard.

SCORE 10-0; PASS LEADS TO SOONERS' TOUCHDOWN

By the Associated Press.

AMES, Ia., Nov. 19.—Oklahoma's football powerhouse, short circuited on the ground by the brilliant defense play of an underdog Iowa State eleven, took to the air today and scored a 10 to 0 victory which gave the Sooners their first Bi Six championship.

A record crowd of 21,500 saw the Southlanders end their conference campaign unscored upon and hand the gallant Iowans their first defeat in 11 starts.

Figured as only mild opposition for the Sooners, the Cyclones checked threat after threat with vicious line play, but saw their own slim chances wafted away by mechanical errors.

Razzle Dazzle Backfires.

The Sooners scored a touchdown in the opening period and sewed up the game in the third with field goal. The rest of the time they were butting their heads against a stone wall.

Late in the first period, shortly after little Everett Kischer had sent Cyclone fans into a frenzy by galloping 25 yards around his right end to the Iowa State yard line, a Cyclone razzle-dazzle play backfired.

Kischer made a short behind-the line pass to Chuck Heileman, who tossed the ball back toward Kischer. Kischer wasn't there and John Shirk, Sooner end, smothered the ball on the Iowa State 36-yard line.

Hugh McCullough then shot flanker pass to Bill Jennings, who picked his way through a broken field to the Cyclone 1-yard mark. On the next play Bob Seymour drove over the goal and Raphael Boudreau booted the extra point.

McCullough Boots Goal.

In the third period, McCullough made a pretty 17-yard punt return to the Iowa State 44-yard line. Another flanker pass, McCullough t Earl Crowder, advanced the ball to the Iowa State 14-yard mark where the Cyclones dug in to pile up running plays and slap down passes. On fourth down McCullough dropped back to the 20-yard line to boot the place kick which ended the scoring for the day.

The Oklahoma line today weathered its most severe test since the opening game with Rice. The Cyclones rushed 87 yards, approximately 50 yards more than the average of the other Sooner opponents.

Iowa State made nine first downs to seven for the Sooners. Oklahoma, however, had a slight edge in yards by rushing, 91 to 87, and a substantial margin in passing gains, 111 to 78.

TIGERS TALLY IN EVERY PERIOD TO GAIN STATE CHAMPIONSHIP HONORS

Billikens Complete Seven Out of 20 Passes for 58 Yards, but Five Are Intercepted and Pave Way for Winner's Last Two Touchdowns.

By J. Roy Stockton

Power on land and in the air, a tight defense, excellent deception and a well-defined attack are great weapons on the football field and the alert Missouri Tigers showed all those assets as they defeated the St. Louis University Billikens at Walsh Stadium yesterday afternoon, 26 to 0 to win the State championship before a crowd of 8500 persons.

Coach Cecil Muellerleile's blue-clad Billikens fought hard against the stronger enemy, but in the face of the powerful Missouri line the St. Louis attack crumpled like an egg shell against a stone wall and from the opening thud of toe against pigskin until the final bark of the official's pistol, which sounded as a Tiger was intercepting a Billiken pass, there was no doubt about the outcome.

Seemingly without opening the throttle of their attacking machine very wide, the Tigers methodically drove over the turf for a touchdown in each 15-minute period and only on rare occasions was it necessary for Don Faurot's sturdy warriors to dig into the turf with their goal line seriously in danger.

Five Passes Intercepted.

The Billikens were stopped not only on land, but in the air, and while the St. Louis aerial attack did net a total of 58 yards on seven completed passes out of 20 attempted, the aerial thrusts boomeranged against Muellerleile's team, as five of the Billiken passes were intercepted and turned to the advantage of Old Mizzou.

The Tigers, scoring more points than in any previous game this season, showed a versatile attack, mixing cut-back plays with passes effectively, hitting the line and skirting the wings, to gain a total of 211 yards from scrimmage and 89 on 11 completed passes out of 16 attempted.

Taking the open kick-off on their 6-yard line, the Tigers scored the first touchdown after 6½ minutes of playing, with a business-like drive of 64 yards, interrupted momentarily by a penalty for holding which necessitated the regaining of 15 yards.

Paul Christman, the multi-threat quarterback of the Tigers, who has been a prominent factor in all Missouri triumphs this year, made the final one-foot plunge that turned the drive into a score, and Les Pieper place-kicked the extra point to make the score 7 to 0.

Lateral Pass by Christman on Punt Return Sets Up Second Touchdown

Excellent deception figured in the second Tiger touchdown, Faurot's men turning to a trick they had discussed frequently, but which had not been tried before. Late in the opening period, Christman took a punt well in his own territory, started across field and then cleverly lateralled to Jim Starmer, who ran 46 yards to the St. Louis' 24-yard line before the confused Billikens could rally their forces. That drive bogged down, the Billikens taking the ball on downs, but the surprising lateral paid a dividend in the form of the second period touchdown.

Bill Amelung took the Billiken punt this time, near midfield, started across field and the Billikens thought he was going to lateral to a teammate. Amelung, instead, merely faked the lateral and with the Billikens sweeping after the Tiger who had no ball at all, Amelung sped down the west side of the field until he had reached the Blue and White 10-yard line.

It didn't take long to put it over, Amelung making the final thrust. Pieper, after two off-side plays, converted the extra point with a place-kick and Missouri led, 14 to 0.

After 8½ minutes of the third period, the ubiquitous Christman intercepted a pass and lateralled to Porter Robb, who ran to the Billiken 27-yard line. After a smoothly-functioning attack took the ball to the 10-yard mark, Starmer negotiated the remaining yardage for the third touchdown.

Final Drive to Pay Territory.

The final period was drawing to a close when Clarence Hydron intercepted a St. Louis pass and the Tigers made their final touchdown drive, covering 41 yards, with Amelung going over from the one-yard line.

So smoothly did the Missouri machine function throughout the afternoon that it seemed to make little difference what Tiger combination was in the backfield. When Christman retired, Amelung carried on and Hydron and Robb and Bob Faurot and all the other backs shared in the easily-gained triumph.

For the Billikens, Denny Cochran, as might have been expected, distinguished himself. Once he fell back and faked a pass, drew the Tigers out of position and then cut through for a 17-yard gain. But only rarely were the Billikens able to penetrate the sturdy Missouri forward wall and never were they strong enough to get past the secondary.

A Missouri fumble gave the Billikens their best scoring chance early in the final period. On a lateral pass, Red Drabelle tackled Amelung vigorously and Bill dropped the ball. Mel Aussieker recovering for St. Louis on the Tiger 7-yard line. So alert was the Missouri pass defense that even when the Bills completed an aerial, Aussieker to Gall, it meant a seven-yard loss instead of a gain.

Lose Ball on Downs.

Aussieker had better luck with the next toss, to Roemer, on the Tiger five-yard line, but a fumble lost three yards on the next play and when a completed pass, Roemer to Sexton, still left the necessary 10 yards uncovered, the Tigers took the ball on downs and the only serious Billiken threat had been repulsed.

So quickly and efficiently did the Tigers take command of the situation that Coach Faurot did not have to use Myron Counsil, one of his many star backs recently uncovered. Counsil already had played in eight games (one "B" team game) and as Bix Six conference rules permit an athlete to compete in only nine, Faurot wanted to save Counsil and did save him for the important Thanksgiving day contest with Kansas.

Coach Jimmy Conzelman of Washington U. and his assistant coaches witnessed the game and undoubtedly found comfort in the fact that the Tigers were able to score twice as many touchdowns and points against the Billikens as they had registered against the Bears.

C. B. C. TRIMS WESTERN, 3-0, FOR PREP TITLE

The Purple and Gold of Christian Brothers College reigns supreme again in Preparatory School football competition for Coach Bill Klemm's gridders rang down the curtain on an undefeated 1938 season by turning back a stubborn Western Military Academy eleven yesterday afternoon at C. B. C., 3-0.

A last period field goal, with only five minutes of play left, booted by left end Bob Stuber from the 5-yard line, spelled victory for the Hi-Pointers. A tie score would have resulted in a tie for the title with St. Louis U. High and a defeat would have awarded the championship to the junior Billikens.

Western was unable to penetrate C. B. C. territory beyond the 27-yard stripe.

Early in the second quarter, C. B. C. was forced to relinquish the ball on downs on the Western 1-foot line, from where the Cadets kicked out of danger.

The march which placed the ball in position for Stuber's kick started from the C. B. C. 32-yard stripe. A forward and lateral, Dan Murphy to Stuber who lateralled to right half Bill Johnson took the ball 39 yards, the longest gain of the afternoon, to the Cadet 29-yard line. Murphy again passed to Stuber on the 12-yard mark. Murphy hit the center of the line three times to take the ball to the 5-yard line and directly in front of the Western goal. With three yards to go for first down, substitute quarterback Jim Pickering elected to attempt a field goal. Pickering himself holding the ball as Stuber kicked it perfectly from placement.

Western fell only one behind C. B. C. in first downs, the Cadets getting 10 to 11 for the Brothers. However most of Western's gains were on unsustained drives in midfield while C. B. C. put on three drives in enemy territory.

Quarterback Ed Hagenauer, with several nice gains off right tackle, and on the throwing end of four completed passes to full back Doug Deacon and left end Latham carried the brunt of the Western attack.

California Beats Stanford on "Break," 6-0, Before 82,000

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 19.—University of California's Bears, making a last-ditch stand for a chance at the Coast Conference championship and the Rose Bowl bid, scored a fourth period touchdown and a 6-0 victory today over their oldest football rivals, the Stanford Indians.

The victory assured the Bears of at least a tie for the Pacific Coast Conference championship.

Some 82,000 fans, the largest crowd in the nation for the day, saw the Bears snatch at a sudden "break" in the last quarter. It was a fumble by Fred Ledeboer, Stanford left half. Louis Smith, California's right half, grabbed the ball 27 yards from the Indians' goal.

Three plays later California turned what had appeared to be a coreless battle into glorious victory. Vic Bottari whipped the ball to Angelo Reginato, substitute end. He snagged the ball, sidestepped one tackler and crashed over the line. The winning touchdown pass and run gained 21 yards. Bottari's dropkick for the extra point was blocked.

Once a Stanford drive ended six inches from the goal line.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 19. — Oregon's Webfoots, defeated in four major games this season, turned up rejuvenated today to whip the University of Washington Huskies, 3-0, before 20,000 fans.

The Huskies, favorites because of their 7-6 victory over University of Southern California last week, were deep in their territory most of the second half, and at no time seriously threatened the Webfoot goal line.

COUNTRY DAY WINS FROM BURROUGHS, 26-6

Country Day took second place in the "ABC" league football standings for the "A" division yesterday afternoon when it defeated the Burroughs Bombers, 26 to 6. The victory was Country Day's second in three league starts.

Ralph Morris made both of the Country Day scores in the first quarter. He scored on a right end run from the three-yard line after Carl Lawton had carried the ball from the Burroughs' 40-yard line to the Burroughs' three-yard line. He made his second touchdown when he took a short pass from Henry Carter. Charles Edison went off tackle for the extra point.

In the closing minutes of the second quarter, Morris, standing on his own 30-yard line passed to Jim Peckham on the Burroughs' 15-yard line who carried it over for the score. An end run by Lawton scored the extra point.

A pass from Henry Carter to Carl Lawton scored the last Country Day score in the third quarter. The try for the extra point failed.

Dick Hume made the sole Burroughs score in the last quarter when he took a spinner from Bobo Simmons on the Country Day one-yard line.

Unappreciated Brooklyn College To Be Road Team

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Nov. 19.

THE footballers of little Brooklyn College today concluded they weren't appreciated on their own campus, and decided to schedule no home games for 1939. The decision was announced by Coach Lou Oshins.

Less than 100 tickets were sold to each of their four home games, and only about 200 were on hand at today's season finale against Susquehanna, won by Susquehanna, 14 to 6.

The Brooklyn boys declared a strike the other day when students refused to patronize the stadium, for which the city forgot to install seats. The college had to spend $500 for seats and Coach Oshins estimated that the school lost $250 on each game. The strike was called off for today's contest.

SOUTHERN METHODIST BEATS BAYLOR, 21 TO 6

By the Associated Press.

WACO, Tex., Nov. 19.—Southern Methodist torpedoed Baylor University's fine aerial machine here today, 21 to 6, and demolished a 22-year-old jinx under which the Mustangs never had defeated the Bears in Waco.

A first period touchdown on tricky runs and two scores via passes told only half the story of the Mustang victory, however, because Baylor's great passer, Bullet Bill Patterson, saw four vital fumbles cost his team a much bigger score.

O'BRIEN PASSES T. C. U. TO NINTH VICTORY IN ROW

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 19.—Wee Davey O'Brien played his game of games today, and unbeaten Texas Christian rode to a 29-to-7 conquest of Rice Institute's ill-fated but battling warriors.

Of the points Texas Christian scored in a breezing triumph, the 150-pound Irish Dynamo accounted for 27. Three times he hurled touchdown passes and once he lugged the ball across himself on one of many jabs into the big Rice line.

Thirty thousand fans watched Little David complete 12 of 20 passes for three touchdowns and 117 yards; run 14 times and pick up 108 yards; return five punts for 73 yards; score one touchdown; call a flawless game from his quarterback post, and kick three points after touchdowns. He stayed in the game until the last three minutes.

Score in First Four Minutes.

Only four minutes after the first kickoff the Christians started scoring, O'Brien passing from the Rice 26-yard line to Don Looney, big end, who carried on 14 yards more for the score.

It was O'Briens' magic again on the second touchdown early in the second period. His running, coupled with the tackle smashes of Connie Sparks, Earl Clark and Woodrow Duckworth, edged the Christians to the Rice 27-yard line, where he uncorked a heave over the goal line to Clark.

Rice suddenly got into the ball game when Jack Schuehle, fullback, squirmed back with the kickoff to his own 40-yard line. Scat Sullivan faked a run and tossed a long pass that E. Y. Steakley caught on the run and escorted 25 more yards for the only Rice score.

Almost before the noise had died away O'Brien and his playmates were back with the third Christian touchdown. Davey gave his finest running exhibition in alternating off tackle blasts with Sparks, moving without a hitch from the Christian 31-yard line on only seven plays to a touchdown.

Intercepted Pass.

Aldrich, who starred on both offense and defense, set up the final Christian touchdown by intercepting a Rice pass on his own 48-yard line. Sparks picked up 11 yards and O'Brien got away for 18 on a cutback over tackle. He directed a pass to Durwood Horner, end, and Steakley, Rice defender, obligingly batted it smack into Horner's hands over the goal line.

On the next to last play of the game the Christian reserves surged through and chased the great Ernie Lain past the end zone on a futile passing effort for two more points and a safety.

DUKE IS HELD TO ONE TOUCHDOWN

By the Associated Press.

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 19.—Duke's Blue Devils defeated a stubborn North Carolina State Wolfpack 7 to 0 in a game marked by numerous fumbles here today, winning a clear title to the Southern Conference championship and keeping unblemished their record of being unbeaten, untied and unscored on in the eight games they have played this season. A crowd of 11,000 fans witnessed the game.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 19.—Dick Cassiano, junior member of Pitt's "dream" backfield, dashed across the payoff line three times for touchdowns today as Pitt's rejuvenated Panthers overpowered Penn State, 26 to 0, before 14,000 chilled fans in Pitt Stadium.

Webster Scores Late to Defeat Clayton, 14-13

Webster High School's football team rushed over a touchdown and made the extra point in the final two minutes of play to defeat Clayton 14-13, yesterday afternoon at Clayton Stadium. The defeat spoiled Clayton's unbeaten record.

Trailing, 13-7, the Statesmen drove from their own 17-yard line for the winning tally. Three plays carried the ball to the Clayton 43-yard line. A pass from Dan Pacy to Wilford Winters gave the Webster eleven a first down on the Clayton 30-yard stripe and then Pacy again tossed to Winters for a first down on the two-yard line. On the first play Dick Devine scored. Pacy passed to Winters in the end zone for the extra point.

Clayton tallied in the first quarter, Ed Gleitmann carrying the ball on every play from the Webster 40-yard line. Stan Koenig dropkicked the extra point.

Webster scored next. Pacy passed to Devine and the speedy end dashed the remaining 75 yards for the tally. Pacy placekicked the extra point.

Clayton counted its second touchdown on a sustained drive in the final period from the Webster 40-yard line after Pacy fumbled.

Gleitmann again put on a one-man show to carry the ball over for the tally.

When the Chicago Steelmen play the St. Louis Gunners this afternoon at Walsh Stadium, they will be battling to maintain their hold on first place in the American Professional Football League before the drive of the St. Louis club during the past few weeks.

The Gunners have an old score to settle with the Chicago club for the 19-0 defeat they handed the locals in an early season game in Chicago. A week ago Friday the Gunners evened their score with the Louisville Tanks and now the Steelmen are the only club remaining on the debit side of the Gunners' ledger.

The burden of the Gunner offense will be upon the shoulders of Ray Johnson and Mike Sebastian. Johnson will see more action against the Steelmen Sunday than he has seen since coming here from the Chicago Bears.

He will be called upon to do the passing, kicking and line-plunging for the Gunners. Against the Tanks a week ago Friday, the former Denver U. athlete looked good in a ball carrying role.

Opposing Johnson and Sebastian in their battle for the spotlight and scoring honors will be Stan Mondala of Missouri U. and Jimmy Angelich of Alabama. Mondala is the line-plunging star of the invaders, while Angelich is the open field runner.

Supplementing their efforts for the Chicago club will be Bart Wattenberg, former U. of Chicago ace. Wattenberg's forte is passing and if he is half as good as he is reputed to be, he is the best pro passer to come here this year.

In the Chicago line will be John Weger, 235-pound former Butler star, who served for a time with the Bears and is the ace of the Chicago forward wall.

The Gunners will be at full strength for the first time in over a month. Dreher and Cagle have been given a clean bill of health by the doctor and will be ready to play most of the ball game.

Should the Gunners get within the 40-yard line early in the game Les Post will try for a field goal in order to provide the locals with an early lead. Les has kicked three field goals to date.

The kickoff is scheduled for 2:15.

Two Officials Arrive With Chicago Team.

In the Steelmen party of 38 arriving from Chicago last night were two Chicago district referees. They are John McShane (Indiana) and Nick Brunswick (Arizona). The Gunners were notified by league headquarters at Cincinnati that the visitors were entitled to name two officials and McShane and Brunswick will work here today.

A breakfast for the Chicago players will be given this morning at the M. A. A. by P. S. Lorenz, St. Louis sales agent for the steel company which the visiting team represents.

PRINCIPIA ACADEMY DEFEATS PEMBROKE AT KANSAS CITY, 7-0

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 19.—A pass from Howard Godwin to Donald Moore, fullback, brought Principia Academy of St. Louis a touchdown in the third quarter and a 7-0 victory over Pembroke-Country Day in their annual football game here today.

The victory was Principia's fifth in the series as compared to six triumphs for Pembroke.

The touchdown culminated a march down the field after Lehman blocked a punt and recovered on the Pembroke 35-yard line. Godwin twice broke through to advance the ball to the 12-yard line. Then Moore picked up 10 more yards on two plunges and the visitors surprised Pembroke with the pass over the goal line for the touchdown. Hellyer came into the game and place-kicked the extra point.

Principia took the opening kickoff, and marching to Pembroke's nine-yard line before losing the ball on downs.

FLYERS MEET MINNEAPOLIS AT ARENA TONIGHT

By W. J. McGoogan

Ching Johnson, grand old man of the ice, comes to St. Louis tonight in charge of the Minneapolis Millers, a club he is coaching in the American Hockey Association, to oppose the St. Louis Flyers.

Johnson, for many seasons the mainstay of the defense for the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, plays with the Millers in addition to coaching them despite the fact that he has been playing hockey for more years than he cares to remember.

Always noted for his rough, rugged, clean play, Johnson was cut rather badly the other night in Kansas City but after the wound had been stitched he returned to the ice to complete the game.

The Flyers, victorious in two of their three games on the road were tied with Tulsa for the league lead (prior to last night's games) with four victories in six starts.

Jean Pusie, Flyer defense man, who left the team in the north to return to his home in Canada to attend the funeral of his mother, returned to St. Louis yesterday and will be ready to play tonight.

the ball to Mountain, who made a superb catch over the Cadet goal for the score. Bob Hinchman kicked the extra point.

Army took the next kickoff and pushed the leather over after a 54-yard drive. A 31-yard pass, Wilson to Samuel, opened the doors and it was Wilson who drove over from the two-yard stripe for the score. Long's placement try for the extra point hit the lower cross bar and bounced back onto the field.

Toward the end of the third period Frontczak and Wilson took charge and cashed in for the third and final Cadet touchdown. Long's 21-yard return of Mountain's punt to the Princeton 37-yard line sparked the drive that terminated as Wilson smashed over his right tackle for the score. Again Long's extra point try was low.

IRL TUBBS INTIMATES HE'LL LEAVE IOWA

By the Associated Press.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Nov. 19.—Three University of Iowa football players said tonight that Coach Irl Tubbs "intimated very strongly" in his pre-game talk today he would not return as the varsity coach next fall.

The players, two juniors and one senior who performed in Iowa's 14-0 loss to Nebraska, said Tubbs, who came here two years ago from Miami (Fla.) University, told them he would "take fond memories of the 1938 team" when he left Iowa.

Backfield Coach Ernie Nevers told the squad, the players said, that "there's your tip, boys."

Time of halves—45 minutes.

Holder of the United States soccer championship, the Sparta eleven of Chicago, winner of six straight contests this season, will face the Burkes of the St. Louis League, in the opening game for the Peel Cup at West Side Park this afternoon. Play begins at 2:30 o'clock.

While the Burkes and Sparta are meeting here, the Lindells, St. Louis' other professional club, will be in the Windy City battling the Manhattans.

Next Sunday, the schedule will be reversed, with the Lindells playing here and the Burkes in Chicago. Total goals for the two contests will decide the series, with the winners to play in the final.

Burkes Strengthened.

In a game played in the Windy City earlier in the season, Sparta won from the Burkes, 3 goals to 2. Since then however, the Burkes have added the veteran Alec McNab and Bill Watson, one of the finest center halfbacks in the country. They'll be in action against the national champions this afternoon. The Burkes have been slowly rounding into top condition and are expected to give the U. S. title holders a real argument.

The star of the Chicago team and the man the Burkes will have to guard closely is Jimmy McDermott, center forward. Regarded as one of the outstanding goal-getters in the West, McDermott transformed Sparta from a defensive club to an offensive unit, which in its six contests this season has scored 22 goals, an average of better than 3 a game. Sparta's defense, however, is still strong, since the opposition has tallied only 10 times.

In addition to the Burkes, the Spartas have trimmed the Chicago Manhattans twice, the New York Americans, New York Brookhattans and Cleveland Slavias.

A majority of the Sparta athletes are veterans of the pastime, who have been seen in action here on more than one occasion. Included in the team are Laddie Mrnka, Tom Scott, Baba Tomich, Jimmy Wolf, Jimmy Munro and Joe Nudera.

Draw for Cup Series.

With the St. Louis clubs engaged in the Peel Cup competition for the next two weeks, the first round match in the United States Football Association championship series will be played here Dec. 4 or 11. The first round draw shows that the matches must be played on or before Dec. 11, with the Lindells drawn as the home club against the Burkes for the only first round match in the Missouri District.

In the Illinois District, the Manhattans have been drawn against the Swedish American A. A., while Sparta will meet the Olympias.

A total of 48 elevens remain in the competition for the title now held by Sparta.

Nine Teams Undefeated.

The Municipal Soccer Association teams will begin the second round of games this afternoon in the city parks with nine of the teams in senior, intermediate and junior classifications still undefeated.

Four are unbeaten among the seniors, Zeltman Service at Sherman Park; Tait & Sons and Moloney Electric of Fairground No. 2, who meet each other at 3:30 o'clock at that field; and the Gem Cleaners of the Walnut Park League.

In the intermediate division the Plaza A. C. dominates the Carondelet No. 2 division while the DeWitte Insurance and Holy Rosary elevens are unbeaten but tied in Fairground No. 3. Neither meets each other today, however.

In the Fairground junior circuits, the Parks-Norge and Andy Fredericks are without a loss, but each has been tied.

Remember Young Corbett I?

YOUNG CORBETT the Third! That takes you back to the days of real sport. Boxers so admired professional heroes that they borrowed their names to use as noms de battaile, instead of their own.

There were Young Sullivans, and Young Dempseys (after the "Nonpareil") Young Fitzsimmonses—ring hopefuls trying to scale the heights already won by the men they admired.

So many boys idolized James J. Corbett that he started a whole dynasty of his name, and of course the third of the succession fought Apostoli Friday night. His defeat just about made room for Young Corbett the fourth of this line, if there be one.

We remember the first Young Corbett—although you'll look in vain through Tom Andrews' "Battles of the Centuries" to find him, either under the name of Young Corbett or under his real name, William Rothwell.

WHAT A SENSATION he gave the world on Thanksgiving day, 1901, when he was just an unknown upstart from the West, matched with the "Terrible Terry" McGovern, demon featherweight champion of the world, at Hartford, Conn.

He had come boastfully out of the West telling how he would smack over the featherweight king—and had repeated it frequently.

In those days when an unknown voiced ideas about beating a champion it was near-blasphemy. The world got the idea that perhaps the guy must be talking to keep up his courage.

Fans of today have little notion of the extent to which popular admiration had built up McGovern. He was credited with almost supernatural prowess. He was the idol of the country and it is doubtful if John L. Sullivan at his peak produced as much newspaper "copy" in one year as Terrible Terry.

BUT ALL UNMOVED by the Terrible One's reputation, Rothwell, alias Corbett, boasted on. He even, while being escorted to the field where the ring was pitched the afternoon of the fight, paused as he passed McGovern's dressing room and, pounding on the door, yelled: "Come on out and take your beating, Terry!"

The maddened McGovern, at the gong, rushed his ice-cool foe and tried his hurricane tactics. Before the second round was over, McGovern lay on the canvas dead to the world, counted out and dethroned by his almost unknown rival.

That was probably the biggest shock ring followers had suffered since their pride and joy, the mighty John L., had fallen before the original Corbett.

Just an Oversight?

STRANGE THAT ROTHWELL'S name should be lost from the records. And yet for some years he was a prominent factor. He began to attract notice in Denver, about the year 1900. He was on his way up when early in 1901 he knocked out the then famous Kid Broad in four rounds. In the same year he also stopped the Ghetto champion, Joe Bernstein, a real tough egg, in his time.

Just to prove that his K O of McGovern was no fluke, he flattened Terry again, this time in 11 rounds, at San Francisco.

A companionable fellow, Rothwell lived high and faded early, after fighting all the very best men of his day: Jimmy Britt, Battling Nelson, Aurelio Herrera, Hick Hyland, Eddie Hanlon, Harlem Tommy Murphy, etc.

He became fat and incapable of fighting. He passed on from this world of hard knocks several years ago, down and out.

Although he defeated one of the most famous fighters in the record book, he himself seems not to have made the grade.

The Ring at Low Ebb.

IT'S EBB-TIDE in the fight world. There are few men of merit in any class. Three Negroes seem to be the only standouts of today in all the weight divisions combined — Joe Louis, John Henry Lewis and Henry Armstrong. Mediocrity rules everywhere else.

In three divisions, the class of boxers was so weak that one man, Armstrong, was able to champion all three.

The situation in the heavyweight division is so bad that the best match they could arrange for the early year was between the world champion Joe Louis and the champion of the class below, John Henry Lewis.

They're going to "fight" in January. But the show will have to have a fire built under it, because it is not a natural. Two Negroes, one a great fighter and the other, 15 pounds lighter, just a fair one, can't be expected to excite the populace.

It may be called a "title defense," but the match is just another workout to his co-managers and Mike Jacobs, who have a $500,000 match arranged for Joe next April.

MUNSKI BREAKS CUNNINGHAM'S BIG SIX RECORD

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 19.—John Munski, Missouri's durable distance runner, cracked Glenn Cunningham's record set in 1932 today by placing first in the annual Big Six two-mile outdoor track meet with a time of 9 minutes, 17.5 seconds.

Kansas State College, with 38 points, won the event for the third consecutive year.

Running in a field of 30, Munski grabbed first place at the start and did not relinquish it at any time during the event. Cunningham's mark, set while attending the University of Kansas, was 9:32.

Missouri's team turned in 71 points for second place. The University of Kansas was third with 81. Iowa State placed fourth with 90, Nebraska was fifth with 92 and Oklahoma was sixth with 95.

Ray Harris of Kansas trailed Munski to take second place among the runners. George Hofsess of Kansas State was third.

Other leaders in the order of their finish were: John Brownlee, Nebraska; Charles Mitchell, Kansas State; Ernest Klann, Kansas; ThaineHigh, Kansas State; Paul Clingham, Kansas State, and Lewelyn Hughes, Iowa State.

OTIS THOMAS AND TOLES CONSIDERED AS OPPONENTS FOR GALENTO

Matchmaker Larry Atkins is considering using The Arena if the proposed boxing show featuring Two-Ton Tony Galento, scheduled for Dec. 8, materializes.

Atkins insists that the appearance of Galento in St. Louis is still in the preliminary stages. He states he has not as yet received Galento's signed contract from Joe Jacobs and will not attempt to sign an opponent until the articles are in his possession. He talked with Jacobs over the phone in New York Friday and made a verbal agreement.

Otis Thomas, broad-shouldered Negro, and Roscoe Toles, kayo conquerer of Jimmie Adamick, are under consideration for the bout.

Otis Thomas, according to his Eastern handlers, has won three straight bouts in the East since leaving St. Louis during the summer months.

Two Foes for Zaharias.

RAIN FORCES WITHDRAWALS IN $2500 RACE

Only Five Horses Start—Clodion Takes Third After Making Bid in First Six Furlongs.

By the Associated Press.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 19. — Mrs. Louise Viau's Conquer and Mrs. A. J. Abel's Honey Cloud galloped through a mile and a sixteenth of mud and rain today to finish in a dead heat in the sixteenth running of the $2500 added Prince George Autumn Handicap, featuring Bowie's program.

Despite the weather conditions, about 10,000 fans turned out for the first Saturday card of the Bowie meeting. In fact, the weather had more effect on the horses than on the fans, for rain forced wholesale withdrawals from the entry list and only five went to the post.

Honey Cloud, a one-time $2500 plater, set all the early pace, fighting off W. A. Carter's Clodion in the first six furlongs. Then Johnny Gilbert brought Conquer up on the outside around the bend and a little to the fore as they straightened out for home. Honey Cloud came back again, however, and they stayed together like a pair of postage stamps all the way to the wire. Clodion wound up an easy third.

Conquer, winner of five straight races before failing in a sprint in his last outing, was favored and paid $2.60 win price, $3.00 show and $2.50 place in the split pool. Honey Cloud returned $3.30, $4.00 and $2.90. They shared first and second money from the purse, each earning $1332.50.

Vana Defeats McClure, Hendry

Continuing his fine table tennis tactics, Bohumil Vana, 18-year-old Czechoslovakian, experienced little trouble and disposed of both Jimmy McClure of Indianapolis and George Hendry of St. Louis in the feature singles matches last night before 700 persons at the St. Louis U. gymnasium. It was the concluding performance of a two-night stand here.

Vana, holder of the world's singles championship, defeated McClure, co-holder of the world's doubles title with Sol Schiff of New York, 21-14, 19-21, 21-16. Hendry dropped his match, 24-22, 21-18.

In the feature doubles match Vana and Sandor Glancz, a fellow countryman of Vana but now of New York City, lost to Bud Blattner, St. Louis, and McClure, 23-21, 18-21, 21-14.

Results of the other exhibition matches on the program: William Price, St. Louis, defeated Jack O'Connor, Miami, Fla., 21-16, 21-19; McClure defeated Glancz, 19-21, 22-20, 21-18; Blattner defeated Glancz, 21-17, 21-18; Bernard Grimes, New York, defeated Garrett Nash, St. Louis, 21-15, 21-16; Price defeated Blattner, 23-21.

The troupe moved on to Topeka, Kan., after last night's exhibition matches.

VOTING IS STARTED TO NAME "MOST VALUABLE" HIGH SCHOOL PLAYER

Voting has started for the "most valuable" St. Louis district school football player, the contest being sponsored by the St. Louis Football Officials' Association. A cup will be awarded the school to which the honored player goes and is to be held for one year. The player chosen will be presented with a medal as a permanent award.

The award will be made under the following rules:

Each high school squad is to select its own "most valuable" star, the school coach being in charge of the voting.

Each coach also will select a player in the district who, in the coach's opinion, is of the most value to his team.

A card has been sent to all schools for voting purposes and selections are to be in the hands of the secretary of the Officials' Association not later than Nov. 30. Active members of the association then will vote on their choices and the player receiving the greatest vote total will receive the award.

LYLE ARRIVES FOR BOUT WITH MOORE TUESDAY

Ray Lyle, Barberton (O.) middleweight, arrived yesterday and engaged in a workout at the West End gymnasium in preparation for the feature 10-round bout on Jackie Callahan's boxing card Tuesday night at the Coliseum, in which he will oppose Archie Moore, St. Louis Negro.

Fans will see an improved Moore in action. Archie left here last winter with three pro victories under his belt and since fighting out in California rings he has made a national reputation for himself.

The young Negro, who whipped Sam Christian, Carl Lautenschlager and Deacon Logan in successive bouts here, knocked out Jim Brent, Ray Vargas, Johnny Sikes, Lorenzo Pedro and Bobby Yannes in Pacific Coast battles. He lost to Johnny Romero on a decision. He later stopped Romero in eight rounds.

In the eight-round semifinal, Clarence Jones, St. Louis, will meet Virgil Clark, Chicago, in a Negro light-heavyweight bout.

In two sixes, Jack Conway will face Dave Stanfield and Bob LaMonte of Chicago, will tangle with Jimmy Fields. A four-rounder will complete the card.

SILVERETTE DEFEATS FAVORED CARDINALIS IN NARRAGANSETT RACE

By the Associated Press.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Nov. 19.—G. Watts' Silverette, an eight-year-old mare which apparently enjoys a sloppy track, today whipped the favorite, Cardinalis, in the $1500 Jamestown Handicap at Narragansett Park—feature attraction of the last day of racing this year in New England.

Taking the lead soon after the start as 25,000 fans watched ,Silverette never was headed. She finished the six-furlong race a length and a half in front of Cardinalis, owned by P. L. Kelley. Six lengths back, in show position, came Mrs. Frank Rossiter's Marson. The time was 1:12 3-5.

Jockey C. Dickey, up on Silverette, rated the mare well and held off the favorite, which gained second place in the run down the back stretch of the rain-soaked track and stayed there until the end. Marson ran steadily throughout, beating Charles Gentry's Play Dis by five lengths.

Silverette paid $6.10, $3.40 and $2.90. Cardinalis returned $3.40 and $2.90 and Marson paid $4.20.

SONJA HENIE WILL ARRIVE TOMORROW

Sonja Henie will arrive in St. Louis tomorrow morning and after luncheon will be taken to the Arena where she will supervise preparatory work for her Hollywood Ice Revue opening Tuesday night and continuing through Saturday.

Coming from Houston, Tex., Miss Henie will get off the train at Tower Grove Station at 11:15 a. m. and go to the Chase Hotel for luncheon.

Accompanying her will be her mother, Mrs. Selma Henie; her brother, Leif; Harry Losee and Robert Linden, director and assistant director, respectively, of the revue; and three personal maids.

Her company of 100 skating dancers will continue to Union Station, as they will stay at midtown hotels.

Remains With Cast.

Miss Henie was scheduled to fly here from Houston, where the show concluded a seven-night run Saturday; but she declined, saying she preferred to travel with the cast, so she could play cards and table tennis.

This will mark the first time Miss Henie has come to St. Louis with her own show. She made an exhibition appearance here in April, 1936, prior to her entrance in the movies.

The revue, which is in 22 scenes, will open with a winter fashion display. In the second number, four pairs of skaters present a bit of jazz, titled "Stompin at the Savoy." Following is comedy relief by Jimmy Sisk and Bernard Lyman, after which the ensemble will be seen skating the Susie-Q, Truckin, Boogie Walk, the Rhumba, Shag and the Lambeth Walk.

Miss Henie makes her first appearance in the fifth number, executing dance excerpts from her various motion pictures. Other numbers follow, then Miss Henie makes her second appearance, supported by the entire cast, in a springtime novelty. Then follows "The Snow Maiden Ballet," from the opera by Rimsky-Korsakov, which is said to encompass the most intricate dance patterns of the presentation.

Technical Achievement.

Making her third entrance, Miss Henie is heralded as reaching her finest flight in this episode, in which she executes every technical feat within the range of the skater to the strains of Liszt's "Liebestraum."

Miss Henie's fourth appearance is in a fast tango with Stewart Reburn, Canadian skating ace, after which 16 members of the cast, in a bizarre torch-bearing number, enter.

The highlight of the production is "Through the Looking Glass," with Miss Henie capering over the ice as "Alice in Wonderland."

Bergin Signed By Browns for Mayfield Club

The St. Louis Browns have signed Bob Bergin, star pitcher for St. Louis U. High and Kellers, of the Muny League. The big right-hander has been ordered to report to the Browns' Kitty League "farm" at Mayfield, Ky., next season. He was graduated from St. Louis High last June.

Bergin, born here Jan. 21, 1920, stands 6 feet 3 inches tall and weighs 205 pounds. He started playing first base and in the outfield, but Tom Stanton, then St. Louis U. High coach converted him into a pitcher.

While pitching for St. Louis U. High last spring, Bergin won 15 games and lost but one. He struck out 164 batters, in 84 innings. He turned in a no-hit, no-run performance against Normandy and a one-hit game against Webster. He allowed but two hits in each of five games, and the most hits allowed in any one contest was five.

In the Muny Leagues, pitching for Kellers, winners of the City League championship, he won six games, allowing but 17 hits and striking out 54 batsmen.

Military Expert Analyzes U. S. Defenses and Tells What More Is Needed for Nation's Safety

Maj. George Fielding Eliot Finds Some Big Flaws in Bulwarks—Outlines General Program.

By ROBERT A. RANDOLPH
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

HOW far should the United States go to achieve a reasonable measure of safety in a world that is becoming a bauble for the apostles of the old "might is right" policy? This exceedingly controversial question, now occupying President Roosevelt and his advisers, is seriously analyzed in forthright style by Maj. George Fielding Eliot in his book, "The Ramparts We Watch," published Nov. 11 by Reynal & Hitchcock.

The author, who served as a British officer in the Gallipoli campaign and was a Major in the military intelligence reserve of the United States Army, writes as a military expert and not as a militarist or alarmist.

In almost every chapter he stresses the point that the United States is unique among the great Powers in being able to defend itself first on the sea, secure as yet from invasion by land and attack from the air.

As to improving national defense Maj. Eliot feels there is much to be done. He points to major flaws in the nation's bulwarks. When and if they are rectified, in his opinion, the nation will be so armed that it can, if compelled, inflict grievous injury on any foe while taking little hurt itself.

Points of Defense Policy.

This "highly desirable state" can be attained at no great expense and without sacrificing any individual liberty, the author maintains, by basing the national defense policy on the following points:

Maintaining a properly constituted fleet superior in fighting power to any fleet or combination of fleets which can be assumed as our possible antagonists in the Atlantic or the Pacific.

Keeping the main battle elements of that fleet concentrated in one ocean or the other, not divided under any circumstances.

Maintaining an army of about 240,000 regulars to defend the bases from which the fleet operates, defend all other harbors of commercial importance, and provide anti-aircraft defense for cities. This army also would afford a General Headquarters Air Force of suitable size for dealing with any conceivable attack, and mobile troops sufficient to provide for small expeditionary forces in offensive warfare, or to deal with any possible landing force in defensive warfare.

Giving particular attention to local defense of the Panama Canal and its approaches and supplementing it by the construction at an early date of the Nicaragua Canal.

Maintaining a carefully co-ordinated balance between all elements of our military establishments so undue dependence is not placed on any one arm.

Remembering that in defending our territory, rights, and vital interests, we must be prepared to act offensively so that any enemy will know that he faces not just the possibility his attack may be beaten back, but also the possibility his fleet may be destroyed or forced to take refuge in home waters, with his commerce swept from the seas and domestic distress resulting from the distant blockade.

Prospect of Roosevelt Plea.

In view of the reports that President Roosevelt will ask Congress for large increases in the air forces and the navy and for hastening of the acquisition of war reserves for a force of 1,000,000, which, under War Department plans, could take the field within a few months, it is interesting to note Maj. Eliot's ideas along these lines.

With 15 battleships in service, two building and four soon to be started, he believes that "our present and contemplated battleship strength is adequate, though not overwhelming." At the same time he warns that the lead of five battleships over Japan should be maintained. Japan's secret program is reported to include battleships 5000 to 8000 tons larger than those any other nation is building.

Instead of an aerial armada of 9200 or more planes, now under discussion in Washington, Maj. Eliot thinks the present authorized army air force of 2320 serviceable planes is adequate for dealing with any raiders from other nations. Of this number, 1226 were on hand a few months ago and 1022 on order.

On the theory it is not our business to settle the troubles of distant continents, the author considers that increasing our regular army of 165,000 men and 16,000 officers by 60,000 men would be sufficient. With a force of that size, plus 220,000 well-trained National Guardsmen (15,000 more than we now have), he reasons that we could in 24 hours provide a mobile army of 200,000 ready to meet a similar number of invaders and at the same time man all our regular posts and harbor defenses. By estimating the foreign merchant ship tonnage available for an expeditionary force, he sets 200,000 as the maximum number of troops that could be brought to this country by any Power or combination of Powers exclusive of Great Britain.

Fault in Harbor Defenses.

It is with our harbor defenses that Maj. Eliot finds much fault. The personnel of 5300 is about one-fourth what he thinks it should be. Armament and equipment of many forts are still pre-war. Much of it has been untouched for years except for painting and greasing by caretakers. Modern equipment for fire control, communications and mine fields, new searchlights and more long-range guns are badly needed. Referring to a survey made in 1936, which put the Pacific Coast harbor defense needs at $15,610,000 and the Atlantic and Gulf at $34,000,000, he urges that the work be carried out as soon as possible. Some work has been done on the Pacific Coast. Harbor defenses, like battleships, cannot be deferred until war impends — it takes months to construct a battery of 16-inch guns.

Adequate harbor defenses, the writer indicates, might be the determining factor in the unlikely but possible event of a simultaneous attack on the United States in the Atlantic and the Pacific by a combination of powers. A two-ocean attack would put the United States in the gravest danger, but he holds that with the army, navy and air force which he suggests the invaders would be driven off. In such an event, he says, the principle of security would become paramount in one ocean and that of offensive action in the other. The fleet would operate offensively in one ocean to bring about a decision as quickly as possible or at least a state of affairs permitting the fleet to remove itself to the other ocean and restore the situation there in our favor. Creation of an Atlantic fleet comparable with the Pacific fleet would of course solve this problem, but he says that at present there is no need to assume such a burden. The fleet, as now composed, should be able to defeat any aggressive expedition by cutting its communications with its home country.

Against Fleet Division.

Under no circumstances, in his opinion, would the present fleet be divided between Atlantic and Pacific since it would, if divided, be faced with the certainty of the destruction of each half by an enemy concentration. Instead, as he sees the problem, the coast without the

'Huxies' and Relief in Politics Big Issues of Campaign

Reed, Silent on Farm Question as Candidate, Rates Agriculture and Transportation as Major Problems to Be Handled at Washington.

Ratner, Graduate of Washington University Law School, Set a New State Record as Pre-election Shaker of Hands of Voters.

By CARLOS F. HURD
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

PARSONS, Kan., Nov. 19.

UNITED STATES SENATOR—Clyde M. Reed, Parsons.
Governor—Payne H. Ratner, Parsons.

It could hardly happen in Missouri. If Moberly, or Carthage, or Poplar Bluff, were to offer the State a Governor and a Senator, on the same party ticket at the same election, other towns and sections would join in demanding a recount, or a quo warranto, or whatever it might take to prevent such an offense against the rules of political geography.

But this Southeast Kansas town of 15,000 took the two top-of-ticket places in the Republican primary last August, and made the rest of the State like it. Kansas voters liked it so much that they elected the veteran Reed Nov. 8, by an 89,000 majority, and the boyish-looking Ratner by 50,000.

Parsons folks thought it would turn out that way, and they did not repeat, after election, the jubilation which followed the primary, and which set the town a-swing from the college band shell to the Katy roundhouse.

Since election, they have continued to call the 67-year-old Senator-elect "Governor," which he was a decade ago, and to greet the Governor-elect who is 42 and appears to be 30, as "Senator," his Topeka title. Less formally, nearly everyone calls him "Payne."

CLYDE M. REED

PAYNE H. RATNER

Ratner Sets Kansas Record as Pre-Election Handshaker

Visitors are told of Reed's long and often stormy career, of his sometimes strong New Deal leanings, and of his break with ex-Gov. Alf Landon, to whom he taught the political game, and who was twice his campaign manager, but whom he did not actively support for the governorship or the presidency. This breach was outwardly healed when Landon made a speech for Reed this fall.

Ratner, some of the townsfolk think, is on his way to points beyond the Topeka Statehouse. The son of a Jewish father and an Irish mother, he is an elder and lay preacher in the Christian Church. He was a law student in St. Louis 20 years ago, and his 1920 diploma from Washington University hangs in a busy office. In the State Senate, he was known as a fighting liberal. In the primary and fall campaigns, he shook more voters' hands than any other candidate whom Kansas can recall. One of the local laughs of election night was a telegram of congratulation, signed "One Who Shook Your Hand."

Parsons will have another big day or two when the leave-taking comes. Then it will settle down to watch Senator Reed, in Washington, tackle the farm problem and try to take relief out of politics, or politics out of relief, whichever it is that needs to be done; and to note what "Payne" is doing in Topeka about taking the sales tax off food, and abolishing the tiny and utterly pesky metal tax-tokens, called "Huxies," after Gov. Walter Huxman.

Why Reed Kept Off Topic With Wheat at 50 Cents

Those were the issues that Kansas heard about in the campaign, except that it heard mighty little about the farm problem from Reed, long-time fighter for the farmer's interests. It did hear Senator George McGill, Democrat, demanding that Reed, his opponent, discuss the subject.

"I closed up like a clam," said the Senator-elect, talking with this writer the other day of the agricultural phase of the campaign. "Why should I talk about the farm bill? It was Senator McGill's bill—well, anyway, his name was attached to it—and wheat was down around 50 cents. Fifty-cent wheat will beat anybody in this State.

"Besides," he continued, "there were six Kansas Republican votes in Congress, including Senator Capper, and of those six votes, three were cast for the Pope-McGill farm bill and three against it. I would have had to say that three of those Republican votes were wrong, or else I would have had to make a different speech in different districts—not a very good idea, these days.

"So I just talked about other things, and depended on the farm voters to remember that I didn't lack interest in them when I was Governor. The two big problems at present are agriculture and transportation, and I hope I know something about both, as I have studied them most of my life. I distrust the man who knows all about either of them.

"In Washington I shall talk with representatives of national farm groups. I don't know whether I shall agree with them, but until I get there, I shall not have much more to say on farm questions than I did in the campaign. I wrote the farm plank in our State platform, and that's that.

"But I can tell you one thing—perhaps the first thing—I shall do in Washington. I shall start in with Senator Bailey of North Carolina, and Senator Hatch of New Mexico, to take politics out of relief. You can make that as strong, and put in as many cusswords, as you want to.

First Job Will Be to Try to Take Politics Out of Relief

"The rottenest thing in our politics is the way that WPA workers and relief people have been used for political purposes. That can't be done without Harry Hopkins' knowledge, and why stop at Hopkins?

"President Roosevelt and I are good friends, but I broke with him on that. He cheapened his whole administration by permitting it, plus his own promises of bridges and canals, in the purge campaign and before.

"Kansas is as little affected by that sort of thing as any state. Politics in Kansas is on a high plane. Kansas is not a money State. The money that the Democrats poured in worried everybody but me.

"There are 105 counties in Kansas, and in 85 or more of those counties, if I had $1,000,000 to spend I wouldn't know what to do with it, except to buy a little gasoline for the boys that get out the votes.

"Senator Hatch was one of the speakers sent into Kansas to fight me, but he will find me right beside him, fighting for such measures as his amendment to the work-relief bill."

This led into the subject of Government lending-spending, on which Reed attacked the New Deal administration in his speeches through the State.

"I believe the Government has the duty of relieving distress," he said. "I don't think the Government owes everybody a living, but the economic system owes everybody a chance, and when it fails in this, the burden properly falls on government.

"As Governor, I disagreed with President Hoover, when he was willing that the Government should provide feed for animals in the drouth zone, but said the need of families for food should be left to private charity. I held that the Government should step in, but should at the same time make every effort to restore business confidence, and aid private employment. I have not opposed work relief as a theory."

Between election day and the time of this interview, a concrete case of the lending-spending problem had been put up to Senator-elect Reed for action. The Mayor and Chamber of Commerce of Kansas City, Kan., asked Reed to indorse its plans for a perishable food market terminal on the city's levee. A PWA grant of $1,700,000 for the construction of the terminal was announced in October, and the city was about to sell $3,000,000 of revenue bonds for the project. There was talk of selling the bonds to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Blocking an RFC Loan on Top of a Grant From PWA

That did not suit Reed. The PWA grant had been made, and he did not try to unmake it. But to put in $3,000,000 of Government money, through an RFC loan, was piling lending on top of spending in a way that he did not intend to approve. He told this to the Kansas City group, who, he remarked to the writer, were of the same relative importance that the Mayor and Chamber of Commerce of St. Louis would be in the view of a Missouri Senator.

The terminal boosters saw the point, and they found another purchaser for the bonds, the Union Pacific Railroad. That met Reed's requirement, and after receiving a written statement from officials of the railroad, that the road would buy the bonds, Reed wired to PWA Administrator Ickes that "I, too, wish to indorse and support" the enterprise. The other members of the State's delegation in Congress had previously indorsed the plan.

"I want to help Kansas City," Reed remarked, "and I also want to get the Government out of business as rapidly as possible, when it is competing with private enterprise. I know very well it can't be done all at once, but I must insist that funds other than PWA funds come from private enterprise sources." He remarked on the high financial standing of the Union Pacific which, he said, could make such an investment without having to seek Government loans.

Some of the Highlights in a Lively Campaign

Reed, who has had not only Landon but Ratner, among his political pupils, has enjoyed the recent election and its outcome as much as any younger man could. In the office of his daily newspaper, the Parsons Sun, and in Topeka and the Kansas Citys, he has been telling his old and new friends how he knew it would be a near-landslide, and chiding some of them for failing to be

British Labor's Political Front; Party of 8,000,000 Votes or More Is Force Behind Union Bargaining

Even Out of Power, Workers Get About the Laws They Demand—Organization and Personalities.

By ERNEST KIRSCHTEN
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

LONDON.

THERE has been much talk in the United States of the good will and the understanding that pervade English labor relations, especially since the committee appointed by President Roosevelt to study industrial legislation in Great Britain and Scandinavia made its report. Aside from disabusing the minds of those who had been led to believe that British unionists were "kept in line" by repressive laws, the report emphasized this team play of capital and labor.

This is all true as far as it goes, but it ignores one fundamental fact: English workers are in a strong bargaining position and have the benefit of much social legislation because they are represented in Parliament by their own powerful Labor party.

No Leader in Sight.

Since the end of the World War—and Labor's real influence dates from then, even though the party had its beginning with the passage of the Reform Act of 1867—the unionists have formed two Governments; and there are optimists in the Labor party today who think it will form another Cabinet—the first Labor Government with a real majority in Parliament—as a result of the Conservative Chamberlain Government's handling of the Czechoslovakian crisis.

This seems unlikely because the English have an inbred tendency to vote Conservative whenever there is trouble in the air. Even if the speeches of Duff Cooper, Churchill and Eden would help them to get over this instinct, the Labor party just now affords no outstanding figure behind whom the whole nation might unite. There simply is no personality like Ramsay MacDonald on the Labor horizon.

The Chamberlain Government is aware of this; otherwise it would have been more hesitant to fly in the face of the Labor party's recent Blackpool declaration on the settlement of the Sudeten question. In that declaration, Labor gave its full support to the Benes Government in Czechoslovakia, and stated that the time had come "for a positive and unmistakable lead for collective defense against aggression and to safeguard peace."

It is significant that the workingmen of Europe's two great democracies, France and England, were more willing to enter a war than were their statesmen. Principles seemed to mean much more at union headquarters in Transport House than in Downing Street.

8,000,000 Votes.

However, there can be little doubt that Chamberlain's policy of peace at any price struck a responsive chord in England, and the Conservatives may well use the Blackpool declaration in the next electoral campaign to brand Labor as the "war party." Nevertheless, most observers agree that Labor can hardly fail to poll 8,000,000 or more votes—enough to make the Conservative majority a bit precarious.

In the last general election, in 1935, Labor got 8,326,131 votes to 10,498,310 for the victorious Conservatives. Of course, one must add to this total more than another million votes polled by the National Liberal, National Labor and National parties which joined the Conservatives in forming the present parliamentary majority. The strength of the Conservative fringe, however, is offset by the Liberal and Independent Liberal parties, which make up the third important bloc in Parliament and are disposed to side with Labor.

The obvious conclusion is that, at worst, Labor probably will continue to be a very powerful Opposition. Such an Opposition may be flouted in an international crisis when there is not much room for practical difference between parties, but it cannot be ignored on domestic questions. The Conservatives must perforce pass much social legislation, even if they do not give it the exact form that Labor would like. England is well in advance of the United States in such matters as housing, health insurance, pensions, minimum wage legislation and other social services simply because His Majesty's Opposition is strong enough to get these things into the law and to keep them there.

All of the credit for this does not belong to the trade unions. The Labor vote represents much more than the party's paid-up membership, which was given as 2,013,663 in its 1937 report. This figure falls short of the 3,388,810 workers belonging to the 216 unions affiliated with the Trades Union Congress, the British A. F. of L. Many unionists still feel disillusioned by the desertion by MacDonald in 1931.

5,000,000 to Draw On.

The explanation of Labor's strength at the polls lies in the fact that there are about 5,000,000 English voters who, while not unionists, are in accord with the principles of the movement; and with the decadence of the old Liberal party, their number is growing. The effort to give these non-unionist voters representation in the party accounts in part for its rather complicated organization.

Roughly, it may be said that the party consists of the Trades Union Congress, the Parliamentary Labor party and a large number of constituent societies or local Labor parties. In the latter category are the various shades of English Socialists who from the beginning have voted with the unionists. Also included in this group is a large co-operative society.

The Parliamentary party is made up of those members of the House of Commons elected on the Labor ticket. Theoretically, they are independent of the Labor party, but they accept its governance because they are dependent on it for campaign funds and votes; also they are subject to its discipline, which may mean suspension from membership.

The trade unions contribute most of the members and funds and therefore control the party policies. The societies have provided much of the leadership, making party membership possible for such men as Sir Stafford Cripps and Prof. Harold Laski of the London School of Economics.

Unions Control Policy.

The three groups are united through the annual conference of the Labor party and by representation on the National Council of Labor. In the deliberations of this co-ordinating body, the Labor party, headed by its secretary, J. S. Middleton, and the Parliamentary party, under the leadership of Maj. Clement R. Attlee, have three votes each, while the Trade Union Congress, presided over by conservative Sir Walter Citrine, casts seven ballots.

This seemingly cumbersome and typically British set-up functions amazingly well. It is a better vote-getting organization than the American spoils machine, and, except for the 1931 debacle, has made steady advances in every general election since the World War. The counties of London, Durham, Monmouth and Glamorgan, all with large distressed areas, and many lesser political subdivisions have also come under the control of local Labor majorities.

To disseminate its views, the party has the London Herald, most successful of the capital's penny papers with a daily circulation of more than 2,000,000. In the last few years Labor speakers have been given radio time by the official British Broadcasting Co., al-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Researcher Reports on Taum Sauk.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ABOUT a year ago, in the Post-Dispatch, numerous theories were expounded concerning the origin of the name "Taum Sauk," name of the highest peak in Missouri. I have attempted to find the answer.

The word "Taum" I believe to be a recent corruption of "Tom"—still in general use in the vicinity of the mountain. "Tom" I believe to be an Americanized version of Ton, which is an abbrevation of the Indian Tonga, meaning Big. My conclusion is that Tonga Sauk, later shortened to Ton Saug, was the original name and signifies Big Sauk. "Tonga" is authenticated by frequent usage in early historical accounts. Has-ha-ka-Tonga, meaning Big Crow, was an Osage chief, also known as Big Soldier. Ong-pa-Tonga, meaning Big Elk, was an Omaha chief. Likewise, Ton, Tom and Tam are repeatedly found.

The "Sauk" part of the mountain's name has a foundation as solid as the mountain itself. It is the name of the Algonquin tribe affiliated with the "Fox," and generally referred to by the English as the "Sauk-Fox," and by the French as the "Sac-Reynard" tribes. Originally a Canadian tribe, they were driven out of Canada by the Iroquois. The Indians called themselves "Saukees," which the French corrupted to Sakis and Sac, and the English and Americans to Sauk. I found it variously spelled: Sauk, Saukee, Sawkee, Shaki, Osaukee, Osauki, Ozaukee, Sawk, Saque, Sacque, Sake and Sac, to quote but part of the confusing variants.

At the time of the Louisiana Purchase, the Sauk-Fox tribes occupied the region north of the Missouri River, on both sides of the Mississippi. The Sauk were an extremely erratic tribe, and their war parties, marauding and hunting expeditions frequently penetrated as far south as the White River. Their usual route crossed the Missouri at the mouth of the Gasconade and followed up that stream into the Ozark country. Occasionally they came down the Mississippi, and it is more than likely that they frequently visited the Arcadia Valley and the vicinity of Taum Sauk Mountain. The warriors of the tribe, like the Osage, were tall and well formed, and it is possible that this fact may have suggested the naming of the tallest of Missouri's mountains Tonga Sauk, meaning the Big Sauk.

FRED ALPERT.

A Look Into the Crystal Ball.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE results of the general election are already being misinterpreted by local Democrats. Inside party rumors indicate consolidation of the two local factions on the theory that this unity will develop better results.

Competition between the factions in the August primary developed the issue of choosing between good and bad city government, and the independent voters supported by their ballots the side of good government, resulting in the renomination of H. Sam Priest. This mandate of thinking voters was again heard in the general election by placing Mr. Priest in the lead. I believe that if Mr. Priest follows the mandate of the voters and continues to be for honest, efficient and economical government, the future will hold great success for him, and that the people will draft him for Mayor in the next election. But any consolidation of factions now would be a surrender in the future fight for good government.

I am one citizen who will stay with the good government side of the fight and with Mr. Priest, provided he does not surrender to the City Hall machine.

YANCEY CRAVAT.

Thinks the Volksbund Is Abused.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THERE was a Soviet Union celebration recently in the City Auditorium, of which I have noticed not one word of criticism. These Communists urged the people present to help overthrow the German Government and to help build up the Communistic organization.

Of course, we always emphasize that we have free speech and freedom of assembly, which should be granted to everyone.

But when the Volksbund has a gathering of men and women in a real patriotic spirit, urging no overthrow of any kind of government, those Communists do not want to see that. The Volksbund members have never tried to break up any kind of meeting; they let them have it, even though, like the meeting in the Auditorium, it is un-American.

F. BECK.

A ONE-MAN VICTORY.

Perhaps it was Jim Farley's prophetic moment—the occasion when the Postmaster-General, referring to Secretary of State Hull, declared: "He will be remembered when the rest of us are forgotten."

Certainly Cordell Hull was the forgotten or, rather, the unnoticed, Cabinet officer in the trumpeting tempo of Franklin Roosevelt's presidential morning. The period has been called, with much historical justification, "The Hundred Days." If it could be put in a word, it would be, perhaps, not inaccurate to say that Mr. Roosevelt changed the White House strategy from the defensive to the aggressive. Attack, attack, always attack. He truly invested his office with a sort of military glamour. His messages to Congress, bursting with daring and confidence, streamed torrentially out as from the resourceful abundance of a Metternich.

Minutes were packed with drama. It was America's histrionic hour. Presently through the tempest a still, small voice was heard. Cordell Hull was now and then in the newspapers discussing the subject of trade treaties. Little attention was paid him. We were all absorbed in the larger play, the thunder of the lines, the dazzling mystery of the plot.

Nevertheless, the whole tide and current of administrative effort was economic recovery. To that objective Mr. Hull had addressed himself. He did not speak the gaudy language of the New Deal. He preached the doctrine of what had been his life-long legislative faith. His years in Congress had largely been applied to searching study of the tariff. He had come to see in the exchange of goods between the nations the economic salvation of a distraught world. What may have been a hereditary belief, of partisan coloring to this Tennessee Democrat in his youth, had ripened into a philosophy—yes, into a religion.

So he set about his task, for which only the stoutest heart and most resolute conviction could have mustered the courage. It is hardly exaggeration to say of him that he was one man against the world. For the world had taken to its bosom a strange, new deity, the ill-tempered god of nationalism. The frontiers were economic barricades, behind which the nations had dedicated themselves to self-sufficiency. And this destructive aberration we ourselves had measurably initiated with the Smoot-Hawley tariff of abomination.

The administration's indifference, the paleozoic criticism of fanatical protectionists, the dull mouthings from campaign hustings, the apparently sheer hopelessness of the undertaking—against it all Mr. Hull proceeded with unwearying patience, unflagging purpose. Progress at last could be reported. Here, there, yonder, locked gates were opened. And now, with the treaties signed with England and Canada, Cordell Hull has rescued a bloc of nations from their economic Tibet. It may be that posterity will monumentalize him as the statesman who, single-handed, by his fortitude and leadership, conserved the rights of man.

Where there is no vision the people perish. International trade is Cordell Hull's vision. He has written it in the law. He has mounted it on a pedestal.

GUESS WHO SAID THIS.

The conditions in this nation are unbearable, as is generally known. . . . Economically these people were deliberately ruined and afterward handed over to a slow process of extermination. . . . They want to annihilate them. They are being oppressed in an inhuman and intolerable manner and treated in an undignified way. . . . They have the right to claim a life of their own just as much as other people.

The foregoing words are not, as might readily be supposed, quoted from one of the numerous addresses currently being delivered by world figures on the persecution of the Jews in Germany. They are from another ardent defender of oppressed minorities, Adolf Hitler, who used them in his Nuremberg speech on Sept. 12 in attacking Czechoslovakia's alleged mistreatment of Sudeten Germans.

A PROMISING RIVER PROJECT.

One of the drawbacks to giving St. Louis the speedy air mail service it ought to have is the great distance from the business section to the airport. As it is, mail trucks require 55 minutes to traverse the 15 miles from downtown to Lambert Airport, actually longer than is necessary for the flight to Chicago! A remedy for this situation is embodied in the plan for straightening the Mississippi River channel near Chain of Rocks, which would make it possible to use Mosenthien Island as a landing field. Postmaster Jackson estimates mail could be transported to that point in 20 minutes.

This is only one of the benefits promised by the proposal. Navigation in a difficult sector of the river would be materially aided, army engineers say. Industries of Granite City and neighboring points would be opened to barge traffic. Development of a long-contemplated recreational area, which the metropolitan area needs, would be made possible. All this was brought out at hearings held last week by Lieutenant-Colonel P. S. Reinecke, district engineer of the Corps of Engineers, under the terms of a House resolution, sponsored by Representative Cochran, calling for a survey. It is to be hoped this valuable project will in due course become reality.

DICTATORSHIP FOR THE CZECHS.

The full impact of Nazi Germany's victory in the Czech crisis has not yet been felt. One more indication of its crushing significance to democratic ideals now comes from Prague, in the announcement of plans to convert Czechoslovakia into a totalitarian state. A new national party has been formed, after the Fascist model, and it will be the only political group recognized by law. Through it, the Government sponsors a bill giving full power over the state to the President and Cabinet.

This in the country that up to a few weeks ago was the shining beacon of democracy in a sea of dictatorships! This in the country founded by those great democrats, Masaryk and Benes, and dedicated to freedom and justice! Now become a mere satellite of its ruthless dictatorial neighbor, Czechoslovakia can do no more than submit in every way to the conqueror. It was a sad day for human liberties when the light held high for 20 years went out.

ANTICLIMAX.

Kansas City's vote fraud inquiry is at an end after almost two years of vigorous action. The investigation ceases because it has proved impossible, in the opinion of United States Attorney Milligan, to produce substantial evidence against the higher-ups whom it was designed to reach.

So an ironic picture is presented. In all, 237 defendants have been convicted, either by plea or trial. Yet all those brought to justice, with the exception of one minor leader, have been the small fry, the men and women who carried out the machine's orders. The high command itself remains untouched.

Judge Reeves' charge to the first grand jury was stirring: "Gentlemen, reach for all, even if you find them in high authority. Move on them!" The law's reach unfortunately proved not long enough.

Public expectation was high that the clean-up would extend to the top. Yet, anticlimactic though the present ending may be, there have been definite gains. The sordid story of Kansas City election corruption has been exposed before its own people and before the nation. The exposures caused the vote thieves to run for cover, as was proved by the fact that last spring's registration showed a decrease of 85,000 names—those of ghost voters—from the previous list. Gov. Stark appointed an Election Board immune from the Pendergast influence. And, as Judge Otis said in dismissing the last grand jury, > for almost the first time in the history of the United States, it has been proved that the power of the Government walks by the citizen as he enters the polling place to cast his vote.

WISE WORDS FROM A BUSINESS SPOKESMAN.

A noteworthy change in temper seems to be coming over spokesmen for industry. No longer is unreasoned and sweeping condemnation of the administration the formula. A new realization of business responsibility is being manifested. As an instance of this wholesome approach, we quote from an address by H. W. Prentis Jr., vice-president of the National Association of Manufacturers, before the Society of Automotive Engineers in New York:

> If industry does not put itself under appropriate self-restraint; if industry does not itself condemn improper practices; if industry itself does not bring about the correction of such abuses by pointing the way to the establishment of ethical procedures, we can be sure that those who would change and destroy the American system of private free enterprise will eventually attain their end.

The country has had a lot of heat in the past six years. It can now use such light as Mr. Prentis' statement sheds.

A MISSOURI CLASSIC.

Listen to the classic case of Charles Gargotta, Kansas City gangster and politician, who has just received his twenty-seventh continuance on a charge of intent to kill former Sheriff Thomas B. Bash. Scheduled to go to trial last Monday, after five years of procrastination, the case was continued at the request of that celebrated Kansas City prosecutor, W. W. Graves—celebrated for the number of crooks he has not prosecuted.

Since 1915, Gargotta, a henchman of the late gangster, John Lazia, has been arrested 35 times for grand larceny, attempted burglary, carrying concealed weapons, frequenting a gambling house and other charges, but he has had remarkable immunity from punishment. In only two cases was he even prosecuted, and the only time the law caught up with him was in 1921, when he was fined $100 in Federal court on a liquor charge.

On Aug. 12, 1933, Sheriff Bash caught Gargotta red-handed at the scene of a gang murder, at which one Ferris Anthon was killed. Gargotta, after firing several shots at the Sheriff, dropped his pistol, as the Sheriff related, "threw up his hands and screamed for me not to shoot him." Gargotta was tried for murder in State court, but was acquitted under unsavory circumstances. One of the responsible factors was the perjured testimony of a city detective, who, after telling the same lies in a Federal court case, growing out of the murder, was sentenced to prison for four years.

In Federal court, Gargotta was charged with possessing stolen army pistols and was defended by William L. Vandeventer, a former United States District Attorney. He was sentenced to three years in prison and fined $5000, but the conviction was set aside on appeal.

The most clear-cut charge against Gargotta is the one of attempting to murder Bash, which is supported by eye-witness testimony, but as the Post-Dispatch pointed out on May 9, 1937, "So influential are the gangster's mysterious connections that he walks the streets a free man, with but scant possibility that he ever will be brought to trial."

It is a familiar phenomenon in American municipal politics—in St. Louis, New York, Chicago and elsewhere, as well as Kansas City—for political leaders to form working alliances with the underworld, but when a notorious hoodlum like Gargotta is the open beneficiary of such an alliance, it is time for Gov. Stark to intervene in behalf of elementary decency.

We suggest the Governor get a full report from Prosecuting Attorney Graves on the Gargotta case, with complete details of his failure to bring the case to issue. If the report is not satisfactory, the Governor may use his power, as set forth in the Wymore decision, to remove Graves from office.

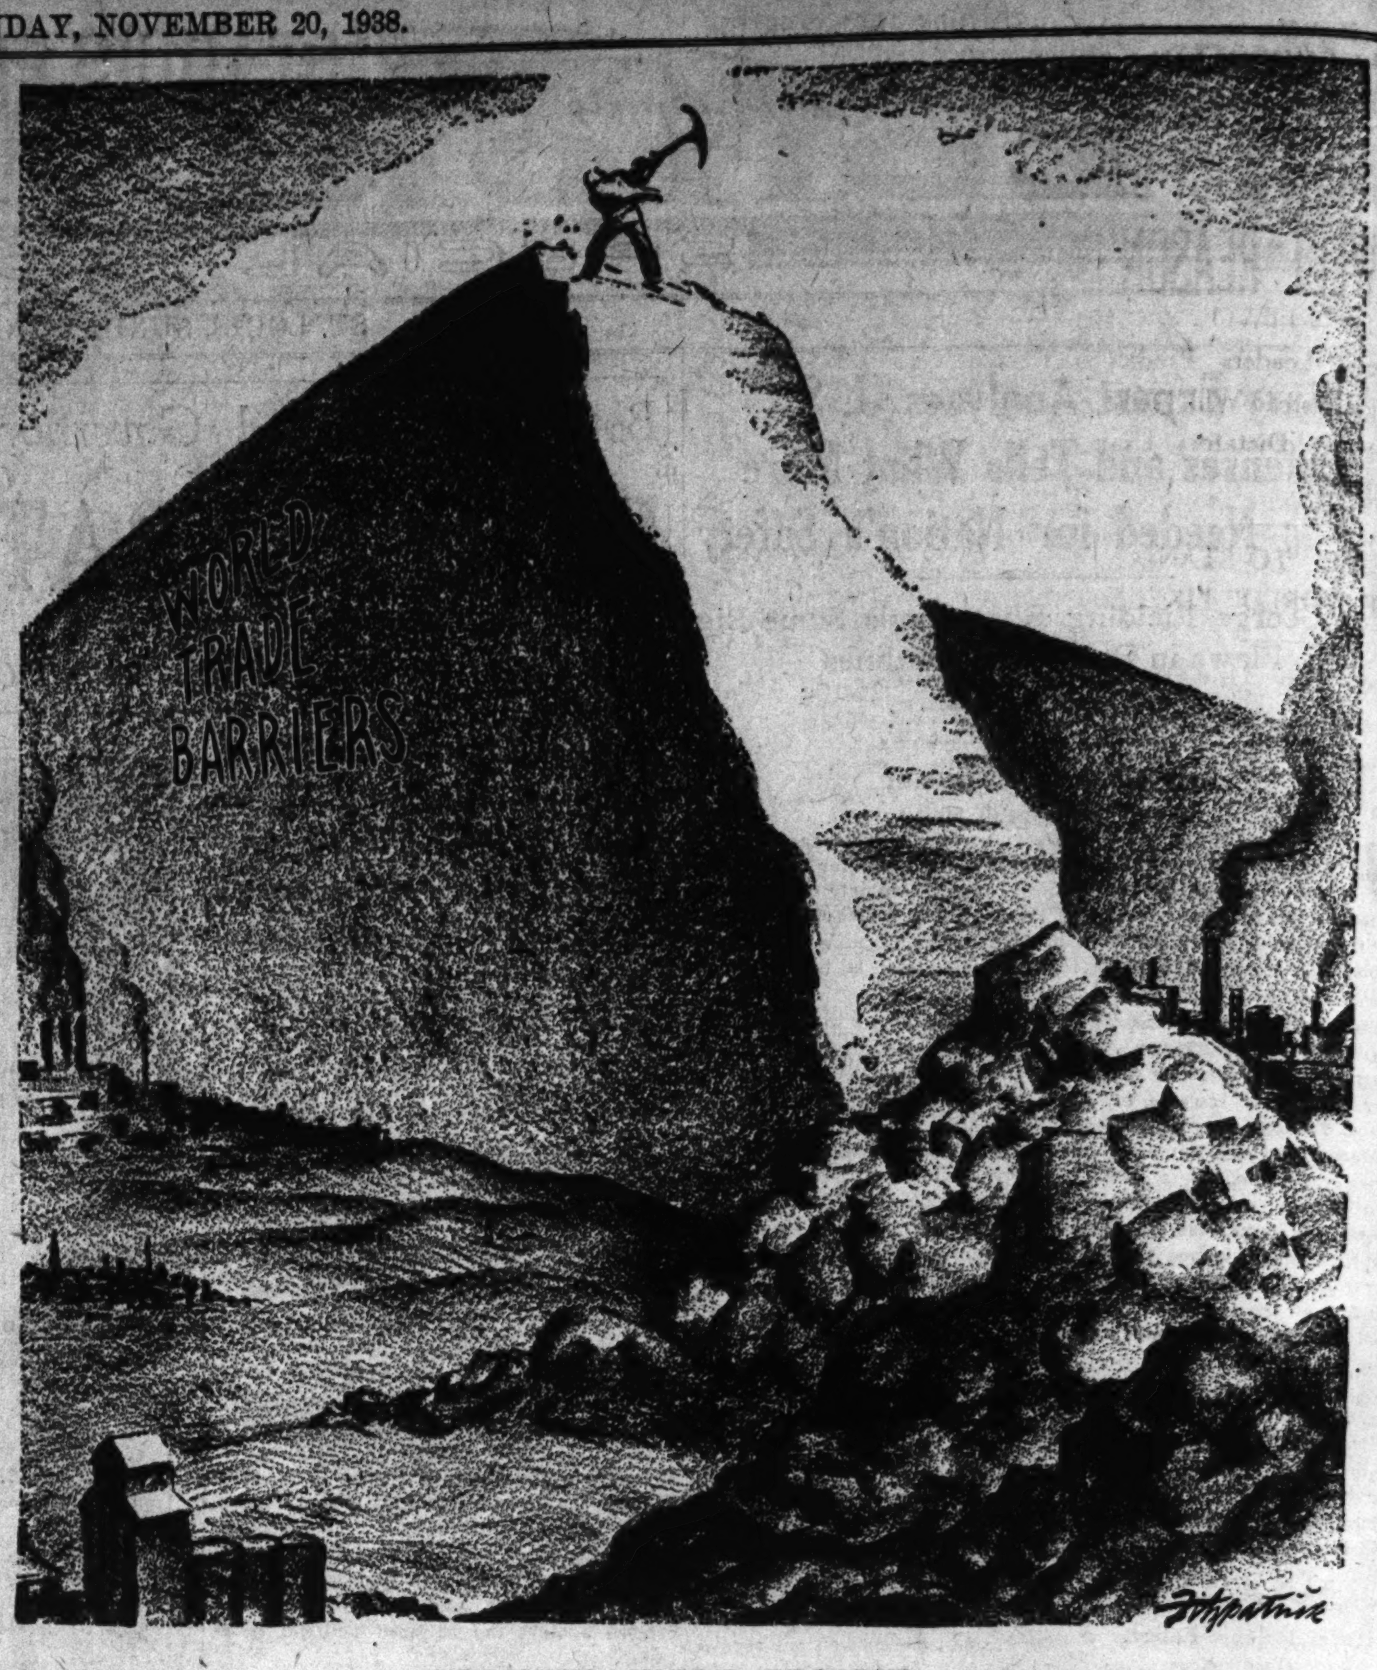
FILMS FOR DEMOCRACY.

The motion picture is a potentially great agency of education, yet it is handicapped because films treating of modern social problems are virtually taboo among Hollywood producers. To surmount this obstacle, and to use the movie as an organ of enlightenment, a new organization called Films for Democracy has been organized in New York, among progressives of many callings and political shades. Its purpose is to produce and distribute pictures "designed to safeguard and extend American democracy."

Such films need not be of the deadly dull caliber often associated with propaganda efforts. The fight to win and safeguard American democracy is a stirring story, and the motion picture can bring its significance more forcefully home than the printed page or the classroom lecture. In a day when the principles of democracy are under fire on many fronts, this new entry in the field is welcome.



HERCULES HULL'S PROJECT.

As Roosevelt Sees His Foreign Policy

President still stresses "Good Neighbor" attitude and international economic readjustment, chief items in his original foreign policy, but has now added rearmament program; viewing Munich as a turning point, he puts emphasis on Pan-American solidarity; wants Neutrality Act amended to give him greater latitude in applying it.

Anne O'Hare McCormick in the New York Times Sunday Magazine.

QUESTIONS concerning the foreign policy of the United States were never more pressing and harder to answer than they are at this moment. Recent international developments have upset not only the balance of Europe but many of the comfortable assumptions on which the American attitude toward the world has hitherto been based. Where are we going now? Has this government a "line" which can still be followed? If so, what is this line, and what changes are indicated to adapt the American position to present realities?

These questions the writer put to the President in the course of a recent talk. Mr. Roosevelt is always ready, even eager, to discuss foreign affairs. Like other capitals, Washington is facing two ways, uncertain whether the world is entering another Napoleonic era or an era of appeasement. In its uncertainty it is preparing for both, and it is this double-edged policy which makes it seem to be constantly contradicting itself.

In the President's view this contradiction is more apparent than real. He holds that we have to move in opposite directions at the same time in order to reach the same objective. We have to keep on enunciating moral principles, he says, to keep the record straight. Simultaneously, we have to arm. Now that parades of force have the effect of real battles, now that the weight of a nation's influence equals the weight of its armaments, "you have to carry a big gun," he smiles, "even to sit at peace tables."

This line of policy, the line of defense, was not laid down on March 4, 1933. At his inauguration Mr. Roosevelt advocated a search for international economic readjustments to restore world trade. With this object in view, because he was convinced that economic solutions were more vital to recovery than political remedies, he appointed Cordell Hull Secretary of State. He sponsored the London conference. Yet he did not hesitate to scuttle this conference when he decided that domestic recovery depended on measures in conflict with the London program.

The other policy introduced into the inaugural address was that of the good neighbor, "the good neighbor who respects his obligations and respects the sanctity of his agreements in and with a world of neighbors." That conviction has grown until the Good Neighbor policy moved into upper case and applied particularly to the Americas, has become the major policy of the administration.

This is the direction in which the President looks when he beholds his old idea of "regional organization" developing in a form and manner he did not foresee. Is the world dividing into planetary systems—Japan over Asia, Germany over Central Europe, the British Commonwealth, Russia? If so, then an American system is also in construction, with Mr. Roosevelt in the role of architect.

There is method in the effort of the administration to play down differences in Mexico, to blink at the tentative moves farther south to test the temper of Uncle Sam, to work for the peaceful settlement of boundary disputes and minimize internal disorders in Latin American states and insist on their essential democracy. His speech at the dedication of the Kingston Bridge last summer was significant because it proclaimed this purpose. In publicly committing this country to the defense of Canada against aggression he included in the all-American system the only country in the New World belonging to another sytem.

The Pan-American policy ties into the trade policy. It is not for economic reasons alone that the State Department has concentrated on opening up or keeping open the channels of international commerce. With each year Washington has become increasingly aware that foreign trade is more than an exchange of products. Free commerce is also the key to a free world. It is the first line of attack and defense in the economic war between closed economies and free economies. The Anglo-American trade treaty is expected by the White House to put a roof over the Hull agreements and a foundation under the whole structure of world commerce.

There is no longer talk in Washington of a "parallel line" with Great Britain. At this moment both governments are going their separate ways. Mr. Chamberlain is smashing ahead, regardless, with his peace-at-a-price policy, and Mr. Roosevelt is watching the attempt with mixed feelings.

Yet the President is convinced his peace effort in the recent European crisis was heartily approved by the American people and that the Munich decisions, and what they imply, are having a distinct effect on American policy.

The first effect, as has been said, is the emphasis on the unity and co-operation of the nations of the Western Hemisphere.

The second is the determination to arm. Actually, we are trailing in the armaments race, but Mr. Roosevelt is determined to make up for lost time and a late start. He is resolved that the United States shall be armed, "not to the teeth, but certainly to the hip."

Concretely, the President may be expected to press Congress for an early revision of the Neutrality Act. Despite the fact that we are warier than ever as to commitments, and that Mr. Roosevelt is as wary as the wariest, it is plain that the Neutrality Act is a handy instrument of policy which he would like to be free to use in an emergency. If this instrument were more flexible, it might easily keep us out of war, he says, by enabling us to strengthen and support our own interests.

He glimpses dimly that the compromise to be worked out in world policy bears some relation to the compromise sought by the New Deal—the mean between the right of nations to pursue their own domestic policies and the international necessity of curbing those policies when they are no longer domestic but impinge on the right of other nations to live, move freely and do business in the same world.

What will this country do meantime? Mr. Roosevelt's answer is characteristic:

"What the United States will do depends, first, on the American people; second, on circumstances as they develop; third, on the policies of other nations. We shall be increasingly careful to promise nothing we cannot perform, in order that we may not fail to perform what we promise."

A Key to Modern Mexico

Books in the News

THE violent and bitter history of Mexico is a tale worth anybody's telling, but until Ernest Gruening contributed his masterly study of this country's social and economic development there was really no single volume in English which presented the subject in a form both compact and inclusive. Mr. Gruening's history was so authoritative that one might have assumed there was no need for another along the same line.

Nevertheless, Prof. Henry Bamford Parkes has written one which he calls simply "A History of Mexico" (Houghton Mifflin Co., Boston), and its justification is apparent to anyone who reads it. This is due not only to the greater detail with which the pre-conquest period is treated and the final chapter on Cardenas which brings the story up to date, but to the illuminating perspective it offers at every stage of the narrative.

The necessity for an accurate and sympathetic understanding of Mexico by the people of the United States was never so urgent as now. To achieve this understanding, the inquiring American should know that the true explanation of the various phenomena that meet the eye of the foreign visitor—or even the foreign resident—is practically never the obvious one.

Why do the Mexican masses show a profound indifference to the privilege of the ballot? Why does the obvious self-seeker and scarcely less obvious petty grafter still exist on a large scale in an administration dominated by a man of such obvious integrity as Cardenas? Why does the Government persist in its land policy when peasants still have no conception of agricultural production on a national scale?

The best way for anyone to find the answers is to understand the process of conditioning to which the Mexican mass has been submitted by its Guzmans, Iturbides, Santa Annas, Diazes and Huertas, corrupt Spanish overlords and calculating exploiters.

Prof. Parkes' history is explicit, clear, sympathetic to the half-articulated aspirations of the masses and at the same time scrupulous in presentation of facts. The vividness of the panorama derives not from prejudiced emotions, but from the descriptive precision he has applied to many arresting personalities and the influences which threw them into relief.

HUGH RUSSELL FRASER, former St. Louis newspaper man, has turned an appraising mind on John Tyler to find a President who left an amazing record of courage and right thinking. Tyler, as delineated in "Democracy in the Making" (Bobbs Merrill Co., Indianapolis), had no war to use as a springboard, no popular issue to catch people's imagination. His was a grueling contest against the money power, which Jackson had fought. Deserted by his Cabinet, and threatened with impeachment, he stood fast and won. The book brims with life and political color in presenting this little-known chapter in American history.

U. S. EXPECTED TO DROP POLICY OF 'SWEET REASON'

DEFENSE "TO STAND OFF WORLD" LIKELY

the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19. — The United States is about to embark on new international and domestic policies of historic importance, in the opinion of some of the country's most prominent industrial leaders who assert they have knowledge of current plans in Washington.

As they understand the new policy now taking shape, parts of which are expected to be presented to the new Congress, the United States is to abandon its 20-year "fruitless" effort to persuade other leading nations of the world to adopt universal "sane" disarmament and trade programs.

In place of the policy of "sweet reason," as one industrial leader expressed it, the United States will hereafter "talk a language the dictators understand," backing up diplomatic and trade policies with armament designed to overawe any possible combination of totalitarian nations.

Chief Points in Program.

They summarized the program as follows:

1. An army, navy and air force which "could stand off the world."
2. Loans to other American countries for allied defense systems.
3. An international diplomatic drive "to put starch into the democracies" to block further totalitarian encroachments.
4. Immediate diplomatic and economic rapprochement with all nations in the western hemisphere to forestall further political and trade penetration by aggressive European and Asiatic nations.
5. A campaign to end unemployment, labor strife, and economic troubles within the United States to eliminate the chief argument of totalitarian nations regarding "democracy's failure."
6. Peace between business and Government—without loss of existing gains of liberal social legislation.
7. A heavy industry stimulation program correlated with necessary re-armament spending in an effort to create prosperity.

Overshadows Domestic Economy.

Because of the vast sums required to finance such a program, which they said President Roosevelt now believed to be essential to protect this nation in the next 10 years, they felt it would overshadow most other factors in the domestic economy.

No departure from the traditional ideals of American democracy is contemplated, they said. No compromise with the "good neighbor" policy is in prospect and the United States will gladly resume its leadership in disarmament programs and stimulation of equitable international commerce whenever other powerful nations of the world "see the light," according to the industrial leaders.

No better evidence exists of this determination to hold fast to democratic international idealism, some said, than the fact that the British-American trade agreement, begun in a vastly different international atmosphere, was carried through to completion in a period of unparalleled international pessimism.

However, recent developments not only in Europe and Asia, but nearer home in several Latin-American countries were described as having convinced the President and his close advisers that certain nations have already laid the groundwork for aggressive political, military and economic penetration detrimental to the future political and economic existence of the United States.

Danger Realized During Crisis.

This nation's danger in the next years came to light, they explained, during those tense moments in Washington two months ago when, with European warfare seemingly only a few hours away, War Department experts realized that the United States was unprepared to defend itself if necessary. The War Department quickly summoned leading industrialists, some of whom discussed the problems involved with the President.

A prominent utility executive said that every major utility company but two in the United States had already joined actively in the War Department planning, and that those two would actively participate in the coming week.

A nationally prominent railroad executive said: "Railway management will co-operate to the utmost in the national defense program."

Even more impressive to some of those consulted, they said, was that the first cautious stories given out for publication, on the eve of a national election, failed to bring effective protest from pacifist or other groups generally opposed to increased armaments.

Vast Armament Program.

While the full scope of the rearmament program, they said, may not become known for months, it now appears that early estimates of its size, measured in dollars, although large—a round figure of $5,000,000,000 was several times previously mentioned—is likely to be revised upward, rather than downward.

The fact that the program will be started during the beginning of a pickup in many heavy industry lines will in itself tend to increase the amount of capital expenditure necessary to provide additional facilities, it was explained.

A leading heavy industry manufacturer said that in addition to vast upward revision of plans for army, navy and air force, every phase of preparing United States factories for conversion to war manufacture is being studied. War Department surveys of industrial capacity of more than 10,000 plants are now being completed. Specifications for dynamos, and many forms of machine dies are already being presented to the War Department, he explained.

Manufacturing of armament will begin in large quantity in many leading factories by the first of the year, it was predicted. Those interviewed expressed belief that the national defense program, superimposed on a business pick-up already begun, and a "huge" residential building boom on the way, would tend to reduce unemployment and WPA payrolls to a marked degree.

They said a substantial number of WPA employes would be transferred from relief payrolls to defense payrolls, constructing airports, airplane factories and hangars, military sidings and trackage, and other construction work of comparatively simple nature, in which unskilled labor is a chief item.

In addition to an armament program, the United States, one said, has many economic weapons at its disposal.

One effect of the British-American trade agreement and others of similar nature previously concluded under Secretary of State Hull's program was to increase the present potential power of the United States to control the world's foreign exchange.

Theoretically at least, it was explained, it would be mechanically possible for the United States, with its vast gold hoard to shatter the foreign commerce of other nations.

The world is swiftly shaping up into five great spheres of economic and political influence, as one industrialist sees it, of about equal population: Japan and Eastern Asia; Russia and Western Asia; Germany, Italy and Middle Europe; the European democracies and their colonies and markets in Africa, Southern Asia and the Indies; and the United States and the Americas.

Col. Edward N. Jones Jr. Dies.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The War Department received word today of the death of Col. Edward N. Jones Jr., United States Army, retired, at San Diego, Cal. Born in Camden, Ala., Feb. 26, 1865, he was graduated from West Point in 1886 and served in the Sioux campaign of 1890-91. He also served in Cuba and in the Philippines.

British Labor's Political Front

though at first this important propaganda medium was almost exclusively monopolized by the Government party.

Labor is conducting successful membership drives, especially among women and young people, but it is handicapped by a lack of funds, especially in view of the great resources of the Conservatives.

A greater handicap than the lack of money, however, is the paucity of leaders. Labor really has no first rate "front benchers" capable of capturing the nation's imagination. It has yet to find men who can replace MacDonald, Philip Snowden and J. H. Thomas.

Most promising perhaps is Herbert Morrison, the dynamic and efficient leader of the London County Council, formerly Minister of Transport. He was born in East London and received only an elementary education. Nevertheless, he rose from errand boy to secretary of the London Labor Party by 1915 when he was only 27 years old. He was three times elected to the House of Commons and became London's first Labor "prime minister" in 1934. Since then he has greatly increased his party's majority in the County Council.

Businesslike and aggressive, he is giving the city an excellent administration and may yet become Labor's strong man. However, he made clear to the writer that he is a moderate Socialist. At the head of the national government he would insist on trying to socialize at least two basic industries each year, and he would be willing to pay high dividends to the dispossessed share holders just as long as the Government obtained control. This policy and his habit of saying rather bluntly exactly what he thinks have made him many enemies both among the Trade Union Socialists, who are about as pink as New Dealers in America, and in the more extreme Left wing of the party.

Attlee and Cripps.

In 1935 Morrison lost the parliamentary leadership of the party to Attlee, a man typical of the many middle class and aristocratic members won by Labor in the last decade. Trained as a barrister and later a teacher in the London School of Economics, Attlee turned to social work in East London. He entered Parliament in 1922 and rose rapidly in politics, serving as private secretary to MacDonald and then as Under-Secretary for War.

Refusing to follow his former chief, Attlee nevertheless survived the 1931 election and became deputy Labor leader under the aging George Lansbury. As leader he has given a fairly good account of himself, but he is utterly without fire. As one London newspaper man said: "He is a natural adjutant, but not a general."

On the Left is Cripps who entered politics eight years ago when the Labor Government needed a good Solicitor-General. He, too, survived the dire 1931 election and has been very active ever since. Forceful, learned, honest and wealthy, he wants the rapid and thorough socialization of England. His aid to extremists has several times placed him in danger of party discipline.

Greenwood and Dalton.

Arthur Greenwood, Attlee's deputy and former Minister of Health, is an ex-teacher high in party councils, but he seems an unlikely man to lead Labor back to power.

A more probable choice might be Hugh Dalton, also a former teacher who served as Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs in the second Labor Government. He is an expert in economic matters and a term as chairman of the party's Executive Committee drew his solid record into the spotlight.

Other possibilities, but rather unlikely ones, are Citrine and Ernest Bevin, secretary of the potent Transport and General Workers' Union, an organization built along both craft and industrial lines and reaching into many fields. Both of these men are essentially conservative and concerned with building trade unions rather than politics, but both have large followings.

Unionists Active Since 1868.

The unionists have been active in English politics since 1868, when they appointed their first parliamentary committee and especially since the "new unionism" of 1880, which saw the organization of large nubers of unskilled workers.

The Labor politicians were most effective when they had a specific grievance to remedy. In 1902, for example, the House of Lords upheld the famed Taff Vale decision in which an appellate court had held that a union's funds might be taken for acts committed by its members. This was a direct blow at the effectiveness of the strike, and it gave the Labor representatives a live issue until 1905 when the decision was nullified by legislation.

The Lords presented the party with a similar issue in 1909 by their decision in the Osborne case, holding that unions might not use dues for political purposes. This difficulty was finally solved by the Trades Union Act of 1913, which permitted political levies, provided that those who objected to them were exempted or "contracted out." After the general strike of 1926 this was changed so that political funds could be collected only from those who specifically volunteered them, or "contracted in."

Laborite Socialism was always a weak brew, but with post-war discontent it was enough to bring MacDonald into power in January, 1924. A Red scare overthrew his Government the following October despite a gain in Labor's popular vote. Four years later, he was back—again with the help of the waning Liberals. However, his own party rose against him when, under the pressure of hard times, he proposed a cut in unemployment benefits.

MacDonald's answer was the formation of the National Government of 1931. This convinced many a worker that Labor politicians could not resist "the aristocratic embrace," but this idea is being dissipated by the rise of middle class and aristocratic party members. It is hard to imagine a man like Cripps, born with a silver spoon in his mouth, being impressed by an invitation from the "right people." It will take more than a cup of tea in a manor house to change his convictions.

Condition of the Worker.

Granted that Labor has been making a steady if unspectacular advance in the political arena, just what does this mean for the British workers? Perhaps not so much as was expected. Unemployment insurance statistics indicate that the number of English jobless has been reduced from 2,828,662 in 1932 to 1,764,079 in March of this year. As in all countries, the depression left a legacy of permanently or semi-permanently unemployed. Of the former there were 279,000 in February of this year. This number is still growing. Between the summers of 1935 and 1936, for example, it was increased by 22,900, or 76 per cent.

Using 1929 as a norm, the index figures of the International Labor Office at Geneva put the number of gainfully employed in Britain in 1937 at 111.3. Economists, however, agree that there should have been a greater advance over the last boom year because of the increase in population. Unemployment is still a very serious problem in certain fields such as docks and shipping where about 25 per cent of the workers were without jobs last year. England enjoyed a considerable degree of recovery from the depression, and the recession was not so severe as in the United States, but for many workers these facts meant nothing.

Comparative Wages.

Wages are just a shade above the 1929 level, judged by International Labor Office index figures. The Geneva organization has calculated the current money wage of an English worker at 104, compared with 100 in 1929, and his real wage is placed at 110.

However, it must be remembered that English wages were not high in 1929. Even at the higher level of 1937, an English building trades laborer got only a little more than $13 a week. English industrial laborers averaged less than $10 a week. Dock workers got about $3.25 a day, miners only $2.50 a shift. A great many skilled workers got less than $20 a week. The 48-hour week is still the general rule, although it has been cut to 44 in some fields.

There seems to be more than a little truth in the rank-and-file belief that all England's social legislation has only preserved a low wage scale instead of raising it. Workers do not always realize that England's shrinking foreign market — due to the cutthroat competition of newly industrialized countries like Japan—is a major factor in the problem.

So there is a real demand for positive action—for an advance toward collectivism. Labor's rank and file is drifting to the Left of its conservative leadership.

YEARLY MEETING OF MISSISSIPPI VALLEY SOCIETY

Many Objectives on Program of 20th Two-Day Session Which Will Begin Tomorrow.

The twentieth annual convention of the Mississippi Valley Association will be held tomorrow and Tuesday at Hotel Statler with a proposed program of action covering a wide range of economic interests of the valley. Included are the following objectives:

Protection of the shipper against Interstate Commerce Commission regulation of port to port rates of inland water carriers.

Opposition to the revised St. Lawrence seaway treaty, which is asserted to be prejudicial to the Lakes-to-the-Gulf waterway.

Protection of navigation, flood control and state rights against "regimentation under politically appointed regional authorities."

Speedy completion of the national flood control program.

Amendment of the National Labor Act and the Wage-Hour Act "to protect both industry and labor."

Enactment of the Parsons bill to assure adequate diversion of water for the Illinois waterway.

Other Objectives.

Other objectives of the association, which has its general office here, include: Conservation and economic use of water resources; increased participation of the Mississippi Valley in foreign trade; support of the American merchant marine; extension of joint river-rail rates and routes to serve the entire valley; increased north and south movment of commerce.

The principal addresses at tomorrow morning's session will be made by Arthur J. Weaver of Falls City, Neb., president of the association, orchardist and former Governor of Nebraska, and Major-General Julian L. Schley, Chief of Engineers of the Army.

These speeches are scheduled for the session tomorrow afternoon: "The Lower Valley," Congressman W. J. Driver of Osceola, Ark.; "Regulation of Water Carriers," Capt. O. Slack Barrett of Cincinnati, president of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association; "The Merchant Marine," Thomas M. Woodward of Washington, member of the United States Maritime Commission; "The Lake Michigan Diversion," Congressman Claude V. Parsons of Golconda, Ill.; "Our Water Resources," Dr. G. E. Condra of Lincoln, dean of the University of Nebraska conservation division.

Banquet Tomorrow Night.

At a banquet tomorrow night the speakers will be United States Senator Bennett C. Clark of Missouri, United States Senator Lister Hill of Alabama and the Rev. Dr. John L. Davis of New York. Hill will speak on the military value of the inland waterways and Dr. Davis on current topics.

Maj. Gen. Thomas Q. Ashburn, president of the Inland Waterways Corporation, will discuss the repeal of the long and short haul clause, Tuesday morning. At the same session there will be brief talks by four Congressmen.

A luncheon Tuesday will be held jointly with the Associated Industries of Missouri, with an address on the national Labor Act by United States Senator Edward R. Burke of Nebraska. The afternoon session of the association will hear short talks by four more Congressmen and an address on "Peregrinations of Old Man River," by Roy N. Towel of Omaha, Neb., a consulting engineer. Cleveland A. Newton, general counsel of the association, will report on the organization's work in Washington and there will be reports by the committees on traffic, and use of water resources.

In conclusion, there will be an open discussion by association members and the election of officers. That evening there will be a dinner for the officers and directors.

Originally active in development of the inland waterways, the association has assumed a broader interest, calling itself "the mid-continent association of commerce, industry and agriculture."

CHANCES OF TAFT OR DEWEY TO LEAD G. O. P. IN 1940

Political Writers Mention Both Prominently as Presidential Hopes in Light of Returns.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—After much analysis of Democratic election upsets and their possible effect on the Republican 1940 presidential ticket, many political writers here put Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Robert A. Taft of Ohio foremost.

Among the Republicans lifted to governorships or seats in the Senate or House to displace Democrats, Progressives or Farmer-Laborites, Taft is the only one yet accorded more than presumptive favorite son status for the 1940 nomination. More than 100 Republicans, most of them newcomers to national politics, were elected. Many of them might conceivably eclipse either Dewey or Taft for 1940 first-place Republican consideration in two years.

Dewey's defeat by a narrow margin for the governorship of New York is regarded by many as the political equivalent of Taft's Senate election in Ohio.

Reason for Choice.

There are several reasons for this special attention to these two Republicans of the younger generation. Their campaigning abilities and political philosophy as expressed on the stump have little place in the discussion. What is more important, and what keeps Dewey in the 1940 Republican nomination picture despite his defeat, is New York's electoral vote of 47, the largest in the country.

Dewey came close to clinching the New York governorship as a stepping stone to 1940 preferment. He cut swollen Democratic popular majority votes for Governor for the last decade to a fractional percentage. Lehman's 67,000 re-election majority looks big in figures. It is a hairline margin in percentage of the total vote cast.

Based on the Lehman-Dewey vote alone, New York would be classed among the virtual 50-50 states in party division of the statewide vote. It is on majorities for senator and representatives-at-large that the Democrats rely to challenge any such classification statistically. Those contests were won by very comfortable, if reduced margins, but they did not diminish in the eyes of Washington political onlookers the potential Dewey threat.

On Taft's Behalf.

Taft boomers have a diversified basis for their contentions that he must be regarded as the leading contender. They point out, first of all, that he was elected, not defeated. They also make much of the scope of the Republican sweep in Ohio. It ousted Democrats from the governorship, the Senate and 13 House seats. Not even the Republican recapture of Pennsylvania paralleled the Republican march back to political power in Ohio. And Ohio has furnished more presidents, vice-presidents and candidates of both parties for those offices than any other state.

Taft is the son of a former Republican President and Chief Justice.

If it develops into a Dewey-Taft race for first place for the Republican presidential nomination in 1940, the Ohioan has an apparent advantage in the forum in which he could advance his claim. The Senate, particularly with New Deal farm policy up for Republican fire, will afford him a national audience.

Dewey rose to a place of national political prominence through his New York City racket-suppressing crusade. Defeat returned him to that duty. If it keeps him on the news pages over the next two years, he will be kept in mind politically.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS VOIDING OF SPOT ZONING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 19. — The Missouri Supreme Court yesterday declared void a spot zoning ordinance passed by the St. Louis Board of Aldermen in 1935 to enable the C. Hoffmeister Undertaking & Livery Co. to build an addition to its establishment at the northwest corner of Bellerive boulevard and Compton avenue.

The court held that the ordinance, passed over the veto of Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann, was void because the change in the classification of the Hoffmeister lot involved, from residential to commercial, was "arbitrary and without substantial reason."

While the ordinance stated its purpose was to extend the commercial district, the court declared it did not actually extend the district, but merely classified the Hoffmeister lot as commercial instead of residential property, and left it "in the midst of a residential district." The opinion sustained a decision by the St. Louis Court of Appeals that the ordinance was unconsitutional.

Military Expert Discusses U. S. Defense Needs

fleet—the "refused" sea frontier—would have to depend on submarines and flotilla craft that could be spared by the fleet, the harbor forts, the mobile army of 200,000, and the General Headquarters Air Force. Maj. Eliot asserts the airplane is able to inflict severe damage under exceptionally favorable circumstances but has no more made the battleship obsolete than has the submarine. He adds that "it is perhaps fortunate that American imaginations have been so fired by aircraft, since there will always be naval aircraft operating on the 'refused' sea frontier." He admits that Washington would be hard put to counter the popular reaction which would spread along the coast temporarily exposed by obsence of the fleet.

There are still many persons, he reminds, who can recall the panic on the Atlantic seaboard during the war with Spain when news came that Cervera's fleet was at sea. Valuable fighting units were detained at Hampton Roads by the clamor when they should have been in the Caribbean. Civil War ironclads with muzzle-loading cannon and naval reservist crews were stationed in front of some of the more vociferous seaside communities to give the inhabitants an optical illusion of protection. The real protection was given by Sampson and his fleet, far to the south, as they ran down the Spanish fleet.

Question of Panama Canal.

In event of a two-ocean attack, or if it happened that the fleet were caught in the wrong ocean when the war broke out, Maj. Eliot asserts the "keystone of our arch of security" would be the Panama Canal. From Norfolk, Va., to Puget Sound, Wash., is 5800 miles or about three weeks in terms of fleet transfer. That saves 7800 miles and four or five weeks over the old way around South America. Those four or five weeks could make a decisive difference in the outcome of whatever operations an enemy was attempting.

Therefore, while the author feels the Panama Canal is secure, he believes that in consideration of the consequences that might ensue if it were blocked, construction of the Nicaraguan canal, which has been proposed at various times for years, should be started at once. Since this would be a sea-level canal with no locks, there would be slight chance of closing it in any manner.

As for actual naval attack on the Panama Canal, Maj. Eliot thinks it unlikely warships could inflict any damage on the waterway, since forts at both ends are several thousand yards in advance of the vulnerable locks and could easily hold off the biggest battleships. Maximum range of 16-inch guns mounted in a battleship is 20 miles, while the same gun ashore has a slightly longer and more accurate range due to the higher angle at which it is mounted and the steady firing platform afforded by a land base.

Aerial attack on the Panama Canal would have to come from a shore base within bombing range or from aircraft carriers. It would have, most likely, one of two general characters: A few bombers seeking to sneak in and destroy a vital part of the canal, or a large force which would of course also attempt a surprise attack, but at the same time would be prepared to smash its way through the canal air force and anti-aircraft guns.

Seven Vulnerable Points.

Seven vulnerable points in the canal are listed by Maj. Eliot: Three locks at Gatun, on the Atlantic side; two at Miraflores and one at Pedro Miguel on the Pacific side, and the spillway dam which holds back the waters of Gatun Lake. Army engineers are satisfied that a bomber would have to make a direct hit on the upper surface of a gate (only 67 by 7 feet) to disable a lock. Direct hits also would be necessary on several of the small spillway gates at Gatun Lake to lower the water level enough that the canal would run dry.

Since a large air base could hardly be set up secretly within striking distance of the canal, the attack would have to be made from carriers sneaking within range, Maj. Eliot writes. He believes there would be little chance of that, since any American merchant skipper who saw the unmistakable outline of a carrier near the canal would report her by radio. Most likely a neutral skipper also would, since he, undoubtedly, would be interested in seeing that nothing happened to obstruct his passage through the canal. Proper defense against air attack, Maj. Eliot comments, would consist of increasing both the element of risk and the size of the aerial force required for any chance of success to the point where the proposition will be even less attractive than at present. A decided increase in anti-aircraft guns and raising the garrison from 13,000 men to 18,000 would achieve this, he thinks.

He takes up the possibility that a "do-or-die" expeditionary force of 1000 or less would gather outside the Canal Zone border, make its way through the flanking mountains and jungle, and by a surprise attack gain possession of one set of locks or of the spillway and hold on long enough to blow it up. He says the terrain over which the force would have to make its way is so rough as to be nearly impassable and that native villagers or the air patrols would be almost sure to spot a long line of invaders beating their way through the jungle.

Possibility of Spies.

As for the melodramatic possibility that spies would damage the canal, as they are always doing in the thrillers, the author is content with remarking that the few vulnerable points are well guarded. Ships passing through are carefully checked to prevent chance of their being blown up purposely while passing through the locks. However, it might be well to recall the accounts of aviators in the Chinese-Japanese war who crashed their bomb-laden planes on their objectives to make sure the bombs did not miss the target.

Discussing our position in the Pacific Ocean, Maj. Eliot sums it up in his statement that "we can, if we have to, direct such an attack against Japan as will be a deadly threat to her security, while Japan cannot do the like by us." The principal explanation for this, he says, is the Hawaiian Island of Oahu which he terms the most formidable maritime fortress and naval outpost in the world, superior even to Britain's much vaunted Singapore.

MRS. SARAH WILSON, PHILANTHROPIST, DIES

Widow of Mining Engineer Gave $910,000 to Washington U. and Mary Institute.

Mrs. Sarah L. Glasgow Wilson, donor of $910,000 to Washington University and Mary Institute and leader in philanthropic work, died last evening at her home, 4 Brentmoor Park, of a heart attack, after a few hours' illness.

Mrs. Wilson, widow of Newton R. Wilson, mining engineer and lumberman, was in her late 70s, and had been an invalid in recent years. She had never fully recovered from a fracture of her hip, suffered in a fall 16 years ago.

Mrs. Wilson's recorded gifts to Washington University and Mary Institute, preparatory school for girls, were:

In 1921, $50,000 for the swimming pool, adjacent to Francis Gymnasium.

In 1922, $250,000 for Newton R. Wilson Hall, home of the Department of Geology, supplemented by an additional $25,000 for equipment.

In 1925, $25,000 to building fund for the Women's building.

In 1928, for the site and building of Mary Institute, Ladue and Warson roads, a series of gifts totaling $560,000.

Mrs. Wilson gave $50,000 toward the St. Louis Medical Society Building, 3839 Lindell boulevard, as a memorial to her brothers, Drs. Frank and William Glasgow.

Her gift to the Women's Building was announced after she went to a football game at Francis Field and saw women students peddling "hot dogs" in front of the grandstand. She asked Chancellor Herbert S. Hadley the reason for this, and was told that the girls were trying to help the building fund. She said later that her gift was "in token of my admiration" for the young women's enterprise.

Besides her large recorded gifts, Mrs. Wilson was a contributor to various funds for student help and special purposes at the university. She was actively interested in organized charity, and made substantial contributions to various causes.

She was a descendant of William Carr Lane, first Mayor of St. Louis. Her birthplace was the old Glasgow home at 3016 Sheridan avenue. Her father, William Glasgow Jr., was a trustee of Washington University, and her husband was a graduate of the school. He died in 1914.

The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the home, followed by burial in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Mrs. Wilson's nearest surviving relatives are four nephews, Carr Lane Glasbow, Elizabeth, La.; F. Ewing Glasgow, 5185 Lindell boulevard; William G. B. Carson, 7006 Maryland avenue, and Charles M. Glasgow, Telluride, Colo., and four nieces, Mrs. Alfred W. Jones, 144 Kenilworth place, Webster Groves; Mrs. George K. Conant, 19 Portland place; Mrs. Leland Chivvis, 1437 McCausland avenue, and Mrs. George W. Lane, 5062 Waterman avenue.

Shares Make Feeble Recovery Effort at End of Week Showing Sharpest Loss Since Mid-August

Cashing of Gains and Foreign News Cited Against Business Improvement; 65 Issues Off 2.95 Points in Period.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—The stock list exhibited slight signs of recovery today after registering on the minus side in four of five previous sessions of the most uncertain week in more than three months. The market effort to come back today lacked steam, however, and only a few issues closed with better than fractional gains over the comparative session.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was up .1 of a point at 51.5 for the day but down 3.2 points on the 6-day stretch for the largest week's decline since the period ending Aug. 13. The Dow-Jones average of 65 stocks was up .15 at 49.75 for the day but off 2.95 for the week. Transfers for the day totaled 437,080 shares against 1,005,680 last Saturday. The week's volume was 7,760,010 against 8,043,093 for four days last week.

While the foreign outlook continued cloudy, domestic business prospects offered further encouragement and some traders nibbled at selected stocks today on the theory the "correction" from the post-Munich peace upswing possibly had about run its course.

Closing Stock and Bond Trend.

The list was at its best in the first hour. Top marks were subsequently reduced in the majority of cases, with the ticker idling to the finish.

Ending behind modest plus signs in the brief proceedings were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, Glenn Martin, Sperry, Curtiss-Wright, New York Central, U. S. Rubber, Anaconda, Purity Bakeries, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Great Northern, Montgomery Ward and Douglas Aircraft.

Bonds and commodities were mixed. Wheat at Chicago lost ¾ to 1⅛ cents a bushel and corn was down ⅜ to 1⅛. Cotton was unchanged to 20 cents a bale lower. Both sterling and the French franc were a shade easier in terms of the dollar.

Moving fractions to a point or more higher in the Curb were Lockheed, Seversky, Niagara Hudson Power and American Gas & Electric. Turnover there of 110,000 shares compared with 162,000 a week ago.

The Week in Review.

While business continued its recovery movement during the week, stocks showed the sharpest decline since the late summer war crisis and the week's selling just about erased the gains in the election upsurge of the previous week. But market analysts were inclined to view the retreat in securities as a temporary reaction in a major rising trend.

Traders had before them at the end of the week reports showing the tempo of American business shifting into the fastest rate this year. Steel production, use of electric power, auto building, cotton manufacturing and new home construction all sped up. Retail buying, laggard for many months, began showing real signs of life. The Associated Press index of industrial activity, in the seventh consecutive weekly rise, climbed to a new 1938 high. Some cautious traders, however, were giving consideration to the possibility of a flattening out of currently rising industrial activity after the turn of the year, as some economists have insisted that consumer goods were being manufactured faster than they were being used.

Trade Pact Reception.

Wall Street was not much moved by the signing by the United States of trade pacts with Great Britain and Canada granting reciprocal tariff concessions. Most commentators thought the pacts would stimulate exchange of goods, but some dissenters, with special interests, feared a cut-in on domestic production. American farm products on which tariff concessions were granted aggregate around $200,000,000 while British imports on which the United States granted concessions total around $141,500,000 annually.

Business gave during the week more than passing glance to the reports of steel mill operations, which rose 1.6 points to 62.6 per cent of capacity, the highest rate since Oct. 11 last year; in the comparable 1937 week, operations were at 36.4 per cent.

Autos and Retail Trade.

Board rooms gave attention to reports of automobile production which totaled 76,735 units this week, a rise of better than 10,000 over last week, according to Ward's reports. Executives variously predicted output of from 2,750,000 to 3,500,000 cars in the 1939 model season, contrasted with a 1938 model production of around 2,225,000 units.

While the Associated Press seasonally adjusted indices of electric power output and residential construction were hitting new peaks for the year, the cotton manufacturing and railroad carloadings indices, seasonally adjusted, were not far from their 1938 tops.

Colder weather, coupled with expanding industrial payrolls, lifted retail trade 2 to 5 per cent above last week, though volume was 1 to 6 per cent below a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet reported. Sales of winter apparel brought the first substantial increase in turnover of men's wear in two months.

Commodities as a group were higher, with grains, cotton and wool leading the advance. Livestock was easier. Non-ferrous metals, and most other basic industrial raw materials showed little change.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY CONTINUES FAST CLIP

Index Jumps 2.8 Points in Week, Topping Last Year's Rate.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—National industrial activity sped up to a new high for the current recovery this week as a deluge of new orders poured in. The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index of industrial activity, based on latest available data, jumped to 89.3 per cent of the 1929-30 average from 86.5 the week before and topped last year by a substantial margin.

Operations have registered phenomenal gains recently, the index chalking up close to one-third of the increase from the recession low during the last three weeks.

Steel mill operations, electric power output and residential building continued to set new high marks for the year or longer, while other major industries hovered only fractionally below best 1938 levels.

Steadily improving retail demand for automobiles was reported an important stimulus to practically every branch of industry. Assemblies of new model cars have almost reached the 100,000 weekly mark, with all it means to steel mills, carloadings, electric power consumption, rubber and cotton activity.

The index, with its seasonally adjusted components based on latest statistics, compared as follows:

	Latest Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.

SLIGHT LATE RALLY IN FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Pick-up Comes as British-American Trade Pacts Are Signed Near Week's Close.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Demand from Europe for American dollars was resumed early this week on a scale large enough to cause a rather sharp decline in the British pound. The French franc and other European currencies followed the pound lower.

Exchanges rallied slightly, however, with the signing of the British-American trade treaty toward the end of the week. The United States, in trade with foreign countries, including the British Empire, has accumulated this year a huge surplus in merchandise exports over imports, necessitating use of gold and liquid bank balances in New York to balance the international scales.

Revision of tariff rates downward was designed partly to restore balance in foreign trade by fostering the exchange of farm products for manufactured items and thus was linked closely with exchange dealings.

The British mint lost ⅛ of a cent in terms of the dollar in quiet foreign exchange dealings today. The French franc lost .00⅛ of a cent and the guilder .02 of a cent; the Swiss franc and belga were unchanged.

Gold totaling $2,900,000 was engaged in Japan for shipment here, the Federal Reserve Bank reported.

Closing rates follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents): Great Britain, 4.70; 60-day bills, 4.69¼; Canada, Montreal in New York, 99.15⅝; New York in Montreal, 100.84⅜; Belgium, 16.90; Czechoslovakia, 3.43; Denmark, 20.99; Finland, 2.08; France, 2.62⅞; Germany, 40.07; benevolent, 19.75; travel, 22.25; Greece, .87½; Hungary, 19.85; Italy, 5.26¼; Yugoslavia, 2.34; Netherlands, 54.34; Norway, 23.62; Poland, 18.84; Portugal, 4.28½; Rumania, .75; Spain unquoted; Sweden, 24.22; Switzerland, 22.59; Argentine, 31.33n; Brazil (free), 5.90n; Mexico City, 20.75n; Japan, 27.42; Hongkong, 29.35; Shanghai, 16.15. Rates in spot tables unless otherwise indicated.

n—Nominal.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The United States dollar, ahead ⅝ of a cent in final foreign exchange trading today, and closing 4.70¼ to the pound, compared with a similar rate for sterling in New York over night. French francs finished at 178.69 to the pound, against 178.62 yesterday.

Commodities Nudge Ahead Fourth Consecutive Week to Top Since July

Industrial Raw Materials Mixed; Eggs Up a Cent; Other Market Basket Items Somewhat Higher.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—With grains and cotton setting the pace, commodity prices nudged ahead for the fourth consecutive period this week in face of a reactionary securities market.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 important wholesale staple quotations advanced to 67.65—highest level since July—from 67.30 the week before and compared with 76.78 a year ago.

The British-American trade treaty was said by dealers to have played an important part in gains chalked up by major farm staples. Corn jumped 2½ cents to 48 cents a bushel. Wheat, rye and cotton—also favored by the treaty—did better. Oats alone among the grains dipped.

Livestock, however, continued to give ground before steadily rising receipts at principal markets. Hogs, cattle and lambs weakened as forecasters saw still larger arrivals ahead.

With eggs advancing a full cent, to 29½ cents a dozen, market-basket items needed by the housewife picked up moderately. Butter also was up, while cocoa, lard and coffee declined slightly.

Industrial raw materials were mixed. Demand for steel scrap, both here and abroad, forced a further mark-up in Chicago and Pittsburgh quotations. Reports circulated in the trade that foreign buyers were seeking 200,000 tons for nearby delivery. Linseed oil moved ahead.

Other industrial items, however, were affected by the general uncertainty fostered by events in Europe. Rubber slid a full cent a pound. Bituminous coal, turpentine and tin also yielded.

Textiles showed no definite trend, a dip in silk being offset by a better wool price.

The index, with its components based on 1926 at 100, compared as follows:

	Nov. 18.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Thirty-five commodities	67.65	67.30	76.78
Industrial	81.09	80.48	83.49

Livestock	78.69	79.41	96.02
Grain and cotton	55.25	54.29	73.62

Non-ferrous metals	76.31	76.40	75.53

Saturday's Commodities.

Wheat futures at Chicago slumped ¾ to 1⅛ cents a bushel. The drop about wiped out small gains during the week. Corn futures lost ⅜ to 1⅛ cents.

Cotton futures at New York closed unchanged to 20 cents a bale lower.

Changes elsewhere were narrow and uneven. Higher at New York were coffee, domestic sugar, rubber and hide forward contracts. On the minus side were tin, cocoa, copper, wool tops and cottonseed oil futures.

Hogs at Chicago held steady with a top of $7.60 a hundredweight. Cattle and sheep also were about even.

LOWER EXPORT PRICES FOR COPPER; LEAD FIRM

Zinc Unchanged; Tin Demand Slackens; Trade Treaty Market Feature.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Lower export prices for copper and the British-American trade treaty featured metals markets last week. Copper was unchanged at 11.25c a pound for electrolytic, valley, but open concessions to as low as 10.75c were made. Business was small, but consumption remained good, especially in the construction and automotive fields. Scrap dropped to 9.25c from 9.62½c. Export copper weakened, due to lower Wall Street security prices and easiness of scrap, sagging to 10.77½c at week-end from 11.30c last week. Reports of a cut in foreign output were heard as a result of declining prices.

Lead was firm and quiet at 5.10c a pound, New York, and 4.95c East St. Louis. Easiness of the London market dampened sentiment, but American consumption remained good.

Zinc, while unchanged at 5.05c a pound East St. Louis, was subject to unsteadiness due to the cut of 20 per cent in the import duty contained in the trade treaty. Ore prices here were upt up $1 a ton earlier in the week.

Tin demand slackened late in the week as prices receded about ½c a pound to 46.30. Fluctuations in sterling exchange unsettled the market most of the week, but business was fair. Reduced tin plate prices stimulated demand somewhat.

Antimony, Chinese grade, at 14c was unchanged, with the market quiet.

Steel operations advanced again to a new high for the year at 62.6 per cent of capacity due to large auto production and generally better business. Southern steel operations rose to 75 per cent. Steel scrap was higher at several points.

WHEAT PRICES FORCED DOWN CENT A BUSHEL

Week's Advance Virtually Wiped Out, Leaving Quotations at Level Little Above 6-Year Lows.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—The wheat market absorbed enough small lot selling today to force prices down a full cent a bushel, practically wiping out the week's advance and leaving quotations at a level only 2 to 3 cents above six-year lows.

Any bullish implications the market may have derived from elimination of the 6 cents a bushel import duty on American wheat into Great Britain vanished in the day's developments. From trade reports it appeared that other exporting countries extending most favored nation treatment to the United Kingdom also probably would receive benefit of removal of this duty.

December contract liquidation also depressed the market as dealers disposed of options upon which wheat can be delivered in two weeks. This selling caught the pit with little buying support but there was not sufficient liquidation to cause a serious downturn.

Factors Affecting Market.

Although domestic export business to Europe remained quiet, it was reported about 750,000 bu were sold to Mexico. Only a few loads of Canadian grain were sold abroad.

Liverpool wheat closed ¼@⅜c lower after being down almost a cent at the opening, but this was in line with trade expectations. Demand from India for Australian wheat helped to steady the Liverpool market.

December liquidations also affected the corn market and there was a pickup in offerings from the country, with bookings totaling 68,000 bu. No export business was confirmed.

New corn arriving here is so dry and of such good quality that cash grain handlers say it is comparable with old corn in moisture content.

Oats held steady but the market was very quiet. Rye declined with wheat. Nine cars of rye were loaded out of private elevators and warehouse receipts for 11,000 bu canceled.

Provisions declined with grains.

Close Near Day's Lows.

Wheat closed near the day's lows with net losses of ¾@1⅛c. Dec. 63¼@63c, May 65½@⅝c; corn was ⅝@1⅛c down, Dec. 46¾@⅞c, May 50½@⅝c; oats unchanged; rye ¼@½c lower; lard 2@5c off.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Nov. 19.—World wheat prices were lower today.

Liverpool wheat opened ½@¾d lower and closed ⅛@½d off.

Argentine wheat and corn both started unchanged. At the close, wheat was unchanged to ⅛c lower, and corn ¼@⅜c higher.

Winnipeg started ⅛c lower and later was ⅜@½c off. The close was 1@1⅛c.

Local wheat receipts which were 9000 bushels, compared with 37,500 a week ago and 64,500 a year ago, included six cars local. Corn receipts which were 93,000 bushels, compared with 109,500 a week ago and 130,000 a year ago, included 62 cars local. Oats receipts, which were 6000 bushels, compared with 32,000 a year ago, included three cars local.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was ¾c lower. Supply was small and contained no straight grade wheat. Offerings cleared at unchanged basis. Nominal figures at the close were somewhat under sale prices. Corn was ¾@1c lower. Offerings were light and demand good, but some grain was carried over owing to holders unwilling to trade at lower basis. Elevators and glucose makers were the buyers. Premiums were ¼c under Friday's levels, with No. 1 yellow selling ½@¾c over, No. 2 at the December, No. 1 mixed at the December and No. 2 running to white ½c over the December figure. There was good inquiry for choice oats, but none of this kind was offered.

COTTON UNCHANGED TO 4 OFF; PLEDGES AND ON SHIPBOARD

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Cotton was easier today under liquidation and moderately increased hedge selling while demand was slow. March sold from 8.48@8.42c and closed at the low, with final prices net unchanged to 4 points lower.

The markets opened generally steady on trade and foreign buying, which offset the influence of easier Liverpool cables. Trading centered around December liquidation and exchanging to later months.

There were 271,770 bales pledged to the loan for the week, bringing the total thus far to 2,683,899 bales of the 1938 crop. Trade sources calculated over 10,000,000 bales were now involved in loan programs.

Cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the close of the week estimated at 75,000 bales against 176,000 last year and 176,000 two years ago.

INDUSTRIAL GROUP RESISTANT; RAILS SOFTEN BOND LIST

Corporates as Whole Weaken for Week; U. S. Obligations About Even; Foreigns Lower.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Weakness in rail loans led a downdrift in the corporate bond market during the week. Notably resistant were some industrial issues, which ended with cumulative gains.

Sharpest setbacks were in the more speculative carrier issues, which for some time had been following the lead of the stock market more closely than other bonds.

Foreign dollar bonds as a group also sold lower, largely the reflection of international reaction to the anti-Semitic flareup in Germany.

United States Government obligations held about even, with dealings light.

Applications for proposed new offerings filed with the Securities & Exchange Commission included $38,000,000 of 30-year 3¼s, and $10,000,000 of nine-year 3½-4 per cent serial debentures of Central Illinois Public Service Co., proceeds of which will be used for refunding.

Bonds kept within a narrow range today, with the trend mixed in all groups save foreign dollar issues, which were depressed by further losses in the German loans.

U. S. Governments barely moved. Only nine of the 31 issues appeared on the tape and closing prices ranged from a loss of 5-32 of a point for Treasury 3¾s of 1956 to a gain of 4-32 for the 2⅞s of 1960.

As in some previous sessions this week, German Government and private obligations were in supply, at concessions up to 1⅜ points in the case of the Government 7s. Other foreign dollar loans ending behind minus signs included Milan 6½s and Australia 5s. Rome 6s were 1 higher at 68.

Total turnover of $2,866,250 par value was the smallest for a two-hour session since Sept. 3. Last Saturday it was $5,414,000.

Goodyear Redemption and Plan for $40,000,000 Issue.

AKRON, O., Nov. 19.—Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. called today for redemption Dec. 30 of its outstanding 5 per cent first mortgage bonds totaling $52,400,000 due in 1957. Redemption price was set at $102. The issue, released May 1, 1927, at 97, has a par of $100 with interest due on May 1 and Nov. 1 annually.

Concurrent with the redemption call, Paul W. Litchfield, Goodyear president, announced completion of arrangements to finance through insurance companies a $40,000,000 issue of 20-year, first mortgage and collateral 3½ per cent bonds. That issue, together with a $10,000,000 five-year bank credit at 2½ per cent represents the only funded indebtedness of the Akron concern, Litchfield said.

Reed and Ratner of Kansas

guided by his earlier predictions, and to put a good-sized bet down.

The rear-guard cowlick in his thick gray hair stood out at a right angle, and his eyes, under an impressive forehead, beamed behind old-fashioned small glasses, as he related the carrying of this county and that, some of them the abode of no small number of his enemies. In Sedgwick County, seat Wichita, the number of those enemies was increased by the addition of an element hostile to Henry J. Allen, whom Reed, as Governor in 1929, appointed to a senatorship.

The Allen appointment episode gave Senator McGill a chance to say, in the campaign, that if he, McGill, was a Roosevelt yes-man, Reed had been a Hoover yes-man, since President Hoover had desired the naming of Allen to the Senate. An odder complication was the attempt, in some quarters, to show that President Roosevelt favored Reed over McGill, or was indifferent as to the Kansas contest.

A business periodical, in September, told of a supposed remark of the President that "Clyde Reed is an aggressive liberal, and his election will be all right with me." A White House denial followed, and three Cabinet members, with Senator Hatch, appeared in Kansas to speak for McGill.

But whether President Roosevelt was a Reed man or not, ex-Gov. Reed was for several years not far from being a Roosevelt man. In 1932 Reed conferred with Candidate Roosevelt on the farm program, and was quoted after his return home as being "neutral" not only in national politics, but in State politics, at a time when Landon, who had managed Reed's two campaigns for the governorship, was running for his own first term. In 1936, his lack of zeal for Landon and Knox was so marked that the Kansas City Times later referred to Reed as having supported Roosevelt. His differences with John Hamilton, now Republican national chairman, were of long standing.

Getting Rid of a Headache.

So it was not strange that, in the midsummer primary campaign, some of the Wichita opposition attacked Reed as "a New Deal Republican." Reed's assault on lending-spending and politics in relief, and a brief controversy with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, over Wallace's attack on Senator Capper, were parts of such answer as Reed thought needful, before and after the primary, to the charge of New Deal sentiments.

A severe pre-primary headache was the candidacy of the Rev. Gerald Winrod of Wichita for the senatorial nomination. Winrod's sound-truck campaign, with its implications of racial and religious issues, brought a statement from a group of Kansas clergymen, who condemned Winrod without indorsing Reed or either of the two other candidates.

That was the opportune moment for Reed. A meeting of 60 of his friends was called at Emporia by William Allen White, and issued a statement indorsing all that had been said as to Winrod, and proclaiming Reed as the man to beat him. After that, Winrod ceased to be a major worry.

His Promises Conditional.

"Make no promises" was Reed's rule, and such promises as he did make were of a contingent sort. Appearing before service men as the father and father-in-law of World War veterans, he spoke against sending American youths to fight over European boundary disputes, and said: "If I introduce a pension bill, it will be early in the session and not on the last day, when it will die on the calendar."

A promise to the Townsend plan supporters was even more conditional. He wrote to them that he would favor a hearing for their plan—and, he added, for all similar plans offered—at which it would be necessary for them to prove the soundness of their proposal. That does not sound like the way to capture an indorsement, but Reed got the Townsendite indorsement, through a blunder of someone in Senator McGill's campaign office. The Townsend letter to McGill, sent at the same time as the one to Reed, was too heavy for its one air-mail stamp, and reached the McGill office with a postage-due stamp attached. It was refused and returned to the senders, who photographed it and used it against the Senator.

Fight on Late Judge Pollock.

In his one term as Governor, 1929-31, Reed bore down on prohibition enforcement, arraigned the State moving picture censorship board for laxity in admitting pictures that he deemed offensive, and memorably attacked the late Federal Judge John C. Pollock, first in a statement from the Governor's office, then in an editorial in the Parsons Sun.

Judge Pollock's court "has been a growing stench in the nostrils of decent people," Reed wrote. "It has been a refuge of the vested interests and for the powers that prey." Citing the court's decision protecting slot machines, and a recent "Fort Scott booze scandal," Reed declared, "I am not even trying to conceal my contempt."

Judge Pollock was in California, and there were many prophecies of what would happen when he should return. William Allen White, in the Emporia Gazette, pictured Clyde Reed in jail, receiving gifts of fried chicken from his friends through the bars, and asked: "White meat or dark, Governor?" But no court bailiff ever laid a hand on the Governor's shoulder.

Settling an Insurance Mess.

"The best piece of business I did for the State of Kansas as Governor," Reed relates, "was the settlement of the rate controversy with the fire insurance companies. There was an impounded fund, as you had in Missouri, about $8,000,000 in our case. I gave three days to the matter, and settled it on a 50-50 basis, the policy holders getting 50 per cent flat, and the companies paying the expenses from their half. The total legal expenses were only about $15,000. Where policy holders were not found, their share went to the State.

"And that," he went on, "was one of the chief things that beat me for re-election, because they said it was a good settlement for the insurance companies."

He left his hearer to compare the 50-50 settlement with that made in Missouri, where policy holders got 20 per cent of the nearly $10,000,000 distributed through Federal Court, and where the same settlement was proposed for the $3,000,000 in keeping of the State courts, Gov. Stark blocking this proposal. Legal fees in the Missouri case have run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Drove Dray as a Boy.

Clyde Reed's parents took him from Illinois to Kansas in 1875. As a boy, he drove a dray on the streets of Parsons, then booming as the division point of the new Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad, from Hannibal, Mo., through Indian Territory to the Gulf—its St. Louis line had not then been built. Clyde worked for the Katy as section hand at $1.25 a day. Normal school supplemented his early studies, which had ended at the eighth grade, and the youth got a country school to teach.

Discipline was required, and young Reed licked, as it proved, the wrong boy, for the boy's father had enough influence to have him removed. Quitting pedagogy, the young man studied for the Railway Mail Service, and was in that service 20 years, becoming a superintendent of adjustment. Through Victor Murdock, Kansas Congressman, and (Theodore) Roosevelt, lieutenant, Reed made effective suggestions for saving money on Government mail contracts.

Gets Political Experience.

Leaving the mail service, which usually holds its recruits for life, Reed took over the Parsons Sun, and has remained as its publisher through his developing political career. He was secretary for a year to Gov. Henry J. Allen, and was judge of the Court of Industrial Relations and chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, before the one-term governorship.

In the Court of Industrial Relations, Reed did not at all times satisfy union labor, and he has not had formal labor indorsements in his campaigns—did not have one this year, yet ran well in the counties where the labor vote is largest. On the Utilities Commission, he used and extended his already wide knowledge of transportation rates, a subject on which he has become an authority. On leaving the Commission in 1925, he engaged in professional practice as a rate expert, and represented oil producers, farmers and industrial shippers before state bodies and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

As a newspaper editor, Reed has not snatched away any of the laurels of his friend, White of Emporia. Parsons folks say he has given the town a good paper, but the only editorial they are likely to recall is the one about Judge Pollock. The paper is run in his absence by Lester Combs and Clyde M. Reed Jr., youngest of Mr. and Mrs. Reed's seven children.

In Arizona for his health a few years ago, Reed went into gold mining, and still has an interest in a mine producing gold and molybdenum. The latter, a steel alloy, would make the establishment really a "gold mine" if war should occur. Reed is on record, not as a pacifist—he says he can think of things worth fighting for — but against American entrance into European "boundary quarrels."

Ratner Started in 1922.

Ratner began his office seeking—so far uniformly successful—when he ran for County Prosecutor here in 1922. His wife of a year campaigned with him, shaking hands with the farmers' wives. Three days after he took office, two men were murdered at the Parsons stockyards. Ratner took charge of the questioning of suspects and witnesses, and after 48 hours of continuous effort, got a confession, implicating two men not in custody. Three men were tried and Ratner, opposed by a pair of defense lawyers, got two convictions, the third man being acquitted.

"From then on," he relates, "I had plenty of clients."

Mrs. Ratner, who studied stenography to help him in his early law work, left this work with the coming of her first child in 1924. The children are Payne Jr., 14, who has been hunting with his father in New Mexico the last few days; Cliffe, 8, and Julia Marie, 3.

He served two terms as Prosecutor, was Referee in Bankruptcy for the Federal Court at Fort Scott, and was elected to the State Senate for four-year terms in 1928 and 1936. At Topeka, he advocated State support of schools in needy districts, supported labor legislation, and upheld the right of persons on relief to vote. In a speech for ratification of the child labor amendment, he made an emotional appeal which caused a demonstration from women in the Senate gallery. The vote was a 20-20 tie, old-line Republicans opposing ratification, and the Democratic Lieutenant-Governor deciding in favor of the amendment.

Drops Race for Congress.

Ratner planned to run for Congress in the Third District this year, but reconsidered when he learned that the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, for which he was attorney, was committed to the Democratic incumbent. His later appearance as a candidate for Governor followed a personal canvass of various parts of the State. Opponents called him "Landon's hand-picked candidate," but it does not appear that he had the Landon support until he had built up substantial strength elsewhere.

Campaigning the past summer and autumn, Ratner made a dozen speeches or more daily, usually from a sound-truck, and followed each with the invitation to "Come up and shake hands." He shook hands in drug store prescription rooms and restaurant kitchens, telling kitchen workers that he had washed dishes in St. Louis to help pay his way through law school. His American Legion button was an introduction to service men—Ratner was a gob at Great Lakes in wartime.

In Hutchinson, home town of his opponent, Gov. Huxman, he arrived by airplane, and a few minutes later was 700 feet underground, in a salt mine, grasping the palms of the miners.

Sales Tax a Talking Point.

The issues of the State campaign were few and not very stirring. Gov. Huxman was highly regarded, and the perennial beer question had been settled by admitting 3.2 per cent beer. But the sales tax —2 per cent, as in Missouri—and the token, the size of a St. Louis street car token, proved to have nuisance value in the campaign. The 1-mill tokens are punched with doughnut holes; the 2-mill ones are solid. Ratner called them both "unholy," and promised to get rid of them, and to collect the tax by a bracket system. Removal of the sales tax on food was another pledge. Ratner said he would place more women on State boards, would take the State Forestry, Fish and Game Commission out of politics, and would establish a State program of industrial development.

One of Ratner's two law partners, Miss Louise Mattox, formerly stenographer in the office, will be secretary to the new Governor.

The Ratner home, just east of Parsons, [illegible]ing to Pittsburg, is a modern country house with white pillars, on a tract bought and improved by his lawyer and companion, Dr. M. C. Ruble, former Kansas University football player, [illegible]bor. The [illegible] to the White River region of Southwest Missouri.

One of "Payne's" most frequent campaign pledges has been to stand firm against any attempt to abolish the direct primary.

He may well keep that pledge. The primary, in which nominations are made all at once and without regard to each other, is the only method that would ever have let in two major candidates from the same town. The politicians who ran the old-time conventions knew how to balance up a ticket better than that.

TAX CONSULTANT TO SPEAK AT LUNCHEON MEETING

FREIGHT DEPOT COVERING CITY BLOCK LEASED

Viking Company to Occupy Building Bounded by Broadway, Chouteau, Sixth and Papin as Truck Terminal.

The Truck Terminal Freight Depot, occupying the entire block bounded by Broadway, Chouteau avenue, Sixth and Papin streets, has been leased by the Viking Freight Co., of which Elmer Weilbacher is president, for a six-year term. It is owned and was formerly occupied by the Columbia Terminals Co. Cornet & Zeibig, Inc., handled the negotiations, which had been pending for several months.

The building will be occupied by the Viking company as its main receiving and loading depot. Constructed of brick, steel and concrete, with a 25-foot ceiling, the one-story structure has a frontage of 155 feet on Broadway, 155 feet on Sixth street, 275 feet on Chouteau and 275 feet on Papin. It comprises approximately 40,000 square feet of floor space. Paralleling the property on the Papin street side is the approach to the Municipal Bridge, whose entrance is on Seventh street.

Spent $60,000.

Approximately $60,000 has been expended for steel frame work on the building by its owners. Extensive alterations and improvements are planned by the Viking company. Constructed especially for a freight truck terminal depot, the building at Broadway and Chouteau avenue was one of the largest of its type in this part of the city. It is virtually at the point where Broadway and Fourth street converge.

The Viking company now operates an outbound freight depot at the northwest corner of Broadway and Cerre street and an inbound freight depot at the northwest corner of Sixth and Cerre streets, which the new building will replace. Offices and garage are at 614 South Sixth street.

The Columbia Terminals Co., of which Wade T. Childress Jr. is president, now has its main receiving and loading depot at 400 South Broadway, with auxiliary buildings, including garages, in other parts of this district.

O'Fallon Street Project.

Represented by Cornet & Zeibig, Inc., the Triangle Express Co. and the Consolidated Forwarding Co., affiliated companies, recently purchased a plot 27½ by 125 feet at 1311 North Seventh street, together with the northeast corner of Eighth and O'Fallon and the northwest corner of Seventh and O'Fallon streets. The purchasers have launched construction for a truck terminal, with docks, which will have a total frontage on Seventh and Eighth streets of 170 feet, and on O'Fallon street of 250 feet, exclusive of the north and south alley of the block. In connection with its truck terminal plans, the Triangle and Forwarding companies have leased from the Mullanphy Board the two-story building with lot 27 by 125 feet, at 1313 North Seventh street, for incorporation in the plans.

The property and leases were acquired in this instance through I. M. Scheibe, president of the Triangle company, which has large terminal facilities at 1000 Poplar street, which the O'Fallon street project will supplement.

The old Armory block at the northeast corner of Grand boulevard and Market street has been placed on the market through the Henry R. Weisels Co. The title to the property is vested in the First Infantry Army Association.

The site has a frontage of 296 feet on Grand boulevard, 265 feet 10 inches on Market street, and 279 feet on Clark avenue. The two-story structure consists of a drill hall, 100 by 200 feet, officers' quarters and a swimming pool.

The building was erected in 1907-08 by the First Infantry Army Association, with a stock issue. The site was purchased from the late Daniel Catlin.

The regiment, which has been known since the World War as the 138th Infantry National Guards of Missouri, plans to move into its new building at Spring avenue and Market street, Feb. 1, 1939. Col. Lawrence C. Kingsland is the commanding officer.

NEWLY-FORMED CONCERN LEASES BUILDING ON N. 3D

Alfred Vamos & Sons, Inc., with a new process for the manufacture of stretchable leather, has leased a building with 20,000 square feet of floor space, at 410 North Third street.

Andrew Vamos, identified with the shoe industry for many years, is president of the concern, only recently incorporated. Edward F. O'Neil, is vice-president, and Alfred Vamos, secretary and treasurer. R. L. Straus is superintendent.

The plant will have a capacity of 65,000 skins a week. Space is also available for warehouse purposes.

John Ring Jr., director of the Industrial Bureau of St Louis Chamber of Commerce, made the announcement.

DAYTON RUBBER CONCERN TO OPEN BRANCH FACTORY HERE

The Dayton Rubber Manufacturing Co. of Dayton, O., has leased the building at 2129 Locust street, comprising approximately 8000 square feet of floor space.

A branch factory is to be installed in the building as a source of supply for the independent car dealers in the St. Louis area. It will be under the management of N. H. Taylor.

The property is owned by the Nancy L. Johnson estate. Cornet & Zeibig, Inc., was instrumental in effecting the lease.

BUILDING ON WALNUT WITH 10,000 SQUARE FEET LEASED

The business building at 2324-26 Walnut, owned by Walter C. Buel, has been leased by the Valley Bag Co., of which Arthur Kracht is president. The building comprises about 10,000 square feet of floor space. It will occupy the building jointly with the Modern Bow Co., operated by A. H. Fortmann. Both concerns have been long established in the St. Louis area.

The Edward F. Wrisberg Realty Co. negotiated the lease.

SECOND MONTH'S RISE IN LOANS FOR HOMES

U. S. B. & L. League Executive Puts September Figure Above Like Month in 1937.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—New home construction loans of $20,003,000 by savings, building and loan associations in September exceeded for the second consecutive month those for the same month a year ago.

This amount was 5.5 per cent more than that for September, 1937, Morton Bodfish, executive vice-president of the United States Building and Loan League, announced today. The figure brought construction financing of these institutions for the first nine months this year to $160,530,000 or 12 per cent under that for the like 1937 period.

September activity, Bodfish said, was featured by a larger volume of home purchase loans than in any months this year. They totaled $25,698,000, or 8 per cent more than in the preceding month. For the first nine months, loans to buy existing home properties totaled $198,777,000 out of $597,000,000 which the associations advanced for all purposes during that period.

Total volume of loans for September was $71,647,000, a 4 per cent drop from the year's high of August, but a gain over July. Ohio led in volume of loans with an estimated $9,397,000; California was second with $5,370,000 and Illinois was third.

CONSTRUCTION BEGUN ON NEW OVERLAND SCHOOL

Construction has started on the new Elmwood School at Elmwood and Chicago avenues, in Overland, Mo., as a unit of the Ritenour Consolidated School District. This marks the launching of a school building program which also contemplates the erection of other units, including a grade school, and a library addition to the high school.

These projects have been made possible through WPA grants. John P. Hoener is the architect. The estimated cost of the Elmwood unit is $24,000. P. John Hoener is the architect.

"THE TALE OF 2 HOUSES"

Two houses were built side by side. One with wet, off-grade lumber — the other with dry, on-grade lumber. Both were well-designed and appealing to the eye. Mr. Jones bought house No. 1 and Mr. Brown bought house No. 2. A year later Mr. Jones was disgusted because his walls were cracked, floors squeaked and the window frames were out of line. Mr. Brown was well pleased with his house. Five years later Mr. Jones was still repairing the plaster cracks and cussing the squeaks in the floors. Mr. Brown was still contented. And Mr. Jones and Mr. Brown were discontented and happy, respectively, forever after. Moral: Be sure the home you buy or build is constructed with dry, on-grade lumber because wet lumber always shrinks, causing plaster cracks, squeaky floors, uneven frames and open joints.

You are invited to visit our plant, inspect our stock and see how lumber is tested.

'AMERICAN STANDARD OF LIVING' IS A MYTH

It Means Different Things for Varying Incomes, Architect Contends.

The "American standard of living" is a myth, according to George H. Gray of New Haven, Conn., chairman of the subcommittee of the American Institute of Architects, which is studying basic principles for the national housing movement. It means one thing for one income, and other things for every other income, Gray says.

"The housing problem is so extensive that it is of the utmost importance that the standards which we establish shall be sound—neither so costly as to slow up the program nor so skimped as to miss the fundamental purpose. The crux of the problem lies in the determination of what are reasonable standards of living.

"Let us concede that healthful living is the criterion and that aside from merely biologically sanitary housing we must have housing making for efficiency and cheerfulness, with facilities for recreation for all ages. But where draw the line? Thrift and frugality are still virtues not to be lost in exchange for indulgence and luxury. Rehousing so large a proportion of our population is a program so extensive that in order to reach all those needing better housing there must be no over-reaching for unwarranted high standards of living."

Subsidized Housing.

During the coming year the A. I. A. group headed by Gray will make an intensive study of certain features which originated in the PWA program for subsidized housing, and which if not modified by early action may, it is held, become crystalized as a standard, to the detriment of the future U. S. H. A. work. Organized investigation and action in "the great No Man's Land of incipient slum areas" is said to be needed. Ways to bring into greater activity non-subsidized housing as undertaken by private enterprise must be found, it is pointed out.

"The PWA," Gray continues, "made an admirable start in analyzing the national housing problem, in establishing standards and procedures, and in establishing a point of departure for future work, but it was only a start. That work was done by a highly centralized Federal organization, with local talent co-operating. The current and the future work under U. S. H. A. will be highly localized, with the U. S. H. A. at Washington co-operating. That is a distinction of fundamental significance.

Rests With Authorities.

"The development of good public housing from now on rests very largely with the local housing authorities and the local architects. It is a challenge to the communities to put their most enlightened citizens on their housing authorities and to the architectural profession to make their ablest contribution in solving an immense and fascinating problem.

"To accomplish its end the new housing must be enduring. Only such design and construction as is of proven value must go into the houses; yet without losing these there is good reason to believe that there can be a very appreciable scaling down from the high initial standards wisely set by the PWA. Those standards made the housing projects available only to the very best financial risks in the slum areas, the marginal families, and they are not the ones whose need is greatest.

HOME BUILDING AT NEW HIGH FOR SEVEN YEARS

Private Capital Reported Taking Lead Following Early Boost by FHA.

A further recovery in residential construction may be expected, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board reported yesterday, provided there are no "untoward incidents such as a sudden increase in building costs."

The board, in a summary of the latest reports from various parts of the country, said, "it appears as if the potential demand due to an accumulated housing shortage is now transferring itself into effective demand."

The board observed that though much remains to be done, "a fundamental reform of home mortgage finance has been achieved since the summer of 1933 when the Home Owners' Loan Corporation and the Federal Home Loan Bank System began their effective work. Within five years, a substantial portion of the nation's home mortgage indebtedness has been transferred from a short-term to a more adequate long-term basis.

"The straight mortgage loan has to a large extent been replaced by the sounder amortized direct-reduction loan. Scientific appraisal practices have been introduced, providing better security for mortgages. In connection with construction loans, sounder building standards are being developed by lending institutions."

On the other hand, the board notes from its surveys, that "it cannot be overlooked that the building prospect is still clouded by the large volume of institutionally-owned real estate acquired by foreclosure," and these properties are a "troublesome burden to many lending institutions and a constant threat to the real estate market. An intelligent program for their absorption would spur new private construction."

Horton Place House Sold.

The real estate department of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. reports the sale of an eight-room residence at 6051 Horton place to Theodore Gitt for Paul Eichstaedt.

OCTOBER OUTLAY FOR CONSTRUCTION OF $197,814,000

Actual Expenditures for Residential Building Last Month Aggregated $103,136,000 as Reported by Building Organ.

Actual expenditures for building construction during October were $197,814,000, according to the November 15 issue of Building, the National News Review. That amount, with one exception, was greater than was spent in any one month since the start of the recovery period in 1933. The exception was July, 1937, when a little over $201,000,000 was spent.

That building activity will continue at a comparatively high level for the immediate future is indicated by the magazine's forecast of the amount of money that will be spent during the two-month period, November and December. Forecast to be spent is approximately $407,000,000, an amount greater than that spent during any other consecutive two-month period this year.

Expenditures during October of $197,814,000 for building were an increase of 3.3 per cent over the September figure and an increase of 8.6 per cent over October, 1937.

Types of Building.

Of the three types of building which make up all building volume, the alteration and repair classification was the only laggard, October volume declining from the previous month and from October last year. Both residential and non-residential building increased over the previous month, but of the two only residential volume was ahead of that for the same month last year.

Expenditures for residential building during October were $103,136,000, an increase of 2.8 per cent over September and an increase of 35.4 per cent over October last year.

Non-residential building expenditures increased 7.8 per cent over September to $60,256,000, but were still 4.0 per cent behind the same month last year.

Expenditures of $34,422,000 during October for alteration and repair work were 1.6 per cent less than in September and 20.2 per cent less than in October last year.

Tabulated below are the amounts spent for each type of building during October, together with comparative figures for September:

Shown in thousands of dollars:

Type of Building	Spent in Oct., 1938	Spent in Sept., 1938	Percentage Change from Sept., 1938
Residential	$103,136	$100,304	*2.8%
Non-Residential	60,256	55,895	*7.8%
Alterations	34,422	34,982	—1.6%
All Building	$197,814	$191,381	*3.3%

The increase in all building activity, October over September, occurred in all but two of the nine sections of the country. In the Mid-Atlantic section activity declined about 1.8 per cent and in West South Central somewhat less than 1 per cent. In both of these sections, however, activity was greater than during the same month last year, in Mid-Atlantic by 28.7 per cent and in West South Central by 38.6 per cent.

In the seven sections of the country where building activity was greater in October than in September, the increases were as follows: East South Central, 13.3 per cent; Pacific, 9.1 per cent; East North Central, 6.9 per cent; Mountain, 6.6 per cent; South Atlantic, 4.7 per cent; New England, 4.5 per cent and West North Central, 1.9 per cent.

CUTS EXAMINATION COSTS OF BUILDING AND LOAN CONCERNS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Savings of from 10 to 15 per cent in the cost of examinations made into the condition of Federal-chartered savings and loan associations and State-chartered associations insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation will result from the adoption by the examining division of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board of a new and simplified form, John W. Ballard, chief examiner, announced today.

This reduction in cost of the board's annual examinations will benefit some 2070 insured associations scattered throughout the United States. These include 1365 Federal-chartered associations and 705 State-chartered associations.

"As a result of wide experience and several years of intensive study of the examination problem," Ballard explained, "we have developed a new form of report which, while thoroughly reflecting the financial condition and character of the institutions examined, nevertheless is simplified to reduce the work involved in an examination and cut its cost."

The examination form used by the board was drawn up jointly by representatives of the National Association of Building and Loan Supervisors, the United States Building and Loan League, and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, and is designed to embody the best practices developed by examiners during many years of experience. The new form, Ballard explained, is merely a simplification of the one uniformly recommended by these agencies.

HEARST URGES AFRICAN HOMELAND FOR JEWS

Publisher Suggests Giving Former German Colonies to Refugees.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—William Randolph Hearst, newspaper publisher, proposed tonight the use of Germany's former African territory as a homeland for Jewish refugees from the Nazi nation.

In a speech prepared for a nation-wide broadcast, Hearst urged that "this extensive and splendid state, if it should be mandated to England, France and the United States as protectors, can be created into a great and wholly adequate homeland for the driven and despairing part of the Jewish people who desire a national homeland."

Hearst offered his plan as an alternative to recent proposals to colonize Jews in Baja, Lower California, and in the Southern section of Brazil. Of these proposals, he said:

"The whole proposition of Lower California has so little basis of merit as a permanent homeland for the Jews that it could almost be considered as a speculative real estate development."

He said the Brazil plan was "much more worthy of consideration," but that the most practical idea "would seem to be to employ the extensive German colonies in Africa."

"There is right and retributive justice, too, in not returning the former German colonies to a Nazi Germany," he said.

"Africa is rapidly becoming another America. Colonized by the most highly-civilized European Powers, it is progressing in cultivation and civilization daily.

"If those Jews, who are harried by European and Oriental barbarism, could possess as their own not a little trivial piece of bad land from the poorer part of some minor African possession, but the entire former German colonies, and could add to these in time if necessary the Belgian Congo, and all or part of the Portuguese African possessions, they could and would create in due course one of the great nations of the earth."

MAN SENT BACK TO PRISON FOR THEFT OF MAIL SACK

Kathleen Reynolds, head of a cosmetic concern, charged with use of the mails to defraud, pleaded guilty and had sentence deferred.

PROPOSAL TO DISSOLVE LEGAL GROUP OF MEDICAL SOCIETY

Its Work Would Be Taken Over by Committee of State Association Under Plan.

A resolution to dissolve the medico-legal committee of the St. Louis Medical Society, in order that its work may be taken over by a committee of the State Medical Association co-operating with the American Medical Association, will be introduced at a meeting of the society Nov. 29.

The resolution states the medico-legal committee has made a comprehensive study of medical practices and of these studies have revealed "numerous and various complex methods in the application of medical service." Since these methods have become of national significance, the resolution states, a recent executive session of the House of Delegates of the American Medical Association has created a committee and sub-committees to study and act upon these matters. The medico-legal committee itself recommends passage of the resolution.

SOLDAN BEATS BEAUMONT, 19-0, TAKES TITLE

CLEVELAND IS 27-6 WINNER OVER CENTRAL

West End Eleven Gains First Football Title Since 1929 — Fenenga's Team Finishes Second.

Soldan gained its first City High School League football championship since 1929 when it defeated Beaumont yesterday afternoon at the Public Schools Stadium in the second game of the final double-header.

The score was 19 to 0.

Cleveland finished in the runner-up position by trimming Central, 27 to 6, in the first game.

Cleveland was deprived of gaining the championship it shared last year with Roosevelt when it had to forfeit a game which it won from Soldan at the start of the season. The use of an ineligible player in a few minutes of the Soldan game cost Cleveland its title.

Coach Bert Fenenga's boys tried to atone for that early mistake and went on to, win its remaining games. Soldan recovered from that Cleveland defeat and it, too, went on to trim Roosevelt, Central and McKinley before meeting Beaumont.

The North Siders found the Soldan line yesterday stout and failed to make a first down in the opening two periods. In the meanwhile, the newly-christened Tigers scored a touchdown in each of the quarters, with Roy Williams going over for one and Joe Dowdy for the other. Howard Smith accounted for the extra point after the second touchdown.

Coach Arnold von Lehsten's boys scored their third touchdown in the final period before the 8000 crowd. Dowdy's 60-yard punt plus a five-yard penalty against Beaumont for being offside pushed the Blue Jackets back to their goal line. Kuelker's punt out was short and was grounded on the Beaumont 30-yard line.

Off-tackle smashes carried the ball up and Smith went over for the touchdown. Swistowicz missed the try for the extra point.

Cleveland scored on Central in the first period, but the Red and Black eleven came back to push over a touchdown in the second quarter to leave the field at the half, trailing, 7 to 6.

Fenenga's team then added two touchdowns in the third quarter and its last in the fourth period, with Bockhorst going over for two touchdowns. Obermeyer scored the first and Huether the second Cleveland touchdown.

On Field No. 2 three games are scheduled: Trojans vs. Ramblers at 9:30 o'clock; Choppers vs. Playboys at 10:30 o'clock, and Browns vs. Stags at 11:30 o'clock. The season will close on Sunday, Dec. 4.

WASHINGTON U. HOCKEY TEAM PREPARES FOR GAME WITH BILLIKENS

Washington University's hockey squad will begin its workouts on the Arena ice tomorrow in preparation for the season's opener, Dec. 5. The Bears will have only two practice sessions in which to get ready for the game with the St. Louis U. Billikens in the St. Louis Amateur Hockey League.

George Groner has been appointed as the new hockey coach and indicated he would be assisted by a member of the Flyers. About 20 players are expected to report. A new ruling, which permits students of the Medical School to play on the hockey squad, is expected to add several promising men to the list.

In the other game of the curtain raising double-header, Watch and Ward will meet the Octopus sextet at 6 o'clock, the Bear-Billiken clash being scheduled for 5 p. m.

Sunkel, Cardinal Rookie, Led Southern in Three Departments

TOM SUNKEL.

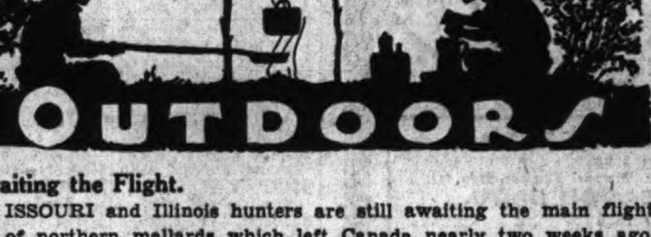
Tom Sunkel, the southpaw, who came from one of the Cardinals' smaller minor league "farms" late in the 1937 campaign, in an effort to bolster the Redbirds' faltering pitching staff, will have another chance next spring and, if minor league records mean anything, he will have a good chance of making the grade under Ray Blades, the club's new manager.

Sunkel last spring was "farmed" out to Atlanta of the Southern Association and recalled by the Cardinals following a successful campaign.

Working in what is considered one of the fastest minor leagues in baseball, Sunkel not only topped the circuit in games won and lost, but in efficiency and strikeouts.

The left-hander won 21 games and lost only five. He worked in 15 complete games and had three shutouts to his credit. Pitching in 243 innings, Sunkel yielded only 63 earned runs, an average of 2.33 each nine rounds. Enemy batters were able to make but 199 hits off his delivery. He struck out 178 batters, the high mark of the circuit, while he passed 85 batters.

Which record indicates that when the Redbirds gather at St. Petersburg, Fla., for training next spring, Sunkel will have to be given serious consideration.



Awaiting the Flight.

MISSOURI and Illinois hunters are still awaiting the main flight of northern mallards which left Canada nearly two weeks ago. Cold weather drove the ducks from their summer homes and they went as far as the Dakotas before settling down. Another cold siege sent some of them on down and last reports had them relaxing on Iowa and Illinois waters.

Although several small flights passed over Missouri the first part of last week there was nothing to deter them and from reports we gather that they never stopped until they hit Arkansas.

Chicago hunters say that they are being deprived of any shooting this year because of the law against baiting and the fact that ducks in Illinois are content to feed in the fields and within the bounds of the Chautauqua refuge a couple of hundred miles south of Chicago.

This would put the fowl in this vicinity and while there are some around Horseshoe Lake, the main flights have not yet arrived. In this zone we have until Nov. 28 at 4 p. m. and naturally are anxious for a permanent, cold rain to set in to the north of us to drive those belated ducks into this area.

New Lease on Quail Life.

William Mansfield, local shooting enthusiast, pays a compliment to Missouri quail after he and a party of three returned from a two-day hunting trip in the south-central part of the State. Not because of individual opinion, but because it is apparently the consensus among hunters who have taken the upland trail this season do we quote parts of his letter.

"The surprising thing about this year's quail crop is the fact that they seem so much faster and vigorous than in previous years. Until our farmer-host told us that it was the general rule this season, we thought ourselves very poor city shots indeed the way we were missing our birds. They seemed to be up and away so much faster."

Several years ago conservation agencies throughout the State began planting young birds. The result, it is explained, was that these quail, held in captivity so long, were generally slow and spiritless. Especially was this noticeable during the field trials held in various parts of the State where many observers were on hand to watch the birds.

The letter continues: "When we flushed the covey, invariably most of the birds would fly not more than a couple of feet above the cover instead of getting up so to afford a better and more lasting target. And, when they were hit there were several who kept those wings beating for many a yard before finally giving up; this is certainly a contrast to those who plummeted to earth at the same time the shot entered them a couple of years ago. Of course, I realize that there are bad hits and direct hits, but all of mine aren't as bad as those fighting birds would indicate."

Illinois Shooting Good.

With only a couple of weeks before the season ends (Dec. 9) Illinois hunters report a very good year with quail. Especially has it been good in the southern part of the State. The conditions in the land across the Mississippi have been similar to Missouri's during the past year with the result that, as in Missouri, birds are plentiful.

Laddies in Red.

Fully aware that too many hunters follow the threat of the old outlaw, "move and I'll shoot," supervising employes of the United States forestry service will substitute red jackets and caps for their regular green uniforms for safety during the deer season in Wisconsin. The Sixth Area Army Corps has ordered CCC boys and officers to wear a two-inch red hatband and to erect warning signs a half mile from camps.

Duck Stamp Sales Soar.

Reports from the Bureau of Biological Survey show that there are more licensed duck hunters than ever before. The first state to eclipse its old record for the number of dollar Federal duck stamps sold was Michigan, with over 60,000 sold, as compared to 56,888 in 1937. The total in the nation was, Nov. 1, 783,039, which exceeds the old record of 1934 by 150,000.

NBC Host to Missouri Gobbler.

Missouri's wild turkeys and the Conservation Commission's wild turkey restoration program will be featured over NBC stations at 7:30 o'clock Thanksgiving Eve on Dave Elman's Hobby Lobby hour.

The collection of handmade wild turkey callers from every part of the Missouri Ozarks will form the basis of the Hobby Lobby discussion to be conducted by Townsend Godsey of the commission. Godsey will leave the early part of the week in order to work out a carefully planned program with the sponsor.

Uncle Sam in Action.

Game law violators worried after reading the account of the Nielson case in Toledo, O., a few days ago. This was the greatest triumph for the enforcement division of the United States Bureau of Biological Survey.

Charles Nielson and four relatives were indicted by a Federal grand jury for baiting a commercial hunting marsh with feed to attract wild ducks. The verdict: Nielson to pay a $1500 fine; he was placed on probation for five years, instead of serving a year and a day in prison; he was forbidden to manage any commercial shooting grounds for three years; he must dispose of any and all decoys which he now has and must have no others for at least three years; he must remove all dams built on his property for the purpose of flooding growing crops, and, that any lease he might make of this property now his shall contain a clause forbidding the erection of blinds in any flooded fields.

Pot Shots.

Local bird dog handlers will be interested to learn that the Kentucky (Louisville) Pointer and Setter Club will guarantee $1000 for its three open stakes next March. That kind of money definitely puts bite into the big-time trials. . . . Crows do not merely eat crops. Twenty-eight per cent of a crow's food is animal matter. Most of that is made up of insects, more than a third of which are grasshoppers. . . . The reason that there is today more wild game in Pennsylvania than when William Penn founded the colony is because for the past 50 years the State has regarded wildlife as a most important natural resource and has practiced conservation all that time. . . . Amazing the way fishermen stick to their sport. With the duck season almost over and freezes right behind, nearly as many fishermen as hunters can be counted in a day's journey around the Lake of the Ozarks. . . . Approximately 30,000 bass have been transferred from the Centertown (Ark.) hatcheries to six streams in Benton and Washington counties. The young fish range from four to nine inches in length. Looks like some good fishing ahead right across the line.

Questions and Answers.

"I notice that in all the field trials, the pointers outnumber the setters 10 or 15 to one. I always have been partial to setters, can't understand the field trial preference and thought possibly you could enlighten me. My setters always have ranged far and wide; they fear no brambles; they retrieve, but there must be some reason for the field trial trend toward the short-haired dogs. JEFFERSON COUNTY.

Most field trial men admit that a setter will do everything a pointer will do, but they explain that a pointer finds himself much sooner. That is, the pointer pup is bolder, usually, and the dog owner or handler can tell when the pointer is a year old, about what can be expected of the animal. The setter, on the other hand, takes longer to mature, making it much more expensive to develop setters, than pointers.

"Will you please settle an argument for us. While quail hunting we ran into a dove run and the question arose as to whether the bag limit referred to total birds, or the kinds of birds. One hunter contended you could take 10 doves and 10 quail in one day. another insisted that would be a violation." S. A. P.

It is legal to bag 10 quail AND 10 doves in one day, when both seasons are open. But don't shoot doves with an automatic or pump, unless it is plugged to carry not more than three shells, you'll be violating the migratory bird regulations. However, the dove season in Missouri closed Nov. 15 under the Migratory Bird Law.

Sumner, Vashon Play in Annual Game, Thursday

St. Louis' biggest football game as far as Negroes are concerned, is scheduled for next Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Public Schools Stadium, when the Sumner High School Bulldogs and the Vashon High Wolverines meet to decide the City Negro High School championship.

For the past eleven years the teams have fought for the title. Each team owns five victories, while one game ended in a tie.

Sumner has a wealth of material from which to draw. Its second eleven has nearly as much power as the first string team. Vashon cannot boast an over-supply of players. Vashon's outstanding players are: Kincaide, Kirksey, Lavalle, Butler, Spencer, and Hill, while Sumner will depend on McFarland, who is now in his senior year, Anderson, Harris, Emory, and Smith to star for the Bulldog eleven.

The game usually attracts more than 5000 persons.

LENNEMANNS, FOOD CENTERS IN TITLE GAME

The title defending Lennemanns and the Food Centers, winners of the first half crown, will meet today in the final game of the Municipal Football Association schedule to determine the championship of the second half season. The contest, starting at 3 o'clock, will be preceded by a 1 o'clock game between the Ikens and the Massaras Cafe on the Drill Grounds, near the Jefferson Memorial tennis courts in Forest Park. There will be an admission charge of 25 cents.

The Food Centers defeated the Lennemanns in the closing minutes of the season's first game, 6-0. If the Foods win again they will capture the season's championship. If the Lennemanns triumph, it will force a play-off between the winners of the two half seasons next Sunday.

Two Lennemann players hold the individual scoring leadership. Carl Wood, former St. Louis University captain, is first with 36 points and Joe Szuch, ex-Roosevelt High all-star, is next with 25 points.

Co-managers Wood and Bob Alexander of the Lennemanns will be starting practically the same team that won the title last year with the exception of John Schroer, McBride High's 1937 all-Preparatory League wingman, at right end. Besides Wood and Szuch, the other backfield starters will be Al Mueller and Carl Gordon, former Cleveland High quarterback and fullback, respectively.

Montgomery will start a heavy Food Center line in front of backfield men Bill Koch at quarter, Larry Schottel at left half, Amiel Lange, former McKinley High all-star, at right half and Charley Polleschultz, Beaumont High plunger and blocker at fullback. Six other good backs will be alternated freely with this quartet, including Jack Janeff of Rolla Mines, Merle Sanguinet, Bruno Tschannen, Joe Kestranek, Charley Connors and John Hequemborg.

The teams are about equal in weight. The Foods have a three-pound team advantage, 183 to 180; are outweighed in starting backs, 172-174, but have a five-pound edge in the line, 188-183.

With the assistance of Jack Corcoran, the city's director of inter-community center athletics, Turner will present a program of six exhibition boxing matches prior to the awarding of sweaters.

HAGUE FIGHT CARRIED TO SUPREME COURT

Civil Liberties Union and CIO Assail Action of U. S. Circuit Judge.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—The CIO and the American Civil Liberties Union told the Supreme Court today that "extraordinary behavior" of presiding Judge J. Warren Davis of the United States Circuit Court at Philadelphia had created public suspicion that the tribunal had been "packed" in favor of Mayor Frank Hague and other Jersey City officials.

In an unusual petition, the organizations asked the Supreme Court to take immediate jurisdiction over their civil rights controversy with Mayor Hague and to prohibit the United States Circuit Court from taking further action. They asserted that public confidence in the Circuit Court had been shaken.

Morris L. Ernst, New York attorney, filed the petition, which asserted that "the basic civil liberties of the American people are at issue here."

The application grew out of a decision by the New Jersey United States District Court restraining Mayor Hague and other Jersey City officials from denying the two organizations the right to conduct public meetings, distribute handbills and carry placards if others were permitted to do so. Hague asked the Circuit Court to suspend the effectiveness of the decision pending a final ruling on an appeal.

When a Circuit Court hearing was conducted Nov. 9, on the petition to postpone application of a decision, Ernst said presiding Judge Davis convened five judges instead of the customary three-judge tribunal. Two of the five were on the retirement list on account of age, the attorney added. He said the law specified that a Circuit Court consist of three judges and that Judge Davis had offered no explanation for the "void and illegal court" assembled.

Ordinarily the Supreme Court does not pass on District Court decisions until after the Circuit Court has announced an opinion.

FULL USE OF BAKING PLANTS AT HOSPITALS CONSIDERED

City Commission Discusses Proposal to Put Two in Operation in April.

The City Hospital Commission is considering a plan whereby expensive bakery equipment at Homer G. Phillips Hospital for Negroes, 2601 Whittier street, and at City Sanitarium, 5300 Arsenal street, will be fully utilized for the first time.

The equipment at Homer G. Phillips has been idle since the hospital was opened in June, 1937, because the hospital budget failed to provide for more than one baker. Only part of the sanitarium bakery has been used because its installation was not completed when the sanitarium budget was drawn up last year.

Dr. E. C. O'Brien, assistant hospital commissioner, said one baker was unable to make enough bread to supply the hospital, and as a result the city had been spending about $300 a month for bread at the institution. By the plan now under consideration full use of the equipment at both places will start in April.

CARBON MONOXIDE KILLED JUNIOR LEAGUER, EXPERT SAYS

Police at Springfield, Mass., Renew Inquiry Once Dropped on Report Woman Killed Self.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 19.—A State toxicologist's report that Elizabeth Dorr, 23 years old, died of carbon monoxide gas poisoning tonight led police to reopen their investigation into the death of the Junior Leaguer.

Detectives previously had dropped their inquiry when a medical examiner, C. J. Downey, gave a tentative verdict of "probable suicide" by an undetermined poison.

Dressed in pajamas and a beach robe, miss Dorr was found dead in the family's two-car garage Thursday morning. Police said the ignition of each car was shut off, the gasoline tanks were filled and the engines were cold.

The girl, a Smith College graduate who had been reported in good spirits by her parents, was the daughter of an investment broker and was graduated from Smith in 1937.

4 DEER HUNTERS KILLED ON FIRST DAY OF SEASON

By the Associated Press.

RHINELANDER, Wis., Nov. 19.—Four Wisconsin hunters were killed today when the seven-day deer season opened. They were:

Louis Weyer, 60 years old, farmer of the Catawba vicinity, and a member of the Price County Board, killed by a stray bullet.

Ralph Harrison, 29, Ashland High School instructor, shot to death near Delta in Bayfield County when a companion's weapon accidentally discharged.

Delbert Parr, 56, of Warrens, who was struck in the head by a stray bullet.

Lawrence Guist, 26, of Readstown, died in a Sparta hospital a few hours after being struck by a bullet as he rode home in a truck from a hunting trip. The bullet came through the cab, striking Guist in the head.

W P A WORKERS' UNION UP TO C I O BOARD

Lewis Says at First Meeting Plans Were Made to Push Union Activities.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 19.—The CIO, welded into a permanent Congress of Industrial Organizations, left with its executive board today the problem of organization of WPA workers and the unemployed.

The 38-man executive board was authorized in a resolution adopted yesterday to "take such action as may be deemed necessary to provide proper service and protection to the unemployed and WPA workers.

The resolution declared that many hundreds of thousands of "CIO members and potential CIO members are included in those who are unemployed and on WPA rolls."

It added that "organization of these workers is essential not only for their own protection but also for the protection of those who are employed in private industry."

The mandate of the convention to the board said organizations already functioning in the field must be taken into consideration.

After the convention adjourned, President John L. Lewis convened the board for its first meeting but a spokesman said the resolution was not taken up.

Lewis said the board had made plans for executing in several unannounced industries a mandate of the convention to push union activities "with every means at our command."

He added Comptroller J. R. Bell had been reappointed and financial machinery set up consistent with the new CIO convention. The present CIO national office, with John Brophy, as national director, would remain in status quo, he said.

The board also agreed, Lewis said, to issue charters to the Plaything and Novelty Workers' Union and the Fishermen's Union.

Most of the 519 delegates went home last night, leaving only United Automobile Workers' Union board members who met with President Homer Martin to discuss union problems. Martin said he expected the automobile workers' board to conclude its business tomorrow.

BRIDE IS A WIDOW BEFORE SHE CAN ANNOUNCE WEDDING

Husband Dies After Planning to Disclose Secret Marriage in Another Two Days.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 19.—Turner Collins, 38-year-old chief inspector for the Federal Housing Administration, eloped Oct. 11 with Miss Thelma Knox, 27, WPA employe.

They kept their marriage, by a rural magistrate, a secret because of Federal attitude toward man and wife on Government payrolls, but prepared to announce it Sunday, when Mrs. Collins planned to resign and become a housewife.

Collins went duck hunting Thursday, became ill with pneumonia and died Friday.

Tonight, the bereaved bride sent out the Sunday announcements of their marriage, as they had planned. She'll go back to her WPA job Monday, she said.

New York

by Lucius Beebe

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.

IT IS, of course, proverbial that few American urbanites know their own town. Not many Bostonians, it is safe to say, have been up Bunker Hill Monument or know the location of the Boston Stone, and there are probably scores of important San Franciscans who don't know which day of the week it is fashionable to lunch at the St. Francis and the Palace. In much the same way even your professional New Yorker is infrequently as well informed about what goes on in Manhattan as are thousands of people who spend 50 weeks out of the year in Omaha, Neb.; Pomona, Cal., or Shopton, Ia., and who come to the big city for a fling, primed with exhaustive information about every play, night club and roof garden, as well as the personal affairs, lives, loves, finances and witticisms of every celebrity who infests them. Milliners from Des Moines know all about the rumba band of the moment at La Conga and boy brokers from St. Paul have tickets for "Abe Lincoln" reserved a week before their descent from the Century.

BY LUCIUS BEEBE.

Anything that goes on in New York is the public property of the rest of the country, and with an immediacy that is bewildering. The reason for this is, obviously, the syndicated New York columns and news letters. There are scores of these, dealing with almost every aspect of Gotham life, from the theater to formal society and from women's fashions to Broadway. That almost all of them are highly successful is at once a tribute to the astuteness of the late Odd McIntyre, who started the whole business, and to the hold New York has upon the imagination of the rest of the United States as a fabled Babylon of luxury, fashion and highly perfumed and entirely enviable vice.

There isn't a phase of life in Manhattan that isn't chronicled in the provincial papers, and the same is true of Hollywood and, to a less extent, Washington, where there is little of general interest to report except politics. It is a truism that McIntyre gave his readers the New York they wanted, amidst which was something not entirely recognizable when compared with the original article, and his successors, Mr. Winchell, Mr. Sobol, Mr. Walker, Mr. Chapman, Miss Hughes and a score of others are no less responsible for the New York the world knows today. So we in New York had better pull down our shades at night if we don't want Longview, Tex., to be discussing the shade of our underwear.

● IT HAS REMAINED for cigar advertisments to exploit a word which may or may not become an integral part of the American language, but which certainly will give one pause. "Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Watts Jr.," reads the caption of a photograph of some nice looking people in evening dress, the gentleman smoking a panatela. "Blue Book elegantcia enjoying the smart vista of Pierre's Neptune Room, upper Fifth Avenue." "Elegantcia," that's what it says, just like intelligencia. If this business will stop right here perhaps there is no harm done, but the cigar people will have a lot to answer for if there is a sudden vogue of uppertensia, Park Avencia and Social Regencia. Better forget the whole thing.

Beyond all question, the finest case of schizophreniac shakes of the week was the property of the gentleman who tottered into Jack and Charlie's at high noon and made motions indicative of distress and hangover in the direction of Emil the barkeep. "Hey, driver," he commanded, "hey, driver, a brandy milk punch!"

● CONTINENTAL TRAVELERS almost invariably recall, as one of the most agreeable souvenirs of voyaging abroad, the meal service in French dining cars, with its scheduled seatings, its pleasantly routined courses and its multiplicity of wine bottles grouped at each table. The baskets of good French bread, the almost invariable omelettte, fresh veal and cheese, all served with that remarkable technique known only to French restaurant-car waitresses, are an amusing variation from the accustomed American practice of dining a la carte and at odd hours in transit. The first railroad to establish the French order of things aboard a luxury train, so far as we know, is the Union Pacific, which now makes a specialty of Continental-type dinners aboard the elaborate restaurant car of its streamlined transcontinental high-liner, the City of Los Angeles. There are two seatings at fixed hours, a necessity in view of the train's impressive passenger capacity, and, unless special request is made to the contrary, the fixed-price house dinner—and very excellent it is, too—is served synchronously to all the passengers. A typical meal which we encountered last week included marinated shrimp, clear green turtle soup, poached salmon with a variety of salads, desserts and cheese. There was cafe royal, if you wanted it, and on other menus such de luxe fare as pheasant, fresh mountain trout and giant rock crabs from the Pacific. Every one seemed to like being served from the big, common platters and there was a half-bottle of California wine with each dinner. Other dining-car stewards might find merit in the plan, even if it is a foreign importation.

● CASUAL COGITATION: Nothing could cut such a dash in Manhattan as to maintain one's own horses and carriages. . . . In an undistinguished automotive age they would become as much of a hallmark of their owner as the Hope diamond or the zebra stripes of Morocco. . . . Speaking of Morocco, John Perona's cousin, Armando, who is proprietor of the little restaurant so favored by collegians and debutantes, should be enchanted with the main scene from Paramount's picture, "Cafe Society," now in process of filming . . . To parody Morocco's zebra motif the art director has designed a night-club set of handsome proportions whose decor is dominated by leopard spots, exactly duplicating the decorative scheme at Armando's. . . . The match guessing game so widely exploited by Stanley Walker is gaining ground rapidly in Hollywood, where it is the customary diversion at Dave Chasen's and where Prince Mike Romanoff is steadily plugging it at the Clover Club.

"Dear Sister"

Aimee Semple McPherson Has Survived Many Troubles, and Is Still Going Strong as Head of Her Los Angeles Temple.

By H. H. Niemeyer
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MRS. McPHERSON, LEFT, AS SHE APPEARED BEFORE HER CONGREGATION ON HER FORTY-EIGHTH BIRTHDAY OCT. 9. SHE SAID THE COSTUME WAS SYMBOLIC OF HER CHILDHOOD IN ONTARIO, CAN. UPPER LEFT, HER SON, ROLPH McPHERSON, WHO IS TO SUCCEED HIS MOTHER EVENTUALLY AS PRESIDENT OF THE COMPANY OPERATING ANGELUS TEMPLE.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 19.

LOS ANGELES, we have been assured by the local Chamber of Commerce, is a place where sunshine and an orange a day—apples not being grown in this neighborhood are unrecognized by the C of C—will keep the doctor where he belongs; in San Francisco or San Diego, or some of the other plague spots unfortunate enough to be beyond the boundaries of this Garden Spot of the World. But people do get sick here. Sometimes even a great healer like Aimee Semple McPherson, whose Four Square Gospel organization IS a member of the Chamber of Commerce, puts too much faith in the sunshine advertisements and has to take to her bed with a bad cold. Right now happens to be one of those times. Two weeks ago, "Dear Sister," as she is familiarly known in this section, was unable to deliver her Sunday sermon entitled, "It's a Long Way to Tipperary." Last Sunday night her address was to have been "One Month to Live," but it was not delivered and at her Angelus Temple offices it was said that she would be laid up for about two weeks more.

And when Mrs. McPherson feels ill enough to go to bed and stay there she is really sick. A human dynamo when it comes to her work, she is an erg raised to nth degree in the matter of attending to her business. Saving souls via the wholesale route is an exacting task. All day, every day, and most of many nights she devotes herself to it. Occasionally she has to take time out for such little distractions as million-dollar lawsuits with relatives, writing the words and music to religious operas, composing hymns, arranging for the sale, as she did a few weeks ago, of her famous "castle" on Lake Elsinore, some 80 miles or so from Los Angeles; suddenly turning on detractors and bringing suit for libel (and winning it, too) against a national magazine which attacked her and her methods; and arranging for the burning, this coming New Year's Eve, atop the dome of Angelus Temple, of the last outstanding bills against her million and a half dollar church edifice.

Even though Aimee may not realize it there is a close connection between the sale of her Elsinore place and the scheduled burning of the church bills, a connection which in several somewhat similar instances has kept Aimee Semple McPherson a financially poor woman. Contrary to general belief she has no money to speak of herself. She has enjoyed a salary, gleaned from one Sunday collection at the Temple a month, comparable to that of a pastor of any large and rich church in the country but many times when she collected her salary she would have thrust upon her electric light bills for the Temple, water bills, bills for repairs on the great organ and things like that. The Temple was hers, there was no money in the treasury and so she paid the bills out of her own purse.

Her own personal expenses have been small but the upkeep of her family—including her mother, known more or less affectionately in Los Angeles as Ma Kennedy—has been quite large at times. There have been law suits, and fairly heavy settlements, with relatives. The Elsinore estate cost a good deal to keep up and Aimee, who built it as a place to rest, seldom found time after the first burst of pride in ownership to go that far or to take that long a rest. So it is that, in all probability, the something less than $15,000 which she has just received from two hardware dealers for the Elsinore retreat, will be, partly at least, thrown into the fund for the mortgage burning fete.

Out here where most mansions are built of chicken wire, tar paper and chalk, Aimee's former place, known as El Minera, at Elsinore, passes for a castle and has been frequently so described. Actually it is an elaborate, somewhat garnishly decorated—there is a domed ceilinged dining room covered with gold leaf—Moorish home. The grounds, which would not constitute an "estate" in St. Louis County, being less than an acre in extent, are prettily landscaped and there is a small swimming pool. Mrs. McPherson is an enthusiastic swimmer.

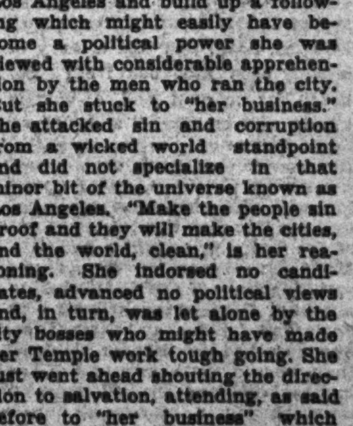
WHATEVER El Minera cost, Aimee squandered little money upon it herself. Los Angeles business firms which in late years have come to admire Mrs. McPherson for the work she had done among the poor of the city, donated much of the construction expenses. The much talked about gold leaf decorating was a gift and the site was given by the town of Elsinore to encourage growth in that vicinity. Motion picture studies have enjoyed the same sort of a start in far more valuable locations. So the Elsinore venture was not the "Aimee's Folly" as it has been called. She wanted a place where she could get away from the enacting duties of her Temple and for a short time she thought she had found it at Elsinore.

But it was too near Los Angeles and too far. Near enough to find her being called back to her work in the city almost as soon as she arrived at the "refuge" and too far for continual driving. As to driving Aimee drives herself, always, in a smart black roadster, and drives, at times, like the wind. She is a firm believer in keeping the law and when she is in a 20-mile zone she drives at 20 miles. But when, even through traffic, the city ordinances permit 45 miles, she goes 45 miles. Out on the open road the sky is the limit. One of her helpers at Angelus Temple says she outlines her sermons while she is driving. That may well be, for, in an ordinary week, when she is feeling herself, she delivers four sermons. But she has never had an accident nor been handed a ticket.

Aimee McPherson is a good extemporaneous talker on any subject. Keen and quick witted, she keeps abreast of the times. On the Bible she is an authority, and it is doubtful if any minister, of any denomination, could trip her up on anything in the Book. Certainly she would have a quick and enlightening answer. But her sermons, the three or four public addresses delivered to 5300 people, the full capacity of the Temple, each week, are all carefully prepared and memorized. Her secretary makes notes from the studied address and pins them in the large Bible on the pulpit on the Temple stage—for it is really a stage, with footlights and scenery, lighting effects and a 60-piece orchestra.

Apparently Aimee talks to the assembled multitude without referring to her manuscript. Actually she glances, and takes in, the typewritten notes. If there is a distraction in the congregation or something happens such as a crippled man suddenly throwing his crutches in the aisle and proclaiming himself cured, Mrs. McPherson can toss aside her prepared sermon and go into another talk, without notes. She could keep it up for hours if necessary. Out of her pulpit, "off stage" in a manner of speaking, Aimee does not "talk shop" to the people she meets unless they themselves bring up the subject of religion. It is this ability to mind her own business, the business of salvation, which has helped establish her with the City Fathers as well as the minor politicians of Los Angeles. It is a trait rather rare with flamboyant evangelists of her type and when she began to get her hold upon Los Angeles and build up a following which might easily have become a political power she was viewed with considerable apprehension by the men who ran the city. But she stuck to "her business." She attacked sin and corruption from a wicked world standpoint and did not specialize in that minor bit of the universe known as Los Angeles. "Make the people sin proof and they will make the cities, and the world, clean," is her reasoning. She indorsed no candidates, advanced no political views and, in turn, was let alone by the city bosses who might have made her Temple work tough going. She just went ahead shouting the direction to salvation, attending, as said before to "her business" which grew and grew to become a really big business.

ANGELUS TEMPLE, WHERE MRS. McPHERSON SHOUTS GLAD TIDINGS OF GREAT JOY TO HER FOLLOWERS.



MRS. McPHERSON'S FAVORITE PHOTOGRAPH OF HERSELF.

And when one says that Aimee shouts that is the exact word. She does not, in her sermons, work herself up to the stage of frenzy as many evangelists do. At that, she is not exactly cool and collected and she puts on a real show. If her sermon is an "illustrated" one she dresses to fit the occasion, appearing in the costume of the country and the people she is discussing. The stage is properly dressed, too. But always she shouts; she has been distributing salvation at the top of her lungs for years and it has left her public speaking voice rasping and hoarse. Off stage—one cannot help using that expression—her conversation is carried on in a low tone and her voice is then pleasant. She leads the singing at her services and has no trouble in standing out, vocally, above the 5300 persons who are always on hand to sing with her and the Temple's 60-piece orchestra. She knows all the songs. She wrote them.

OUTSIDE of her church, and when she works there in the daytime, she dresses smartly and attractively. Her blond hair is always carefully done up. By no stretch of the imagination, at 48, can she be called really pretty, but she is amazingly attractive and tremendously interesting looking. She lives simply in a small home near her church with a nurse and a houseboy. Her mother and her daughter, Roberta, are no longer members of her household. With the daughter, "Bertie," there is at present a sort of armed truce. With Ma Kennedy there is no truce apparent. Neither is connected in any way with Angelus Temple, although both were once prominent in the work there. Bickerings, and involved law suits, mostly based upon financial affairs, brought about the breach in the family.

But Aimee's 24-year-old son, Rolf, has stood by his mother and is assistant general manager of the Temple and all of its various interests. A tall, quiet, modest youth, he will—and this is the first time this interesting fact has been publicly announced—succeed Aimee Semple McPherson as president and chief stock owner of The Echo Park Co., the holding corporation into which Mrs. McPherson has thrown all of her physical interests in the large Angelus Temple properties. Until she did that she was the sole owner. Previously, she might have sold the Temple, the attached Bible College and the surrounding real estate and pocketed the money whenever she saw fit. There were times when detractors, hinting at scandal and such a course, said that would happen. Deeding the nearly $2,000,000 worth of property over to a corporation which is under control of the State of California was Aimee's answer.

THERE has been one real incident in Aimee's life which actually attained, in the press of the world, the dimensions of a genuine scandal. She came out of it, in the eyes of her followers at least with flying colors, and her answer that time, if it did not carry entire conviction everywhere, was never disproven, although trained reporters and investigators of all of the coast newspapers spent many weeks trying to shake her story.

That was the time when, on May 18, 1926, Aimee, clad only in a bathing suit, swam into the Pacific at Ocean Park and simply disap-

by Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 19.

THIS is the third time Paramount has swung into "Hotel Imperial." First with Marlene Dietrich, who walked out; then Margaret Sullavan, who tripped and broke her arm; now Isa Miranda, who's going to be something of a sensation, unless I miss my guess. She's the third stellar name occupying her dressing room—Pola Negri, Clara Bow. The first three mornings she worked, she got to the studio at 3 a. m. After hair do and makeup had been applied came an hour's ride to location and then she was doing rain, wind and mud scenes. And not one peep out of her. Rudolph Forster, one of the great actors of Europe, gave up a French picture to play in "Hotel Imperial." The production number of the picture is 303. And the studio is giving three cheers because they waited for Isa.

IT'S NEARLY always interesting to hear nice things about yourself. But Mary Boland wasn't so pleased to hear them on one rather recent occasion. After Halloween she discovered pranksters had taken her beautiful plants from around the fountain and dumped them into it. Mary, in a pair of slacks and sweater, was out, bent over double, rescuing them. A sight-seeing bus stopped and the barker with a glib tongue yelled, "Here's the home of Mary Boland, the motion picture star who loves goldfish and each morning sends her maid out to feed them. There she is now." Needless to say, Mary remained in that unflattering position until the bus moved on.

WHEN METRO made "The Great Waltz" they knew that "Gorgeous" Korjus possessed a voice but her audiences discovered she had sex appeal, too. It engulfs you almost as completely as the strains of Strauss. Now four pictures are being written for her. One is "Rozsa Sandor"—but she'd rather do the life of Adelaide Patti, with Charles Boyer and Toscanini, playing himself. That girl's got taste as well as showmanship.

WALT DISNEY took his staff of 100 to a children's matinee. The cartoonists all went childish when they saw "Peter Pan" at the Ebell. As you know, Disney is now making that into a feature length picture. Wonder which character will ask, "Do you believe in fairies?"

—o-o—

I SEE THAT Connie Bennett gives Sam Goldwyn credit for discovering her at a fancy ball in New York. Has Connie forgotten "What's Wrong With Women?" which she made 16 years ago, while she was the dancing partner of Maurice at the old Knickerbocker Hotel at Broadway and 42nd street?

—o-o—

HERE'S A LAUGH! Joan Davis was showing Alice Faye a new kind of kiss-proof liquid lip rouge. Gave me some, which I brought home. Total loss—no practice to date.

—o-o—

YOU DON'T HEAR many of these. A youth flat-footed it from Flint, Mich., to New Orleans, where he warbled in a night club. He was picked up by a talent scout—brought to Hollywood on a swell contract. He was met at the train by the usual barrage of photographers and so forth. Started going high-hat at that moment. After two snapshots, the newcomer said: "That's enough of that."

Later he sang at the Troc and was a hit. Wise guys said his voice was better than Kenny Baker's, and he definitely was on his way up.

But his head took on the proportions of the sky. Didn't like stories submitted. Contract lapsed at that studio. Went to another one, repeating same behavior. Finally, all doors were barred. He's now back in the dive in New Orleans whence he came—a wiser but sadder boy.

—o-o—

THE ANNOUNCEMENT that Lily Pons is retiring to sing lullabies is, to say the least, a little premature. She's concerting in Denver, Chicago, then the Met. Lily would love a baby but being a coloratura is very fearful. Sometimes motherhood ruins that delicate type of voice.

—o-o—

FRITZ REINER, after conducting "Elektra," flew to Pittsburgh, where he's taking charge of the symphony orchestra. We're missing the opera gang already. They have glamour in large doses but don't know it.

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

Male Cooks

by Inez Robb

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.

LET us lift up our voices today in praise of the unforgettable man who not only brings home the bacon but cooks it after he gets it there. It has been my pleasure to spend an inspiring afternoon in the middle of an amateur cooking contest for men in the kitchens of the Hotel Governor Clinton, with Bugs Baer, Gelett Burgess, Maj. H. C. Brenizer, U. S. A., Otto (Little King) Soglow and former G-Man Thomas Tracy in savage competition with each other and with several other well-known, off-side escoffiers.

INEZ ROBB

As a result of this experience I fear I must confirm man's proud boast that even in the kitchen, wrassling pots and pans, he is superior to his women folks. Unfortunately, I cannot reveal who won the contest, as around 6 p. m., after several hours of sampling everything from the Major's pretzel alley spaghetti to Cartoonist Bill Steincke's Pennsylvania Dutch sausage with potato pancakes, I was forced to retire to my home where the bicarbonate of soda is served on the half shell and free.

THE HOTEL'S KITCHENS, a spotless expanse of shining stoves, stainless steel warming ovens and glistening copper utensils, were reduced, by eve'n tide, to a shambles by the exceedingly individualist efforts of the contestants. Cooking brings forth a man's true nature, revealing more about the inner workings of his mind than a psychoanalyist.

Who would ever have dreamed that Capt. Clifford MacGregor, Arctic explorer, and one of the biggest, youngest and handsomest of the contestants, would turn out a whip-cream and gooey chocolate confection called "Brazil nut pie" which looked like something in a food shoppe, frequented by lady commuters, on the Boston Post road.

MY FAVORITE of the amateur cooks was a Mr. J. H. Mathews, an officer of the Atlantic Fisheries Association. The hotel informed the cooks that it would furnish any and all ingredients. Mathews, a quiet, dignified man with graying hair, took the hotel at its word, and cooked what he—and anyone else—would call a "complete clambake" for six persons.

Per his order, the hotel supplied Mr. M. with 120 soft shell clams, 120 Cherrystone clams, six one-pound sea bass, six one-pound live lobsters, six medium sized white potatoes, six sweet potatoes, six ears of green corn, three pounds broiling chickens, one cup of water, one-half bushel of rock weed, 24 pieces of cheese cloth 18 inches square and one 10-gallon pot. The various ingredients were tied up in the cheese cloth and all cooked together. At the end of three hours, even the cheese cloth was tender, and easily washed down with the "beer and ale" for six, also supplied by the hotel at Mr. Mathews' order.

"To really be complete, I should have had a watermelon, too," wistfully said Mr. Mathews, not a man to do things by halves.

BY THIS TIME, Gelett Burgess, author of "Look Eleven Years Younger," looked twice that much older as a result of his tussle with something he most appropriately called "apple mess—gefoojit." Sucking on his pipe and muttering furiously to himself, Mr. Burgess spent the afternoon hollowing out apples and stuffing them with an intricate concoction, only to discover, at the eleventh hour, that he'd been using the wrong kind of apples all the time, which necessitated starting in all over again.

With the arrival of Bugs Baer and society's W. Radford Bascome Jr., the can opener came into its own. It must be reported, however, that their fellow cooks shunned these two as the plague and averted their gaze when Bugs and Bascome got out the can opener.

The Baer recipe was simplicity itself, consisting of one can of condensed pea soup, one-half cup Madeira wine, carrots Julienne, and equal amount of milk, and whipped cream. Heat all slowly but do not boil, add carrots and when soup is in cups place one tablespoon whipped cream on top each portion. The Bascome recipe was a little more intricate variation of the same theme.

Courage -:- By Elsie Robinson

COURAGE—what cockeyed notions we have about it. We think of courage as a flame which fires our cowardly flesh to heroic deeds. Or we think of it as a constant quality which some people have, some haven't. You're brave or you're not; just as you're short or tall, blonde or brunette.

Of course you'd prefer to be brave. It must be wonderful to face life without flinching—to be always sure of yourself. How lucky to be made like that! But if you aren't, you aren't; that's all.

So we dream, and run away at the first boogieman—merely because our ideas of courage are all muddled. Whereas, if we were taught the truth, we might all be brave. For courage is something anyone can acquire. It isn't a flame which seizes us and sweeps us on to superhuman feats. Nor it is a birth gift.

—o—o—

NO ONE IS "born brave." We are all born cowards—and must fight fear all our lives. And the fight is usually toughest at that very moment when we seem most heroic.

Heroes do not thrill and tingle. They ache and shiver. They want to cry. In short, in the face of unpleasantness, discomfort and danger a brave man feels exactly as a timid man feels. He has exactly the same reluctance to go ahead, the same miserable sense of insecurity.

Then why are some men heroes, and some cowards? Because some men choose to be heroes and some choose to be cowards.

—o—o—

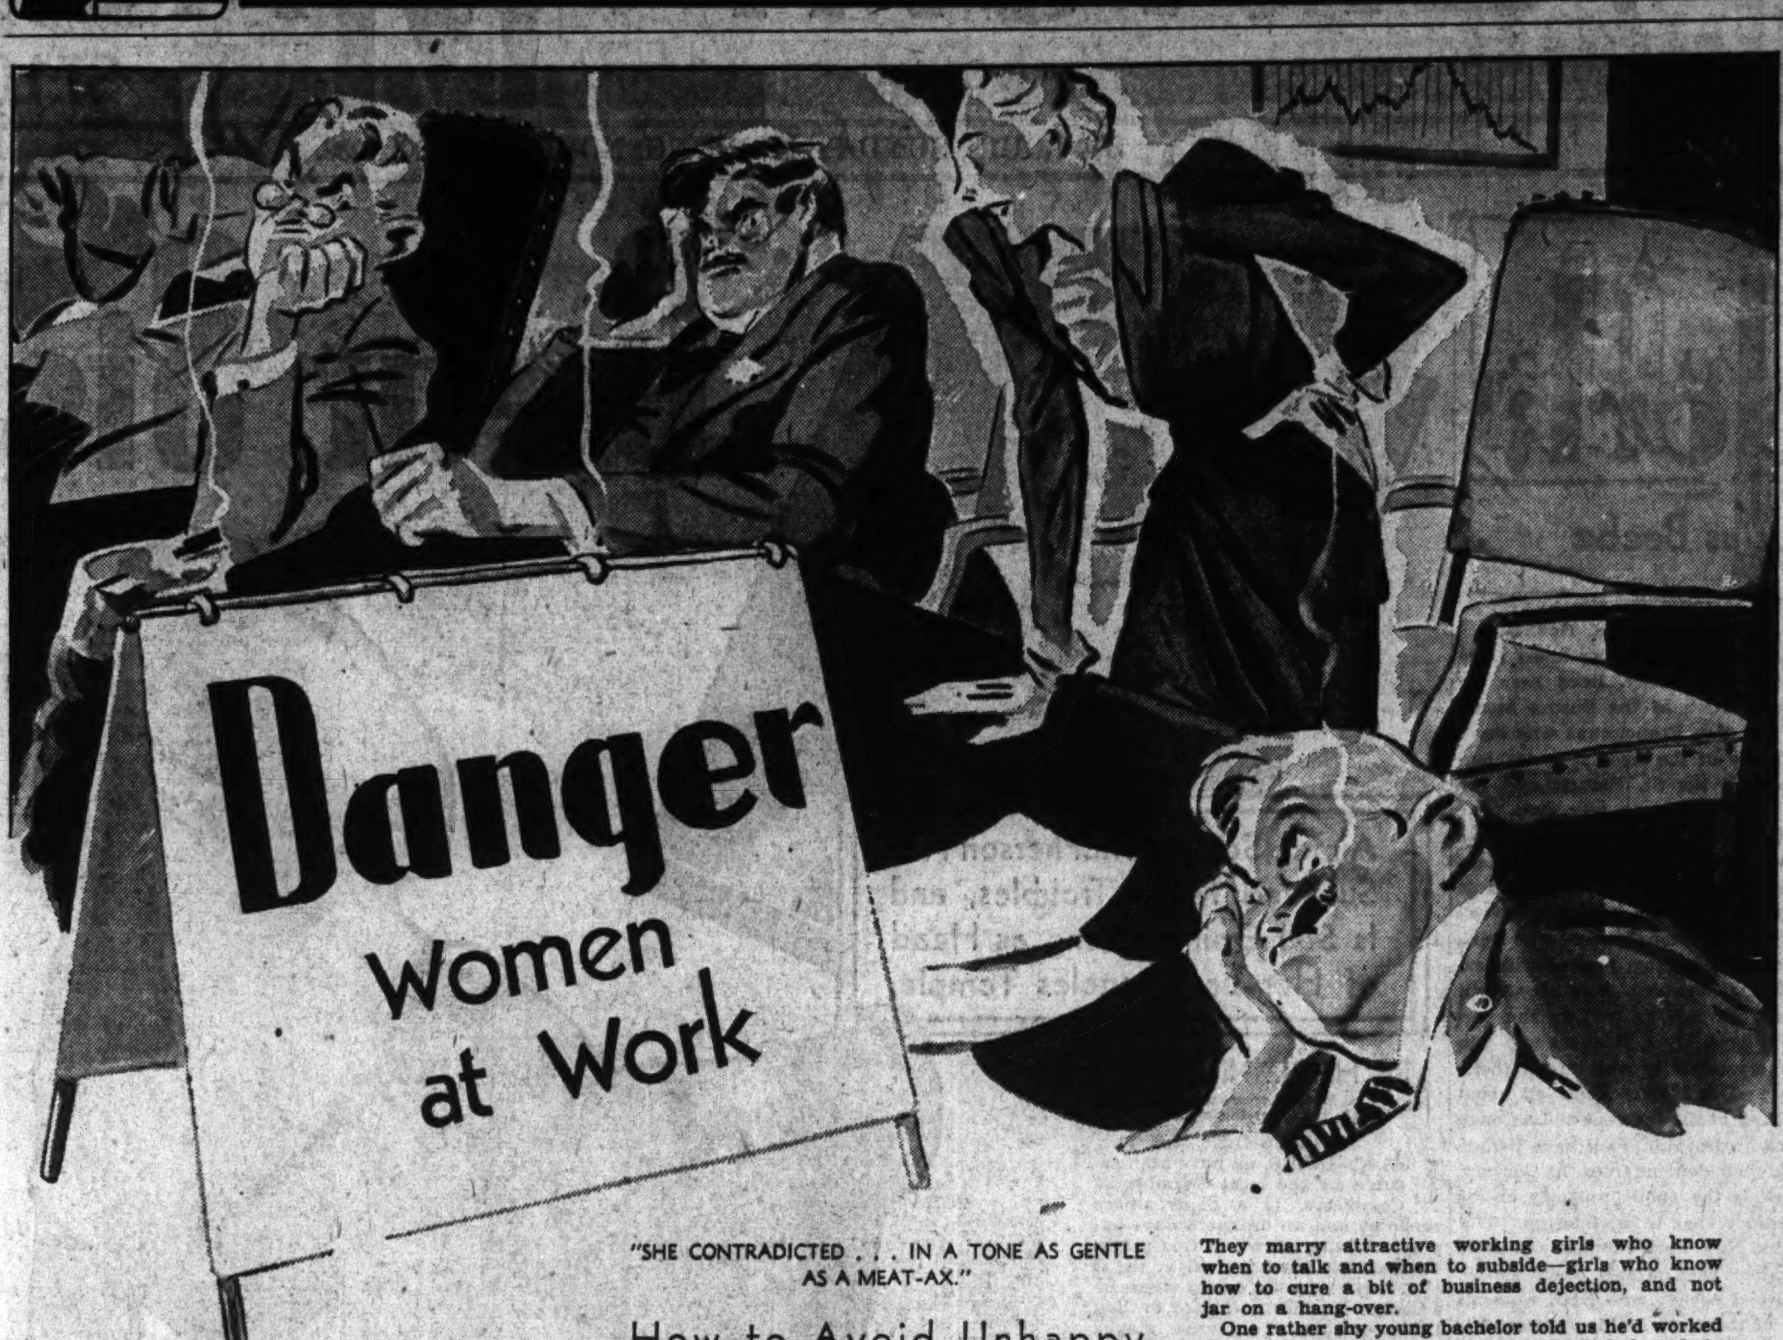
COURAGE ISN'T an emotional seizure. Nor is it an inheritance. Courage is a deliberate attitude—a civilized habit. The brave man is as much afraid as the timid man, and he knows it. But he won't surrender to that fear. He won't let it rule him. He has been taught, and he has taught himself, that yielding to fear is abominable.

Anyone can be brave. We can choose to be brave exactly as we choose to be honest, tidy, prompt and polite.

"MY RIGHT AGE" By Emily Post

DEAR MRS. POST: I am to be married soon to a man who is six months younger than I am. I know every one believes he's older because he looks it. Please tell me if you think I'll have to give my right age when we go for the marriage license. Isn't a woman privileged at this one time in her life to make herself sound a little younger?

Answer: Perhaps you would do well to remember the old proverb: "A lie is married as soon as it is born, and its progeny soon outnumbers that of Adam." But it seems to me that an old family friend is sooner or later sure to come along and say, "Oh, yes, yes, I know; she is exactly 33 this coming November, because I was waiting for my Hughie that same time, and Hughie is just one week younger."



"SHE CONTRADICTED . . . IN A TONE AS GENTLE AS A MEAT-AX."

How to Avoid Unhappy Habits That Practically Ruin Fun of Toiling With Men.

By HILDEGARDE DOLSON

Author of "How About a Man."

THIS hoopla about women loving their work is all very fine, but we still contend that half the fun is working with men. All right, stop yelling. We didn't say you necessarily wanted to marry the men, did we? Whether you do or don't, the presence of a few blue serge suits and nice masculine grins is enough to brighten any career girl's day.

Now—how do men feel about women cluttering up their eight-hour day? They're not only resigned to it—they even like it. But there are working girls men cheer for, and others they view with acute melancholia. For instance, one tired business man (no, he does not know that third blonde girl from the left with the birthmark on her knee) gritted his teeth and said plenty. He was describing the working girls who think all men love a moron. And he painted a lurid picture of the women who flutter their lashes and close in on a busy man with idiotic questions. There are fluffy, cuddly types who can get away with that on dates, but it rates thumbs down with the boys in business. If you actually need help, and go about it intelligently, any man will gladly lend his master mind to solve your troubles. He'll even be flattered.

On the other side of the fence, where the grass just looks greener, we give you an advertising man's tale of woe. He started off cheerily by saying, "Some career girls ought to be in a cozy padded cell, instead of an office." He went on to tell us about an important meeting, in which the executives of both sexes were to plan an advertising campaign for a big account. One of the younger women present, a good-looking newcomer who's caused considerable head-turning among the men, proceeded to air her views. Our friend said, "She wasn't content to state her ideas and then shut up. She made more noise than four females playing bridge, telling what she thought, and contradicting all the men in a tone about as gentle as a meat-ax. When she couldn't get her way by that method, she scolded us like an old-maid aunt. By the time we'd had two hours of that, every man at the meeting could have strangled her."

Take that to heart, and especially if you want to see the little gentlemen after hours. Even if you think you're smarter than they are, why flounce around telling them they're dopes? Exposing their mistakes with scornful laughter isn't very bright, either. After all, they were here first, and they are the ones who pay the dinner check.

Besides, a little feminine tact is always good business. For example, we saw a pretty assistant sit beside a young office manager's desk, while he asked her opinion on a sales promotion plan he'd worked out. Instead of rasping out, "It stinks," she praised its good points at length. Then she tactfully suggested a few changes, which her boss took, and took gratefully. He also took her dancing, in case you're interested.

NOW will you forgive us a minute while we knock the daylights out of an old movie myth? Men who marry their secretaries do not marry them because the girls wear Adrian's newest creations, or because they look like Joan Crawford, or make cunning gestures such as standing on their heads or kidnaping a business rival. (Not that it hurts a girl's chances to look like Joan Crawford. That ought to be good for a raise any day in the week.) Men marry their secretaries because same damsels give them understanding and companionship. Honest! They marry attractive working girls who know when to talk and when to subside—girls who know how to cure a bit of business dejection, and not jar on a hang-over.

One rather shy young bachelor told us he'd worked like mad on a big business deal, and hoped to clinch it over a dinner with the firm's big shots. That afternoon he was almost clammy with worry that he'd fail. His quiet secretary, who had worked with him on every detail, sensed how he felt. Just before he left the office for his appointment, she appeared with a big red carnation for his buttonhole. To say that he was pleased is to wallow in understatement. And after the deal went through, the first thing he did was to take her out for a celebration.

Naturally, we don't go on record as saying that pelting a man with flowers will make you his Queen of the May. Maybe he has hay fever and hates flowers. What we do say is that thoughtfulness and feminine intuition in an office improve any girl's rating. Another thing—how's your disposition? We've heard business men launch into quite a fancy list of grievances against women, on that score. Yes, we know men sometimes act like brooding bears, or blow up and roar all over the place. But a woman who keeps her voice soothingly calm, instead of screaming like a fish-wife, has a much better chance of quieting explosions, and getting out to lunch. Looking like a sour-puss doesn't help much, either.

Dashing around the office raving about what a big time you had last night is equally bad. The men present don't really care whether you mixed gin with champagne, and what your escort said to the doorman. Also—a man in a publishing firm described the way a girl in his office took phone calls. He said, "She squeals frantically, makes sure everybody within 50 yards knows she's talking to a man, and wants us all to see what a popular little minx she is. Girls like that are about as appealing as poison ivy."

If by any chance you're one of those bristling little dears who acts as though every man in business wanted to insult her with mink coats and unholy love, our advice is brief. Stop having delusions of grandeur, or go get a job with the Ladies' Aid. The rest of us career girls will stick to an office where a man is not a mirage, and business may lead to anything.

peared. For more than a month no trace of her was found. Thousands of her followers frantically searched the ocean front and one man was drowned when he swam out too far. Her son, then a student at a Los Angeles military school, was convinced that she was dead and the country began to accept his thoughts. Then one day, on the following June 23, bedraggled and exhausted, she stumbled across the Mexican border near Douglas, Ariz., and told a story of having been kidnaped from the beach by a man and a woman known only as "Steve" and "Rosy." Long drawn-out court investigations never shook this explanation.

Kenneth Ormiston, radio operator with whom her name was linked by gossip at that time, dropped out of the Temple's activities and Mrs. McPherson began an evangelistic speaking tour of the world, taking a verbal fling at wickedness in Paris and London and New York. She returned to become stronger than ever in the hearts of her followers here, and in 1921 married Dave Hutton, a rosy-faced singer in her church choir. This marriage went on the rocks not long after when a nurse sued Hutton for breach of promise.

Hutton was Aimee's third husband. Her first—and only true love it has been said—was a young Irish evangelist named Robert Semple whom Aimee, then Aimee Elizabeth Kennedy, married in Canada, when she was 19. He died during an epidemic in China where he and Aimee were Penticost missionaries. The daughter, Roberta Semple, was a child of this marriage. Rolf is a son of the second husband, Harold McPherson, a Southern grocer. That marriage ended in divorce. Mrs. McPherson says that she tried to settle down and become a housewife but the call to preach grew strong again and family disagreements brought about the split.

It was in 1917 that the obscure Aimee Kennedy Semple McPherson came to Los Angeles. She was not obscure for long. In five years, with her earnestness, her magnetic personality—and her shouting of the Gospel—she raised an even half million dollars to build Angelus Temple. Her rise was rapid. Her Temple, scoffed at by other, and more orthodox denominations, worked its way into public favor by taking care of the poor persons of the city. Any one, any family, had but to apply to the Temple and say they were hungry and the food was forthcoming. No questions were asked. It was a practical road to Salvation. Since those early beginnings that road has been well paved. The commissary department at Angelus Temple today is a tremendous business in itself. Big Los Angeles bakeries donate hundreds of loaves of bread daily for free distribution. Meat and vegetable dealers do the same and the department stores furnish cloth from which many workers, women members of the congregation who labor free, fashion clothing and bedding on a battery of power machines furnished by the manufacturers.

Aimee is a close friend of the policemen and firemen of the city. They notify her at once when some poor family is burned out and the Temple trucks drive out with a load of immediate necessities. At Christmas time, when the Temple really goes to town with its charities the firemen do the distributing in city vehicles.

Aimee has always been interested in fighting fire. She does it herself, figuratively, you know. One of her great ambitions was to ride on a fire engine and one day Fire Chief Scott, with sirens sounding, pulled up at the Temple on a pumper and Aimee was rushed to a three-alarm blaze. That gives an indication of how she stands with the firemen.

Aimee Kennedy took to her evangelistic work young. She herself says that she stepped right from a milk pail to God. Born on a farm near Toronto, she was in high school and 17 when she attended a Penticost mission, heard Robert Semple preach and forgot school and everything else for her new-found religion.

AT school Aimee had been a leader in dramatics. She wrote, even then, plays and little operas, singing and playing in them herself. She might have graduated to the stage but for that accidental meeting with Robert Semple. And from the stage to the movies. Even now she has standing offers from the cinema makers, offers which would bring her more money than she has been charged with having made out of her Temple. She does not consider them.

Most of Aimee's troubles have centered around the matter of money or at least charges involving money have cropped up in all of her famous lawsuits. She and her mother parted company soon after Ma Kennedy's spectacular marriage to Guy Hudson. Hudson was charged with bigamy at that time, but the charges were dropped when he obtained a divorce from his first wife in Las Vegas, Nev. Mrs. Kennedy-Hudson said a lot of uncomplimentary things about Temple financing at that time. Rheba Crawford, a former Salvation Army worker who had been known as "The Angel of Broadway," was engaged as the Temple's assistant pastor at a salary of $375 a month. Mrs. McPherson got the impression that Rheba, a very pretty woman who had played some part in California politics, was trying to take over the Temple. She said so, rather plainly, and promptly fired Miss Crawford. Rheba said that, during the firing process, Aimee used the word "Jezebel," which, at that time, carried a more sinister meaning than the movie actress, Bette Davis, has given it in a recent picture. Miss Crawford brought suit for more than a million dollars—Los Angeles always thinks in big figures since the movies came — for slander. There was some sort of a small settlement out of court, but, in depositions, Aimee said what she thought of Miss Crawford's political connections and the latter charged that Aimee was money-mad. At those hearings Mrs. McPherson said that her salary from the church amounted to about $175 a week and that she had access to special funds for her European traveling expenses.

Rolf McPherson is married to the former Lorna Dee Smith, an Oklahoma girl, who was a student at the Lighthouse of International Four-Square Evangelism, Angelus Temple's Bible college, where hundreds of students from all parts of the world attend a three-year course to fit them for the Four-Square ministry. It is fortuitously known as L. I. F. E. College. The marriage has been a happy one, which is somewhat rare in the family, and there are two little children. Even this union, however, has had a cloud. Young Mrs. McPherson's father, Earl J. Smith, moved out here to become a worker in the Temple. After a row he resigned, making the customary charges involving church financing.

Aimee's lawsuits have long cluttered up the courts. Only once, in her recent libel action against a national magazine, has she been on the accusing end. She got a quick settlement, out of court, in that instance, for $2000. She does not believe in law suits. Quotes from the Bible which says, "Go not to law with thy brother." But magazines, Mrs. McPherson finds, are not really brothers. There was an open threat in her announcement of the settlement with the magazine that she was going to be more discriminating in her selection of brothers —especially brothers who print magazines.

Fur Accessories

The fad for coats that are devoid of fur trimming gives more opportunity for the use of fur in accessories. A little suede turban that is edged with baum marten, for example, calls for matching suede gloves edged with the same flattering decoration. A tiny collar of black Persian lamb ties with black velvet ribbons while a muff of the same pelt is similarly trimmed. Gloves made entirely of fur are appearing in the shops. Vestees and scarfs of caracul and other flat furs are numerous. Even belts are being made of handsome skins to make up for the absence of these on many winter coats.

Girl About Town

by Clarissa Start

IT is a trite but true observation that we rarely appreciate the places of interest about the old home town until visitors and tourists from other heaths point them out to us. This, at least, has been the case with pleasure travel on the Mississippi, a feature of life in St. Louis which visitors never fail to admire, but which has been languishing for a number of years owing to complete local indifference. This native disinterest is now a thing of the past, however, or soon will be if the Society for the Preservation of Ancient River Traffic has anything to do with it.

The society, a lusty youngster, was born just two weeks ago at a meeting of interested parties at the home of Dr. Frederick Jostes, St. Louis physician and river enthusiast. When questioned, Dr. Jostes told us that this ambitious gathering was the result of a river trip taken some time before, when a group of 80 chartered an Eagle Packet boat for an excursion up the river. During the trip, members of the party discovered from Capt. Buck Leyhe, veteran river navigator, that their boat and similar ones were to be withdrawn from the river because they did not come up to Government requirements specifying steel hulls, and that, since interest in these trips seemed to be dying out, they would probably not be replaced.

FEELING the righteously indignant urge that "something ought to be done," the society began by appointing a committee manned by Herbert Cost, Victor Cullin, Ernest Houx, Howard Cammack and Ira Fischer. No permanent officers have been appointed as yet, but, according to the committee, they intend to reassemble the group for an early spring and late fall trip in order to do all they can to prolong the old regime, and also to help get boats that will meet with Government requirements when the old boats are scrapped.

Dr. Jostes, host of the recruits, said he had been astounded at Captain Leyhe's statement that if it were not for the people who come from Chicago and New York as well as other points outside St. Louis to make these river trips, the boats would have been abandoned long ago.

As an example of this interest from afar, we were told that Mr. Olds, of the Oldsmobile Oldses, insisted that his granddaughter come down from Lansing, Mich., to take a trip on a river steamer recently, instead of a proposed vacation jaunt to New York, because, he said, "River traffic is something that is rapidly dying, and you may never have this chance again."

"RIVER TRAVEL, like the Indians, is a part of our history that is passing away," said Herbert Cost, speaking for the committee, "and we intend keeping it alive as long as we can."

Dr. Jostes expressed the opinion that too many people think of river boat pleasure trips only in terms of day picnics, which are often noisy and nerve wracking, or an occasional "moonlight excursion," general limited to the young in heart and the fleet of foot. Consequently interest in week-end and longer trips has slowed down to a stroll and is threatening to stop. And it is these week-end trips that are the quietest and most enjoyable of all, according to Dr. Jostes.

One of the favorite longer trips is the Tennessee River trip to Shiloh. We recall taking this trip ourselves once, but we were of pre-school age at the time, so the leisurely atmosphere did not make a lasting impression on us. What did linger on in pleasant memory was the fact that we were allowed to have three desserts—yes, three, with every meal.

OLDTIMERS about the city and many others who cling to the hallowed halls of tradition have been vigorously protesting via the editorial columns this week at the omission of the classic air, "Sweet Adeline," from the list of 20 favorite songs selected by the St. Louis Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing. Even the banning of "Die Lorelei" from German larynxes has not caused half the stir as did this ban, and the simultaneous inclusion of such a crass newcomer as "There's a Gold Mine in the Sky" on the society's list. The only explanation seems to lie in the encroachment of the softer mode of living on all of us. We would not be a bit surprised to see future quartets pause meditatively between sips of lemonade to sing in lilting sopranos, "Atisket Atasket, I lost my yellow basket."

—o-o—

THAT TAKES CARE of the club news for the week, except our own personal recommendation of a cause for any aspiring society founders. We call it the Society for the Extermination of People who smile at our blue face and shivering shoulders and then smirk, "What'll you do when it does get cold?"

On Broadway with Walter Winchell

(Unless You're Lucky Enough to Live in a Cave)

THE HOLLYWOOD runaway. He's fed up with dishing muscle stuff for Jack Holt and yearns to reel off a little work of truth and beauty. It's all very fragile and nostalgic—a cinch for the 39-cent trough.

—o—o—

WALTER WINCHELL.

THE AUTHORESS who acts out of her own heroine on the Amer Picon and canape circuit. She jockeys you into a feeder to spring the crackler with which Lady Diana squelches the Duke of Ennui on Page 29.

—o—o—

THE DEFENDER of good taste in literature. A floppo himself, he brags he could crash the best seller lists anytime he cared to vulgarize his duds. Any book that fails to reach a second edition, it seems, is never in violation of good taste.

—o—o—

THE LEFT-BEHINDS of the Scott Fitzgerald academy. They're still trying to shock the customers with "modern" lasses who inhale and sass their pappies—forgetting the heroines have all grown up, run speakeasies and been acquitted of murder.

—o—o—

THE ECHOES of the Britons. These artists put London what-ho slang into the mouths of American coal town boys and girls—with the peasants getting off "stout fella" and the ingenues "rahthahring" like Lady Ahstah, herself.

—o—o—

● OLD JOE INDIGNATION. He's stumbled across the fact that a busboy getting 12 bucks a week can't afford Rembrandts and voyages on the Normandie, so he gets bitter for 675 pages.

THERE'S A plentiful crowd of the "Boy, how I've lived!" I-writers. These autobiogs are all about Joe Cleancut and how he circled the globe in a leaky canoe with only a little package from Charles' to live on. And how he taught the Zulus to shag.

—o—o—

EVERY NOW AND THEN a 16-year-old from the finishing schools scares the living daylights out of the parents with a bleat on what goes on behind those walls. The solo book usually finishes her writing career.

There seems to be no end to the back alley wonders who do a brisk business in the single syllables you used to see on fences—until somebody found out they could be sold.

—o—o—

● ONE OF THE more popular types of lit'ry guys is the sorehead who doubles in book reviewing and takes it out on the prosperous. He has a nice gift for name-calling and nobody's got by him since Shelley.

—o—o—

YOU'VE MET the ironists. They refuse to "write down" to the peasants but confect little inside stuff volumes for each other's amusement. The books don't sell but the authors are too busy feeling superior to realize how hungry they are.

—o—o—

Don't forget the feudists. One writes a book exposing the felonies and home-wrecking of an ex-pal. Whereupon the latter retorts with a novelized accusation of pocket-picking, etc. They could save time by telephoning their bickerings—and get just as big a public.

—o—o—

ONE OF THE most trying types is the pursuer of the quaint. He is forever digging up strange tribes of Americanos—Cajins on the Gulf, double-talk Indians or something—and getting breathless about it. Heaven help us if he ever discovers baby-talk!

—o—o—

● THERE ARE "interpreters," too, all of them specializing on an angle. If a heel slaughters his sweetheart with a crowbar it isn't brutal murder to the interpreters. They have to give out a book showing the man was a victim of cracker crumbs in bed—or something just as weighty. The murder was just an incident in the bigger problem.

—o—o—

THE KISS-AND-TELL GALS—for it's usually the distaff crew that writes the "How I've suffered" novels. It's all about how a rat of a husband behaved. If true, she should have called a cop and spared herself the torture—and the rest of us the book.

—o—o—

The artists who live in the store windows. These scribblers are available for anything, any time. They'll autograph by the day in book dep'ts, judge contests—any labor that'll turn up an honest paragraph of publicity.

—o—o—

THE BLEEDING HEARTS of the Confederacy. It was felt that after "So Red the Rose" and "Gone With the Royalties" everything had been printed about Ol' Massa and the damyankees. But the writing tonnage from below the Mason-Dixon Line tops the shipments of cotton.

—o—o—

● THEN THERE'S THE who-you-calling-a-bum? critic-baiters. Every time one of their books gets walloped they're all over the place with vox pop squawks to the editor. That kind of hamstrings things because there's never space enough to quote their books back at them—which would be a sure squelcher.

—o—o—

MUSTN'T OVERLOOK the man and wife collabbers who seemingly do all their heavy thinking for the cameras. The Mr. is a wide open shirt and pipe lad, while the frau is a great hand for dimity and dimples.

—o—o—

POPULARITY of the movie screwball comedies has bred a mob of mad wags in fiction. They figure that writing books that don't make sense ought to be easy—since they've never written any other kind.

—o—o—

The band wagon hoppers can be found in hundreds. Once a hard worker puts across a click—like Runyon or Ogden Nash or Dale Carnegie—the imitators go to work in double shifts to rob them.

—o—o—

● LOTS OF AUTHORS dress for the work—so there'll be no mistake as to what they are. Some of the males, who are too deeply absorbed in Great Letters to think of toggery niceties, wear suits that look as if they'd been slept in. The judys who hit the typewriter with great earnestness kick the heels out of their shoes and throw away their combs and compacts.

—o—o—

THERE ARE LOTS of folklore wizards devoted to the exploits of fabulous American giants. They pattern their tedium after the great Paul Bunyan of the woods, and tell how their heroes lunched on fire hydrants and quenched their thirst on the Gowanus Canal. The books weigh pounds, but you get the idea in the first sentence.

Wife of Missouri's Favorite Son

MRS. CLARK . . . "WE ALL TALK POLITICS IN WASHINGTON."

Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark Says It's Much Too Early to Think of White House—Discusses Family, And Other Chief Interests of a Busy Life.

By MARGUERITE MARTYN

WHILE Senator Bennett Champ Clark is being so much talked about as the Democratic standard bearer in 1940, news and magazine writers falling over each other to present and examine him as presidential timber, it should not be too early, here at home, at least, to take a look at one who is just as likely to be Missouri's First Lady in the White House.

Mrs. Clark says it is too early. "Entirely premature," she said when I broached the subject while she was here over the election.

"It's gratifying," she hastened to add, "what they've been saying, especially in Missouri, but, of course, every state has its favorite son. Nobody knows better than we do how the political scene changes in two years, in six months. Bennett says it moves in cycles, the pendulum swinging to one extreme, then the other. He should know. He'd be dumb if he didn't, having been kicking around Washington since he was 5 years old. It gives him an advantage over newcomers about steering a straightforward course."

"A straightforward course is down the middle of the road, isn't it?" I observed. "And right now the swing seems to be toward the middle of the road."

"Well, anyway," she rejoined evasively, "I don't think he has ever lost five minutes' sleep over whether his vote was on the losing or the winning side, as long as he was voting his convictions. Is it right," she asked cautiously, "that I should be talking about my husband?"

I thought all women would agree that it was.

She was willing to reveal herself as the newly re-elected Senator's wife. Jubilantly so, after that splendid majority. That, she seemed to think, was occasion enough for an interview aside from any First Lady talk.

There had been two hectic days and nights, listening to election returns and celebrating with friends. She had only just succeeded in clearing the sitting room of the suite at the Mayfair of a continuous stream of men callers, shooing them into a room down the hall. The Mayor's coattails were disappearing in that direction as I came in. The room smelled of smoke and bouquets of flowers. She would have liked to shoo me out, too, no doubt, so she could pick up things preparatory to returning to Washington within a few hours, but she was amiability itself. A politician's wife has to be.

Her hand sought her red-blond hair anxiously as she spied the photographer.

"Wait. I've got some hats that are knockouts," she said, disappearing and reappearing with a pillbox confection set jauntily.

In tailored dark blue wool with jade green neckerchief becoming to her fair skin, blue eyes and auburn hair, her most conspicuous ornament a pseudo-antique chatelaine dangling among other charms, a crystal ball locket which magnified miniatures of the twins, Mrs. Clark seemed stronger and a little heavier than when I saw her last. She no longer walks with a cane. Her recovery from the paralysis that afflicted her some years ago is almost complete and would be entirely so, she said, if she could, with her complicated existence, give time to a cure. "Never very athletic," she remarked, "it hasn't interfered much with my activities. Bennett says I always was a good rocking chair executive."

She talked of what interested her most in Washington, which is politics, of her favorite "interest," which is music, her favorite "cause," which is peace; of feminism, and of her lively family of three boys. When it came to whether she felt like stepping into Mrs. Roosevelt's shoes—

"I couldn't," she exclaimed hopelessly. "Who could go the pace Mrs. Roosevelt has set?"

"Would you want to?"

"Oh, yes. I hold her in the greatest admiration. Mrs. Roosevelt does more good in a week than most people do in a lifetime."

"Would you align yourself with causes and go forth and uphold them publicly?"

"I have one favorite cause," she admitted. "It is peace. It's almost an obsession with me. During the World War, when people were carried away with patriotic fervor and excitement, some sixth sense kept me from joining in. I heard myself called that most reprehensible thing, a pacifist. Now, as the mother of three sons, the horror of war is intensified. I am not a born optimist who thinks it can't happen again. I feel the overpowering responsibility that oppresses most women and makes them join peace societies. I belong to one, the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. I can't belong to all, there are so many."

She went to some pains to explain why she doesn't campaign for peace.

"I leave it to Bennett," she said. "I feel he is absolutely right and sound about this peace thing. I know he will never vote for war. That is as far as a Senator can go, but in that way I feel he functions best in the interest of peace. The peace societies are very active in Washington, you know. Their representatives spring at you from behind every pillar and post. I've decided I can help best by keeping hands off, not complicating matters by running to the Senate with all their programs, this proposed amendment and that. They are all good even though sometimes they conflict. I keep clear of identifying myself with special groups."

At the last Democratic National convention in Philadelphia I continually heard representatives of women's organizations backing Senator Clark in his peace plank claiming Mrs. Clark as their ally and saying, morover, she was destined to become an effective promoter of women's causes in political Washington. I reminded her of this prediction.

"Causes?" she meditated. "The word scares me. I am interested, but not much of a joiner. I do love politics. I was brought up in politics, a Democrat in Republican Iowa."

She was Miriam Marsh, daughter of the late Wilbur Marsh, long Democratic national committeeman for Iowa and at one period treasurer of the National Committee. "I enjoy political conversation and I don't fail to get my oar in where women are concerned. I am a feminist, yes. I don't think there should be any question of sex in achievement, in politics, business or anything else, although you know there is. Let a woman driver make a mistake, and what a loud noise there is about it. A man can make the same mistake 10 times and it's not noticed. Women make a different contribution with different techniques, but it is all to the good and there is plenty of room, plenty of need for everybody's contribution. I don't think men like to have women do as well as they else why do they always give women the difficult jobs? Our one woman Cabinet member has the toughest job in the whole Cabinet.

"Of course we all talk politics in Washington," she went on. "And it's what I enjoy most there. Even in women's groups there is less talk about babies' bottles and the housemaid's delinquencies. Not that I mean to disparage those topics, nor say there isn't any gossip in Washington, but usually personalities have to do with ideas important to world affairs. And that's stimulating."

—o-o—

HER next greatest interest outside her family is music. "You know I had a rather arduous musical education. I am keeping it up now doing some research in the Library of Congress, on Americana, music springing from the different states. I hope to use it somehow in qualifying for a master's degree and somehow in connection in radio. I haven't thought that out yet. Just say 'radio ambitions'."

Mrs. Clark studied architecture, too, "somewhere along the way" and finds herself sensitive to the beauty of Washington, the historical traditions and significances so compelling there.

The children? Young Champ (named for his grandfather), 15 now, is at a prep school in Connecticut preparing to enter the University of Missouri.

"We made that bargain," she said, "that all our boys should go to Missouri and our girls to Vassar. Bennett is three up on me on that score."

She graduated from Vassar, class of 1916, Phi Beta Kappa.

"To get even, I like to call attention to that," she said mischievously, "my membership being earned, while Bennett's was conferred upon him as the man of his class who had most distinguished himself after 25 years."

The twins, Marsh and Kimball, now 10, go to public school and take music lessons.

"Too cute," commented their mother, "playing at recitals on two pianos. They are really quite talented. Champ, I mustn't forget, has attained his life's ambition, being pitcher on his school's baseball nine. I have to keep up on my baseball in order to have a word to say at my table. I don't think I am a very good mother," she laughed. "My children are always about 10 jumps ahead of me."

The Clarks have bought a home in Washington, or, rather, in suburban Spring Valley. "Bennett's and his sister Genevieve's experience, as children, being shuttled back and forth between sessions of Congress, made us feel it was better to have a more permanent anchorage. Now we've six more years to live in it, it's nice to know," she said.

"Wouldn't it be nicer to move over to the White House?" I asked.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.

IF you are getting the shakes and quivers in the little unlined coat number of the fall, the fact is brought home to you sharply that the winter coat question is one which must be faced immediately if you don't want the chronic sniffles. This week I have scouted the local field and am ready to report briefly on what the stores here bet we shall be wearing.

To begin, I never have seen fur-trimmed coats so comfortable in design. This is achieved by roomy armholes and wide sleeves—wide shoulders and soft backs—either loose box designs or wide and flaring skirts, if we want to step out with an imitation of a lady athlete.

AND I NEEDN'T SAY that black is still the hotsy totsy of the coat departments. If the bankroll can go to it, there's nothing smarter or more beautiful than a dash of mink trimming. The old brown coat is not so prevalent, since modern imaginations take a longer chance with colors. Such as a gray coat with sheered beaver trimming, for instance. Thta's a daisy. Yes, the gray and beaver thing is a hot item, in several styles. Can't miss with that baby.

Of course, the good old black with Persian lamb is on hand, as usual—except that the fur is used with more imagination in various designs. And I've seen Persian handsomely used on a Colonial-blue coat.

From what I've seen, there is nothing blastingly new in general, but a great deal in particular. The designs are more novel and far craftier than ever before—and if you're going for a fur-trimmed coat this month or next, you'll have the finest assortment from which to choose that you've ever seen.

—o-o—

CHASING DOWN the "business" that is keeping Gloria Swanson's beautiful nose to the grindstone here, I have a report that it has something to do with "inventions." Well, if she has invented something to be able to afford the gorgeous sable cape and muff I saw her sporting at El Morocco one night, I'm all for it, and wish old Hall were an inventor instead of a non-producing genius.

—o-o—

HERBERT MARSHALL, that British charmer, has been around and about lately. The other night he was supping at the Versailles with pretty Lee Russell, sister of the lovely Rosalind of the films—and wouldn't allow the cameras to flash until Actor Raymond Massey made it a proper threesome. Deuced delicate of you; Bert, old boy. Also playing deuced safe, what?

—o-o—

SPEAKING of our better class of limey friends, Lady Peel (Beatrice Lillie to me) has turned up among us to brighten Broadway—and so has that dear boy, Noel Coward, in whose revue Her Leddyship will cavort this season.

—o-o—

EVER TRY to park your car within a half mile of a theater here? Well, don't. Upstairs parking is the only possible answer to our Times Square agonies—and steps are being taken toward it. At Fifty-third street and Seventh avenue the roof of a one-story building—15,000 square feet has been opened for the purpose, and the newest building in Mr. Rockefeller's Center will have three whole floors for car-parking. Peace—it's wonderful.

—o-o—

SUZANNE MENDL, a refugee from Vienna, is sitting at a hand loom in a smart avenue store, designing hand-woven tweeds to order. She weaves them as you want them and the store makes them up—and she is as busy as she can be. Certainly there is plenty of distinction in having beautiful tweed sports clothes designed, woven and stitched up to your order. And Suzanne hums at her loom.

—o-o—

MY SISTER FRANCES, just back from a stay in Bermuda, tells me there is a "21" Club in Hamilton—named for our famous golden joint on Swing Alley. Frances noted with amusement the neat placque on the door: "Gentlemen will please wear coats and ladies will wear stockings." But she saw a gent come in wearing a sweater—and a waiter rushed over with a linen jacket for him to wear—on the house! She did not, however, see any women furnished with stockings pro tem.

—o-o—

THESE FORMER "Follies" girls! They pop up everywhere, doing everything. A Kansas beauty named Berenice Ackerman is having much success here as a portrait painter, and has five commissions in her hand right now. A blonde peach, with the traditionally lovely Ziegfeldian legs. From spangles to smock in a decade—and doing very well, thankee.

—o-o—

ALL ISN'T cake on Broadway, of course. Six shows have recently passed away, including one that deserved a longer life. That was Elizabeth Ginty's "Missouri Legend," the op'ry about Jesse James. Mildred Natwick and Dorothy Gish were involved in it. But the quickest, costliest floppo to date was Eva Lagallienne's "Madame Capet." Five days, $75,000, and out.

—o-o—

THE LONG hat-feathers are arousing the male public in our movie theaters. I hear that several women have had those prongs snipped off by men sitting behind them. Well, the provocation is great. There is still no law, civil or moral, against us girls doffing our toppers at the pitchers.

—o-o—

EVER HEAR any devoted self-confidence to beat this "agony ad" from a morning gazette here—"Ruzzie—Every woman in New York will wish she thought of this. Happy birthday! Marion." Now listen, Marion. Nobody can be that good, sweets! . . .

—o-o—

ORSON WELLES, the young genius who scared the nation, spoke to the women of the Junior League at luncheon the other day. It was one of Orson's quiet days, and not a single Junior Leaguer choked on her caviar.

—o-o—

CORNELIA OTIS SKINNER, the brilliant daughter of the beloved trouper, Otis, is our most successful double-life leader. When not showing her dramatic impressions to the nation, she's our Mrs. Alden S. Blodgett, lives in Gracie Square, has a son named for her father, but better known as "Dickie," and is often seen striding along Fifth avenue, carrying her unusual height with grace and dignity. In fact, she and Maria Jeritza and the late Rosamond Pinchot are the three most thrilling feminine walkers I've ever seen.

New Contract For Hollywood Trained Seal

'Slicker" Is Engaged for Forthcoming Picture at $1000 a Week.

By Harold Heffernan

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 19.

ANIMAL trainers of Hollywood, as jealous a clan as doting mothers in a baby contest, are worked up these days over the Slicker situation.

Slicker is a trained seal. If you saw "Spawn of the North," you couldn't help seeing Slicker. There were a number of human beings in that cast, too—notably George Raft and Dorothy Lamour—but Slicker's educated antics completely muffled everything else—including the swell photography.

Through that single appearance, Slicker flapped into the top money spot in Hollywood's animal kingdom. Sol Lessner has just engaged the seal at $1000 a week for Bobby Breen's new picture, "Fisherman's Wharf," unheard-of money for fish, animal or bird in picture-making—causing the colony's 20 or more trainers to begin scouring zoos and aquariums from Portland, Me., to Portland, Ore., in search of a rival attraction.

BARRING Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck, Slicker is expected to go down in Hollywood records as the outstanding furred, finned or feathered star of the 1938 season. Last year the distinction was won in a walk by Asta, nee Mr. Smith, of "Thin Man" and "The Awful Truth" fame.

The seal, a 4-year-old, is owned by H. W. Winston of Pacific Grove, Cal. Now that Slicker has a fan following and is the only trained seal in the colony worth revising scripts for, Winston intends cashing in while the going is good. Slicker's contract specifies he is to receive featured advertising on billboards, along with the human actors, and must have a special railroad car, equipped with a tank and running water, for his journeys to and from the San Francisco location planned for the lesser picture.

THE PRESENT all-time box-office high for animals is held jointly by two dogs—Strongheart and Rin-Tin-Tin. The two are estimated to have grossed more than a million dollars for their owners. Other dogs that have won unusual popularity are Buck, the huge St. Bernard which appeared in "Call of the Wild," and Pete, the bulldog with the black ring around his eye, seen in the "Our Gang" comedies. Buck works infrequently, but Carl Spitz, his owner, maintains his weekly price at $500, always with a guarantee of two weeks' work.

Among the primates, Jiggs, the chimpanzee, holds the all-time high, with Josephine, a marmoset, second. Jiggs appeared as Johnny Weissmuller's companion in the Tarzan stories. The animal recently died. Josephine, also gone to monkey heaven, held the record for length of screen popularity. Used first in an early Cecil B. de Mille picture, Josephine appeared in 69 feature films during her 10 years of life.

COUNTLESS HORSES have won screen fame, but heading the list from point of prominence and salary was Rex, king of wild horses, who was starred in his own right in 14 motion pictures. Tony, the horse ridden by Tom Mix in his 80-odd Western films, was also popular. It is said of Tony that he received more fan mail than any other quadruped in the industry. Also well known to audiences is the famous sway-back horse seen in dozens of comedies over the past 15 years. The animal is said to have built a tidy fortune for its owner during this period.

The top trained lion is Jackie, owned by Mel Koontz, which draws $100 a day, but doesn't work enough to pay its meat bill. A new Persian kitty named Mlle. Dominique is doing a trick bit with the Ritz brothers in "The Three Musketeers" and getting $50 a day. The cat is the most temperamental acting feline in Hollywood, and her owner, Henry East (who also owns Asta) has to carry eight stand-ins to keep up with her tantrums. Incidentally, the wire-haired Asta, which played stand-out bits with William Powell and Myrna Loy in the "Thin Man" pictures, drew only $200 a week for his performances.

Let Me Suggest

Let Me Suggest

by Josephine Walter

IT may seem like the Fourth of July to you what with all the balmy weather and the general way time has of disappearing into thin air, but just in case you hadn't heard or weren't paying attention—it's really Thanksgiving time. And if you are one of those people who still keep up the grand old tradition of a family feast, give a thought to the table decorations now, before you get too involved in the menu and the actual cooking itself.

Fortunately, nothing is more fashionable at the moment for table centerpieces than fruit. We may now "have our fruit and eat it, too." And, decorative as the fruit is by itself, it can be made even more interesting by the use of an unusual container and an attractive arrangement. If your table and service is of the informal type, try a bowl of copper, or if you are fortunate enough to have one, try an old china soup tureen. If your husband is a hunter, see if you can persuade him to let you use his duck decoys on a mirrored plaque in the center of the table. Everyone will love the out-doorsey effect of such a table decoration.

If your table is of the more formal type, try crystal fruit instead of the real kind. Or if you can beg, borrow or steal an epergne, those beautiful centerpieces of a by-gone day which have recently come back in favor largely through their display at Williamsburg, by all means do so. For the uninitiated, these epergnes, usually of crystal and silver, consist of a large center bowl for the fruit and branch arms with smaller bowls to contain either nuts or mints.

● VASTLY INTERESTING, to me, is the project which the Girl Scouts of the senior group of Troup No. 11 in Webster Groves have just undertaken. They have been given the use of a tiny cottage in Webster to do with as they will—and it is truly surprising to see what they have willed. Although still in the state of a project, they have decided just exactly what they wish to do with this little cottage and how they are going to do it. When finished, there is to be a living room, crafts room and recreation room where they can cook and entertain.

They have been most scientific and intelligent in the way they have planned the metamorphoses of this little house. First of all, they had a professional person give them a lecture on decorating and how to plan their color schemes and such. Then they themselves discussed and decided on the type of decorations they wanted. But that is only the beginning. Now they are going to do the actual labor themselves, even to the papering of the walls.

They were a little stumped at first by some of the manual tasks such as the carpentry work, but they got around that very well. They had an open house for the parents and before the evening was over some of the fathers went home, changed their clothing and came back and got to work, knocking out old partitions and such. Mothers suddenly began to remember discarded pieces of furniture that might fit into the general decorating scheme.

● NOW, THE GIRLS are as busy as the proverbial bees, for they are not only papering the walls themselves, but they are going to make the draperies, design and make hooked rugs for the floors and even reupholster the furniture. Such a project as this should be a perfect beginning for young girls to acquire an interest in and taste for decorating, which will undoubtedly be put to good use when they are mistresses of their own homes. More work of this type would be of benefit in the improving of the general taste in home furnishing.

OFTEN HAVE I orated on the subject of making a bed out of a board covered with material, merely placed against a wall and accompanied by a box spring and mattress. Now comes along a smart manufacturer who introduces what is called the "headboard bed." This new bed consists of a box spring and mattress attached to a padded headboard over which slips a cover in a decorative fabric and a wide range of colors. Spreads of the same material as the slip-cover on the headboard give the effect of a complete ensemble. An added advantage is the fact that the slip-cover may be removed at any time for cleaning, or replaced by another when the scheme of the room is changed.

IF YOU HAVE an old tea cart that has been kicking around the basement for years, bring it up into the light of day once again. It will be the basis of a grand perambulating indoor garden. Fill both top and bottom shelf with a number of different types of plants, preferably planted in a variety of interesting pots. It may be placed in any corner of the room that you desire and then merely wheeled to the window during the day when you feel the plants need a sunning. If, however, you feel your cart is not decorative enough to be used in this way, at least use it to collect all the plants from around the house when you want to take them to the faucet for a good washing and soaking.

Staying Out Late

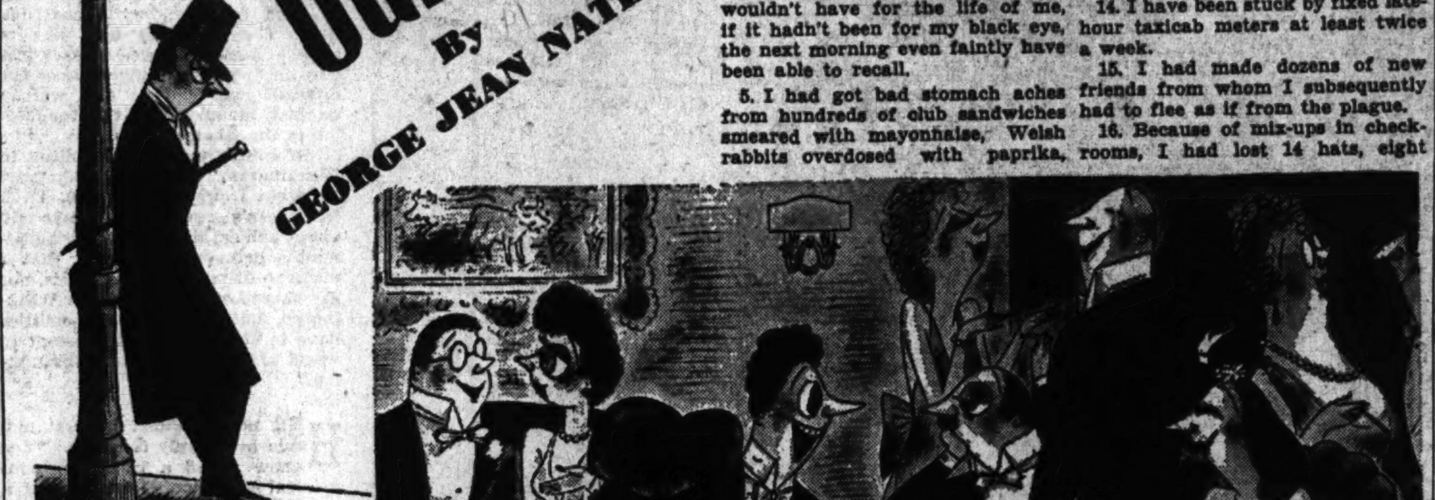
By GEORGE JEAN NATHAN

Noted New York Critic Challenges Legend Of Fun After Midnight—Lists 27 Horrors That Have Happened to Him in Late Hours.



"BLOCKHEADS WHO IMAGINED THEY WERE GIFTED WITH REPARTEE."

UNQUESTIONABLY the most bogus of all the many bogus beliefs of homo Americanus is his conviction that there is a juicy amusement in staying up nights instead of going civilizedly to bed. It is his exotic philosophy that fun is somehow something that is completely nonexistent before midnight and that even then it is merely in its cocoon state and doesn't really sprout wings until a couple of hours later.

So expansive has the philosophy grown that, if you will look at the furniture sale advertisements in any of today's newspapers, you will observe that the most drastic cutting of prices has taken place in the instance of beds, which have become a drug on the market and are often given away at the end of the fiscal year to Old Men's Homes and maternity hospitals in order to save storage charges.

Nor is the philosophy confined, as some may imagine, to our larger cities. Let us not forget that it was a Hoosier, George Ade, who more than 30 years ago wrote, "Early to bed, early to rise—and you never meet any interesting people." Then as now, whether in the big towns or the little ones, the idea persists that only numskulls go to bed in good season and that all other people, aside from a few aged and arthritic notabilities, who really contribute anything at all to the happiness of mankind have permanently thrown away their pajamas.

However, superiorly to contend—as may appear to be my implication—that only imbeciles actually follow the stay-up-late philosophy is to be an imbecile in turn. I tell only the simple truth when I say that most of my friends, who are very far indeed from being imbeciles, are among those who nevertheless believe that no one should turn in before midnight unless he is desperately ill, broke, or in love with a girl who happens to be out of town.

Since it is my firm personal conviction, learned in the school of hard experience, that if nothing amusing, interesting or romantic happens by 12 o'clock it isn't going to happen after 12 o'clock (or at least after 12:15), it is my own custom most often to deposit myself in the hay by that hour. And for further and equally good reasons.

There was a time when late hours appealed to me, but that time passed when one day I took stock of what I had gone through in the name of diversion and stimulation. Upon mature meditation I found that all the fun I had had staying up after midnight over a period of years wouldn't in sum have constituted anything better than a second-rate blackout sketch for a third-rate "Follies."

My after-midnight statistics revealed that I had wasted time, money and health as follows:

1. I had drunk at least 4000 drinks I didn't want.

2. I had listened to at least 7000 jokes, most of which I had heard before.

3. I had held hands with a quorum of girls not more than two of whom, at most, I would have felt like even saying hello to if I hadn't had the aforesaid 4000 drinks I didn't want.

4. I had got into numerous heated arguments about matters which ordinarily I wouldn't have been the least interested in and which I wouldn't have for the life of me, if it hadn't been for my black eye, the next morning even faintly have been able to recall.

5. I had got bad stomach aches from hundreds of club sandwiches smeared with mayonnaise, Welsh rabbits overdosed with paprika, greasy ham and eggs, and stale hamburgers. I had also gobbled at least a ton of scrambled eggs and bacon that might better and more profitably have been sent down to the Bowery Mission.

6. I had inadvertently made breaks to 87 wives about their husbands, resulting in awful scraps when they got home and with neither the wives nor the husbands speaking to me thereafter.

7. Waiters, tired of staying up so late after the hard day, had ruined 40 suits of mine by dropping dishes on my shoulders or spilling stuff on my trousers.

8. I encountered something like two or three hundred blockheads who imagined they were especially gifted in repartee and who unloaded upon me a cargo of amateurish epigrams which they beamingly esteemed as immensely clever.

9. Hundreds of drunks had grabbed me affectionately around the shoulder, slobberingly lamented it was a shame we didn't see each other oftener, jovially mussed up my hair, and waxed indignant when I told them I feared it would be impossible for me to lunch with them the next day.

10. I had listened to enough bad jazz to explode the eardrum of a rhinoceros.

11. I had been forced to join in the chorus of "Sweet Adeline," "I've Been Working on the Railroad" and "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," heaven help me, on at least a hundred occasions.

12. Sixty-eight strange men and women had approached me to tell me they were close friends of dear friends of mine, none of the latter being even vaguely known to me. Whereupon the 68 strangers had witheringly accused me of being snooty and stuck on myself.

13. About $3000 was borrowed just for a few hours from me by friends and acquaintances, of which amount these many years later exactly $10 has been returned.

14. I have been stuck by fixed late-hour taxicab meters at least twice a week.

15. I had made dozens of new friends from whom I subsequently had to flee as if from the plague.

16. Because of mix-ups in check-rooms, I had lost 14 hats, eight overcoats, a dozen pairs of gloves, seven walking sticks and 26 mufflers.

17. I had been overcharged on my checks at least three times a week.

18. I had bought from various cigarette girls of unusual comeliness 105 10-cent teddy bears and kewpie dolls, at from $1.50 to $2 apiece.

19. I had caught something like 93 bad colds.

20. Also several severe attacks of rheumatism.

21. I had taken along and entertained 207 visitors from abroad and out of town, not more than half a dozen of whom I gave a continental for.

22. I had sprained an ankle six times getting out of taxicabs.

23. I had had my palm read 40 times by cafe female palmists and was given the usual hokum about my long life line, the bump that indicated I had a very passionate nature, the fingers that showed I had artistic inclinations, and the zigzag line that proved indubitably I was going to make a lot of money in 1948.

24. I had paid 30 cents apiece for 7000 15-cent packs of cigarettes.

25. I had swallowed 3052 lemon seeds in my Tom Collinses, Cuba Libres and whisky sours.

26. I had been needlessly brushed off by attendants in the men's lavatories twice a night, with the result that even a suit only a week old acquired a shine; and I had laid out several hundreds of dollars in tips for being thus monkeyed with.

27. Seventeen cab-starters still call me familiarly by my first name.

As I have remarked, it is my present custom to dive into the hay by midnight at the latest. But thinking it all over, I conclude that beginning tonight, I'll beat myself to it by an hour.

MUSIC AND MUSIC MAKERS

By Thomas B. Sherman

DESPITE the average American's prejudice against being educated on his own time and at a moment when he, presumably, is suspectible to nothing but entertainment, there has been an appreciable growth in that hybrid form of entertainment known as the lecture-recital.

Walter Damrosch's pianologues on the subject of the Wagner operas was a feature of the New York season for many years. Olin Downes has worked out the idea with the assistance of such celebrated artists as Yehudi Menuhin, Josef Hoffman, Walter Gieseking and the whole ensemble of the Boston Symphony orchestra, Ernest Schelling has successfully combined words with music for gatherings of children in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities and Sigmund Spaeth, who specializes in tracing the origin of tunes, has made a certain knowledge of music easy-to-take by using a similar method with grownups.

It is on the radio, however, that the musical commentator, speaking in his own voice, has been heard most extensively. The practice of having a well-known critic or musicologist speak a few words about the program during the course of an opera or concert arose out of the desire to keep all possible listeners faithful to one station. Attendants at a concert in a public auditorium usually spend the intermission in the lobby. They smoke, they promenade or they gossip with their friends until a warning bell sends them eagerly—or reluctantly—back to their seats. But the promoters of radio programs seem to believe that if a listener ever leaves their program he will never return. So they furnish a speaker who tells stories about the early lives of the composers or analyzes the true inwardness of the music they have heard, until the program resumes.

The widespread response to such commentators as Deems Taylor would seem to indicate that the public is not averse to being instructed about music if it can be done with sufficient wit and charm.

True enough the attitude of a listener who can turn it off whenever he is tired of listening may be measurably different from that of a casual concertgoer who can only escape by forcing a row full of dowagers to their feet. The latter may be resentful of an element of compulsion in the situation.

For this and other reasons one might conclude that formal comment on the music is not a proper part of a concert. So far as the ordinary concert is concerned this is undoubtedly true. But there is much to be said in favor of an oral presentation of program notes at a concert which will be dominated by unfamiliar music.

Such a concert will be given next Sunday by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of its conductor, Vladimir Golschmann, at the Municipal Auditorium. The program is designed to meet a certain demand from music lovers who already have an interest in "Music of Our Time" and to stimulate an interest in those who have not yet reached the demanding stage. Admission prices will be within the "popular" range.

As programs of contemporary music go this will be nothing to set anybody on his ear. Half of it will be taken over by Sibelius, who is no incendiary, though one of the most distinguished of living composers. The other composers, who will be represented are Cal Eppert and David Diamond, both successful American composers, and Sergei Prokofieff, the Russian. But whereas any ordinary gathering of concertgoers should be able to take this music in its stride, their enjoyment should also be greatly enhanced by a few tactful words intended to reveal its peculiar character more clearly.

The interlocutor chosen for this occasion is Carlton Smith. He is a sound musician and a widely informed journalist. Better than that he has had an extended training, as music critic of Esquire, in making his discussion lively. Those who read Esquire will not have to be told that its editors don't care how profound a story is as long as it's daring enough.

Mr. Smith, therefore, can be counted on to temper his erudition to the necessity of keeping his audience in their seats and awake. What he has to say about Messrs. Diamond, Eppert and Prokofieff should be interesting and informative to anybody who listens. And nobody is in a better position to present an illuminating, first-hand portrait of Sibelius.

Mr. Smith has seen the great man plain, having been privileged on three occasions to pay him a visit at his woodland home near Helsingfors. Revealing traits of personality that have never appeared in a formal biography of Sibelius were disclosed in these long conversations between Mr. Smith and the composer. And they should form an important part of Mr. Smith's short discourse next Sunday.

For the benefit of those who hate speeches even when they are good let it be said that everything Mr. Smith has to say on any subject will take up not more than 20 minutes.

Books Furnish A Decorative Note in Home

They Are Almost as Good to Look at as They Are to Read, Says Writer.

By Elizabeth Boykin

NO, I'm not going mathematical on you. My ideas on bookkeeping have nothing to do with figures and trial balances. But I have a lot to say about the kind of books you read, and how to keep them where they'll be both handy and decorative.

For, make no mistake about it, books are almost as good to look at as they are to read; one important decorator I know is even going so far as to paint books on the walls of a new room he's doing—they'll take the place of a mural decoration. While I'm not advocating anything so fancy as that, I do hope to make you appreciate your books as decoration.

Barbara Bennett Downey, wife of the crooner, sister of the stars and mother of five, is quite a reader—she has book shelves built under the window sills of each window in her bedroom in the country. Literary folk often have their bed set into a niche lined with books.

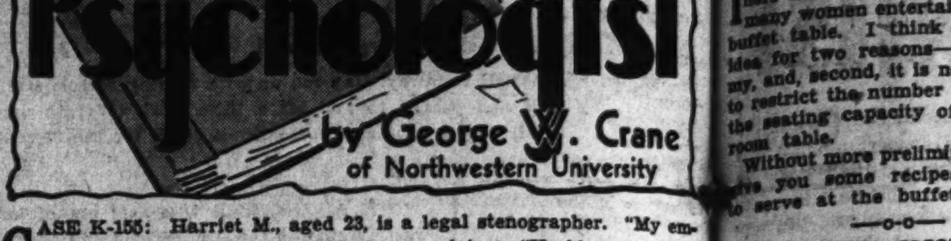
And why not combine dining-room and library? Nothing would give more genuine distinction to an otherwise innocuous room than one wall with book shelves to the ceiling. If this happens to be the window wall, make a window seat between and add plump cushions. If it should be the wall against which you need to have your sideboard, that's all right, too—books would make rather a handsome background for candlelight and the fine gleam of silver or brass. The pattern books make on a wall has charm in itself.

If you have a collection of books you're proud of, there's no reason why they shouldn't have the spotlight in your living-room. Use them instead of the fireplace as the center of interest. Or else sink a single shelf into the walls all around the room at about eye level or just below; this will give quite a smart design to the wall, particularly if you have indirect lighting concealed in the shelf.

This is a little off the subject, but it's worth saying—don't be diffident about discarding books. There's no point in having shelves filled with books that have no use or meaning for you. Clear them out now and then, keeping only those you want. There are always organizations that can find use for your discards, so why not share them?

The Gold Fish Bowl.

When the gold fish begin to come to the top of the bowl for air it is time to give them fresh, cool water. Only the tiny tropical fish like to be kept in warm water; gold fish, as a rule, thrive better in cool water.



CASE RECORDS of a Psychologist

by George W. Crane
of Northwestern University

CASE K-155: Harriet M., aged 23, is a legal stenographer. "My employer is a typical 'projector,'" she complains. "He blames me for everything that goes wrong. Although I type his letters and briefs exactly as he dictates or writes them, if somebody corrects him for some mistake, he says:

"'Oh, that's what comes of having a poor secretary.'

"Finally, he got so he wouldn't sign his letters, but would have me type a little notice 'Dictated but not read.'

"One of our local Judges got so irritated last month that he sent back a letter, saying if my boss didn't have time to read his own letters, neither did this Judge.

"Dr. Crane, why will a boss refuse to admit any error at all, and always try to blame somebody else?"

The BOSS
K-155

—O—O—

DIAGNOSIS: Harriet isn't the only employe who makes such complaints about her boss. There are thousands of such men who not only blame their workers, but are especially prone to blame their wives.

I do the same thing occasionally, as my wife can attest.

Such behavior is childish, and can be seen every day among youngsters. If a boy strikes his shin against a chair, he immediately blames the unoffending and inanimate chair.

Why do we wish to pass the buck so constantly? Because we can't endure self-criticism. It is so deflating to our pride or ego, that we must get some relief somewhere. Hence, we try to slip out from under the blame by shoving it upon the shoulders of another.

—O—O—

IN THE ARMY if a Lieutenant blames the Corporal, the latter in his humiliation "bawls out" the private, who irritably kicks the mule!

People who have inferiority complexes are more inclined to kick the mule, or pass the buck. Assured, competent men and women are not so afraid of admitting an error. Conceited four-flushers, however, will rarely admit a mistake.

Second-raters, or those who are afraid of their own ability to hold down the position of boss, foreman, or successful lawyer, banker or physician, will often throw the blame upon their subordinates.

This tendency leads to a great deal of ill will between capital and labor, or employer versus employe. A little applied psychology, plus a lot of the Golden Rule, would eliminate much of the labor troubles of today.

Send me in care of the Post-Dispatch a stamped, self-addressed envelope if you wish a free copy of my recent test entitled, "How to Rate Your Boss."

Glamorous Constance Worth, brilliant new movie star, raves about the way this amazing shampoo discovery reveals hidden natural beauty in her hair

NO matter how many times in the past you have been disappointed with the appearance of your hair after using this or that kind of shampoo—there is now cause for your heart to beat for joy.

For a single washing with the amazing new Special Drene Shampoo for Dry Hair makes a most exciting difference in hair that is dull and dry-looking. Leaves it silken-soft, manageable, with all of its glamorous natural brilliance and beauty fully revealed.

Special Drene for Dry Hair makes this thrilling difference because it does the three things necessary for hair to reveal its glorious, natural beauty. First, it easily and safely removes dulling film left on the hair by many other types of shampoos. Second, it removes dirt, grease, perspiration—even loose dandruff flakes—with a single sudsing and thorough rinsing. Third, because Special Drene for Dry Hair is not a soap—not an oil, it cannot deposit a beauty-clouding film on hair to hide natural lustre, nor a greasy film to catch dust.

Hair is actually left so sparkling clean that lemon, vinegar or special after-rinses of any kind are totally unnecessary. Yet—it gleams and glistens with all the lovely, alluring beauty that Nature intends it to have.

Don't miss the thrill of having hair which excites admiration wherever you go. Get a bottle of the amazing new Special Drene for Dry Hair at drug, department or 10c stores. Cook's Tour

by George Rector

INSTEAD of serving formal dinners in the home I find ever so many women entertaining via the buffet table. I think it's a swell idea for two reasons—first, economy, and, second, it is not necessary to restrict the number of guests to the seating capacity of the dining room table.

Without more preliminaries, I will give you some recipes for foods to serve at the buffet table:

—o-o—

MEAT BALLS, CREOLE SAUCE

One pound chopped round steak, one cup bread crumbs, two tablespoons onions, finely minced; two tablespoons parsley, finely minced; one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon cayenne pepper, one egg, well-beaten.

Put all ingredients together and mix thoroughly. Form into small balls about an inch and one-half in diameter. Dust lightly with flour and cook in frying pan until evenly browned. Use rendered beef suet for this purpose and use only enough to coat or grease the pan while the meat balls are browning. Then remove frying pan to oven and dot each meat ball with a bit of butter. Pour over hot creole sauce and let stand in hot oven for 10 or 15 minutes. Serve.

CREOLE SAUCE

● Two cups canned tomatoes, one medium sized onion, thinly sliced; one green pepper, diced; one-half cup mushrooms, thinly sliced; one cup tomato soup (condensed); two tablespoons minced cooked ham, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, salt, pepper, one tablespoon butter.

Cover onion and green pepper with water and cook until tender, or about 10 minutes. Meanwhile, saute the sliced fresh mushrooms in butter until soft. Then add the onions, green pepper and mushrooms to canned tomatoes and cook together for 10 minutes. Stir in thick tomato soup, add minced ham, Worcestershire and salt and pepper to taste. Just as the sauce is removed from fire add the butter and stir until blended.

BAKED CORNED BEEF HASH

(Serves Six.)

Four cups ground corned beef, four cups cold boiled potato, one cup onion, one cup water, salt and pepper, two tablespoons butter, one bottle chili sauce.

Put corned beef, potato and onion through food chopper. Mix thoroughly and moisten with cold water. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Pack in a well-greased casserole or pan about two inches high. Dot top with bits of butter and pour chili sauce over all. Bake in moderate oven about 30 minutes.

—o-o—

Now that mushrooms are plentiful we could have this treat once in a while. Quite delicious when served with roast meat or broiled steak. Good also on the buffet table, but increase recipe to suit your needs.

—o-o—

MUSHROOM BOUCHEES

● Select extra large mushrooms for this recipe. Wipe the caps with a damp cloth and remove the entire stem from eight large mushrooms. Chop the stems finely and cook them in two tablespoons of butter, add one tablespoon of finely chopped onion, two tablespoons of bread crumbs, three tablespoons of finely chopped cooked chicken and one teaspoon of finely chopped parsley. Moisten with meat or chicken stock and fill the mushroom caps with the mixture. Cover top with fine bread crumbs mixed with an equal quantity of grated Swiss cheese. Dot mushrooms with a small piece of butter and place on a greased baking pan. Cook in moderate oven 15 or 20 minutes.

When you fancy something a little different for the vegetable course, try this:

CANNED CORN SOUFFLE

Make a cream sauce by melting two tablespoons of butter, blending in two tablespoons of flour and gradually adding one cup of rich milk. Bring to the boiling point, stirring constantly until smooth. Remove from fire and stir in one can of corn. Season with salt and white pepper and add one-quarter cup of minced pimiento. Stir in two egg yolks which have been slightly beaten; then fold in two egg whites stiffly beaten. Pour into a buttered oven casserole dish (glass or earthen) and bake in a moderate oven for 30 minutes. Serve immediately.

German Pancakes.

Three eggs; three-fourths cup flour; one-half teaspoon salt; one tablespoon melted butter and three-fourths cup milk.

Beat eggs without separating; add the flour and salt and part of the milk and beat until batter is smooth. Add balance of milk and melted butter. Pour batter into a large, well greased frying pan and bake in a hot oven about 20 minutes. The ideal frying pan for this purpose should be heavy with slightly curved sides. Remove pancake to large hot platter; sprinkle liberally with powdered sugar and cinnamon and squeeze the juice of half a lemon over all. Roll pancake and serve. Or the pancake may be rolled with jelly or wild cranberries which make a delicious filling. Wild cranberries are very small and are preserved and imported to us from Europe.

Thanksgiving Turkey IN THE Offing

By

Mrs. Alexander George

IS this your year to be the Thanksgiving hostess? Then review in your mind right now what you're going to serve. Remember, this is more than a special dinner; it's the feast of feasts.

By all means include some of the standbys in your menu, but introduce some modernisms, too.

First and foremost is the bird. Fashions change in turkeys as in other things. They now come graded so that you can tell what you are getting if you want the ultimate in modern turkeys, try the frozen kind that only have to be thawed and stuffed and then popped into the oven.

But if you pick out your own fowl, minus any grading tags, go to a reliable dealer and let him help you. See to it that the turkey has a plump breast, clear, cream-colored skin, and that the fat is distributed evenly. Press the breast bone with the fingers to be sure it's pliable. Work wings and legs up and down. If they move easily, the chances are that the bird is tender.

The turkey should not look rangey or scrawny. That kind of a bird is likely to have a strong flavor, to be tough and to be deficient in light meat.

BRAZIL NUT STUFFING GIVES A NEW FLAVOR TO THE MODERN, FROZEN TURKEY.

How large a turkey should you buy? Well, get one big enough for leftovers aplenty. About two-thirds of a pound of turkey to a person is a good way to estimate.

Birds weighing between 10 and 12 pounds usually are considered the best buy. They provide a goodly amount of light and dark meat.

Clean the turkey thoroughly and remove all pinfeathers. Scrub with a soft brush and rinse in quantities of cold water. Work quickly; don't let the fowl soak in water; that would impair the flavor. Wipe perfectly dry, especially the insides.

Now for the stuffing. Select your family's favorite and make a generous quantity. A cup of stuffing is usually planned for each pound of turkey. But it is really best to make some extra and bake it in a casserole.

Fill the bird with stuffing, but don't pack it in. Sew up with heavy white thread and coarse needle. Truss it—tie wings and legs close to the body.

Most housewives think it best to prepare the turkey a day ahead, covering it with a cloth and keeping it in a cold place until oven time.

Use a roaster big enough to hold the turkey comfortably. The lid should be clear the top of the bird lest it scrape off some of the skin and mar the regal beauty. Put the turkey in the roaster, breast side up. Leave it in this position for at least an hour, then turn over for an hour. Finally turn it back, breast side up, until the roasting is finished. This shifting helps give the bird uniform flavor, moisture and color.

The 10 to 12 pound turkey requires about 30 minutes a pound for the cooking. A larger bird needs 25 minutes a pound. Roast at moderately low temperature—300 degrees. Too rapid cooking will often cause the fowl to brown quickly and have a tendency to scorch or make the skin hard and tasteless.

Baste every 20 minutes. Start with two cups of boiling water and a third cup of butter. After this has been used, spoon up the drippings in the roasting pan.

Covering the roasting fowl with a cloth (rinsed frequently in warm water) helps keep in the flavors, adds moisture and produces a delicious, soft brown, crusty skin. Place the cloth over the breast, legs and wings after they begin to brown. Baste right through the cloth.

The turkey is done when a fork pierces the flesh easily and when legs and wings seem just ready to fall off. It is better to hold up the turkey if the rest of the meal is not finished cooking than it is to hold the rest of the meal. Keep the turkey, smothered, under a cloth in a covered roaster in warm place and then reheat for 10 minutes in a hot oven.

Brazil Nut Stuffing

INGREDIENTS:
Two onions.
One-half cup melted butter.
Two cups chopped or ground Brazil nuts.
Salt and pepper.
Sage or other herbs.
Eight cups soft bread crumbs.

Mince onions and cook two minutes in the butter. Mix Brazil nuts and seasonings with bread crumbs and stir into butter. Cook two minutes more, stirring constantly. If a moist stuffing is desired, add a little water. This quantity of stuffing is enough for a 10-pound turkey.

If You Ask My Opinion -:- -:- -:- By Martha Carr

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE been asked to be godmother to a girl friend's baby and I would like your advice. What is required of a godmother? Must she pay the minister's fee? Who buys the christening outfit for the baby? What kind of present must I give? Thank you.
PERPLEXED.

The parents or family provide the christening outfit and any other necessary expense. As far as I know, there is no minister's "fee," as such. A voluntary offering to the church would, of course, be in order, if the parents are financially able to make it. God-parents are supposed to be the protectors of the child, in case the parents are no longer living or in such condition that they are no longer able to do so. The god-parent generally makes some gift that can be used and kept for the child through life; usually this is in silver, such as a silver mug or porringer or knife, fork and spoon.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

INCLOSED you will find sample of a piece of material. I have a skirt of this material and would like to know if I could wear it now; if not, when should it be worn and what colors would be suitable to wear with it? I enjoy your column very much and would appreciate this information. R. O.

Your sample is the very pretty Chinese lacquer red and, since the brightest of colors are worn now with the more subdued winter hues, a brown or black you would find makes an attractive combination with this red.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

WILL YOU PLEASE answer a few questions that are puzzling me? I live in a small place and we are building a home. I am in a quandary about my woodwork. I want to enamel it light ivory; my husband thinks we should varnish it. Isn't it just a matter of taste? Someone told my husband that everyone was using varnish now. We are building a nice home and I want to get everything as right as possible. Our walls are plaster, in colors; hardwood floors.

At present I have only two rugs and had planned to use them in the dining room and using only scatter rugs for front bedroom or living room. Do you think this a good plan, or should I use one in living room? I have hopes of getting a new rug for this room in the spring. I will be anxiously awaiting your reply. A HOMEBUILDER.

Paint your woodwork a light ivory. In your place I should prefer this without varnish. A large rug is best for the living room and also the dining room. You can use the scatter rugs for bedrooms.

If you care for the names of interior decorator or shops where you can get samples and advice, write me, sending self-addressed envelope. I cannot, of course, mention these merchants in the column. They will have booklets, too, which will help you out about many details.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

MY PROBLEM is two years old—and it's boy trouble. For that length of time I have been going with a boy whom my parents think highly of and yet they crab every time I see him. I have never gone out without an argument with my mother before I started; simply because this boy isn't "financially fixed" as we are.

We are not engaged, but I have promised to wait a few years until he has a better position. I am only 18 and he 20. Mother says I am too young to know my mind. I will take serious steps if things continue as they are. The boy and I have talked about this often, but I hate to hurt my mother. This boy has no mother, but his father is on my side. I hope you will be able to solve our troubles and I shall be waiting for your answer.
EVELYN.

The "serious steps" you think you will take may turn out to be far more serious than you think.

When your mother speaks of the boy's financial condition, doubtless she has a very good idea of your demands and probably extravagant tastes. Possibly she feels you are spoiled and knows that the question of money would be a serious one to a girl who wants and gets so many "things." Yes, I agree with your mother that at 18 you can very well afford to wait until the boy is better adjusted to responsibility, both financial and personal.

Sometimes, though, mothers in their eagerness to protect children overdo the apprehension and talk so much about it that they become nagging. But you are intelligent enough, of course, to realize the motive, to count the sacrifices and to adapt yourself to what is best. The boy is not yet of age, would not be legally married without consent until he is 21.

Dear Martha Carr:

WILL YOU kindly insert the following announcement in your column? And will you forward any replies that may come? We list below some references.

We are a small select club of girls who meet each Friday night and are interested primarily in social and educational activities.

At present we are open for membership. Our membership is limited to Jewish girls between the ages of 21 and 24.

If interested in attending an open meeting to be held in the near future, please write care of Martha Carr. SECRETARY.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

A LADY in our little town of about 3000 recently entertained an ex-State officer of the Parent-Teachers' Association at an afternoon tea. The hostess asked those who were to be in the receiving line and those pouring tea to wear evening gowns, while the guest came in afternoon attire. A friend and I feel this was out of place, as we are under the impression the hostess should never outdress her guest, and we think these gowns were out of place in the afternoon.

Please enlighten us in this matter, as we want to be correct. Thank you. UNDECIDED PAIR.

You are absolutely right on both counts and, moreover, it was extraordinary and unheard of that the guest of honor was not in the receiving line, first, next to the hostess of the afternoon.

—o-o—

My dear Martha Carr:

I HAVE A VICTROLA which I would like to give to some rural school which has no radio. It would be very suitable for "music appreciation" classes, as there are a lot of very good records they can also have.

My only requirements are that they must send for it and bring some containers in which they can pack the records. I would also like for them to let me know when they would call for it and about what time of the day. I am hard of hearing (member of the St. Louis League for the Hard of Hearing) and I do not hear the doorbell, which necessitates my having to watch when I am expecting anyone. I hope you will be able to place this in some worthy school. I am,

Very truly yours, H. E. G.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

ALMOST two years ago my girl friend and I had a little misunderstanding and we stopped visiting each other; although every time we meet at a party we are friendly. My husband and her husband do the same kind of work and belong to the same union, therefore we see each other quite often. Last year we had dinner at their house and asked them to come over; but so far they have not done so.

This friend is expecting a child soon and will be at the hospital. Would it be all right for me to go to the hospital to see her and, if not, should I send her a gift? Thank you. MRS. M. W.

If you have not "paid your party call," after having accepted their invitation for dinner, certainly the least you can do is to make the call at the hospital and take her a little gift, flowers or something else, to show your friendliness and appreciation.

—o-o—

My dear Mrs. Carr:

WILL YOU PLEASE tell me where I can write to Bruce Lester, the boy who at the end of the picture "Boy Meets Girl," marries Marie Wilson? MOVIE FAN.

You can write Bruce Lester in care of Warner Brothers, Burbank, Cal.

On Answering The Questions Of Juveniles

'One Must Consider Child and His Mood, in Dealing With Queries."

By Angelo Patri

NOBODY knows the right answer to most of the questions life poses. Nobody knows much about anything. The greatest scholar, the wisest among us, knows his one field, and mighty little of that when the magnitude of any field of study is considered. Then why cannot people just say, "I don't know," and be done with it, when children ask questions that they cannot answer? Any child, the veriest simpleton and the greatest wizard among them, can ask a question that nobody on earth is prepared to answer. The thing to do is to say so.

All children ask questions. Sometimes these are intelligent questions, the result of thought. Sometimes they are a way of winning attention, of passing time, of distracting attention from the questioner's behavior. One must consider the child and his mood, in dealing with his questions.

JACKIE KNOWS that bedtime is coming on fast and will overtake him in a few minutes. He spars for time. "Daddy, what makes the lamp burn?"

"Electricity."

"What is electricity?"

"A force of nature that nobody understands."

"Doesn't God understand it?"

"Yes; He made it."

"Then why doesn't He explain it to you?"

"Because He does not think it wise to do so. I must find the answer by myself if I want to know it. That's the best way to answer questions. And it is your bedtime. Hurry along now and get ready. Your mother is waiting."

"But, Daddy"——

"Off with you. I don't know any more about electricity than you do, and you're only wasting your time. Good night."

It is easy to recognize the earnest question, the one that experience or need has brought to the child's mind. If one must say, "I don't know" to a question about the Diesel engine, one can also say, "But we can get some information on it from the library, and I'll ask the engineer in our office to talk to you about it. He knows because he works with engines. I never had anything to do with machinery in my life." That will set things right.

QUESTIONS TO WHICH one does know the answers should be answered as fully and as honestly as one's knowledge allows. Hedging won't do because it makes the child feel that there is something to hide, or that one is unfriendly and disobliging. Such questions as those concerning sex, religion, family finances, family history, have to be answered truthfully. "I don't know" does not belong here. Answer truthfully, and as completely as the experience and personal responsibility of the child allows.

But when you don't know, say so. Children lose no affection or respect for people who confess ignorance, in honesty. They have no regard for those who try to cheat them, a useless effort always.

Flower Arrangements

The new attention which florists are giving to flower arrangements that follow the seasons is reflected in the popularity of button chrysanthemums for corsages and hair ornaments. Several coiffures that are unusually chic have displayed tightly arranged clusters of autumn flowers in shades to bring out a dominant tone of a dress. White chrysanthemums are being used, also, and look especially interesting with a black velvet dress.

Winter Inspection.

Gray Hair tells tales

Keeps Your Secret!

If you have gray hair, simply wet it with Canute Water and allow to dry. In from 1 to 3 applications (depending on shade), it will be completely re-colored . . . similar to its former natural shade. All in one day, if you wish. After that, a single treatment, only once a month, will keep it that way.

You may then curl, wave or set your hair — or get a permanent — if you like. The color is also proof against sun, air, salt-water and shampooing.

Canute Water is pure, colorless and crystal-clear, and will leave your hair clean and natural to the touch. Even you, yourself, will be unable to distinguish the re-colored hair from your natural. You will be delighted to see how completely Canute Water solves your problem.

No Skin Test Needed

A noted Scientist tested Canute Water at one of America's outstanding Universities and proved it to be perfectly harmless. It is so safe and pure that it has never injured a single user in 24 years. You don't even need a skin test before using.

Canute Water is the only preparation ever discovered for re-coloring gray hair which has such a long record of safety and the harmlessness of which has been confirmed by scientific evidence.

No other preparation can make this claim

Is it any wonder that we sell more Canute Water than all other hair coloring preparations combined?

'The Women' Fight It Out Again at the American

Clare Boothe's All-Feminine Satire to Open Return Engagement Tonight—"What a Life" and "Of Mice and Men" Coming Along Next.

CLARE BOOTHE'S satirical expose of the habits of the feminine sex, "The Women," which came to the American Theater last November and had one of its best weeks anywhere, makes a second bid for St. Louis patronage in opening a week's run tonight.

The company, headed by Lois Wilson, is virtually the same as that here last fall, in other words, the Chicago company. Several members of the original New York production which wound up its 657-performance run last July, have been added.

Listed with Miss Wilson as the more important ones among the 40 women, more or less, in the cast, are Alice Buchanan, Emily Ross, Helen Carrington, Emily Smiley, Effie Afton, Delma Byron, Mary Loane, Laura Pierpont, Dorrit Kelton, Jane Marbury and Miriam Battista. The plot reveals only how a very shallow woman loses her husband, through the gossip in her own social set, and regains him by use of the same means. The 12 scenes show modern feminine haunts—the home, the hairdressers, an exercise salon, a hospital room, a Reno (Nev.) hotel room and even a bathroom, with one of the characters taking a bath.

Next after "The Women" at the American will be a new comedy, "What a Life," which opens its run a week from tonight. Since the original company of the play is still on Broadway, the unit here will be one organized and trained for the road by George Abbott, producer of the show.

"What a Life," by Clifford Goldsmith, deals with the antics of a maladjusted high school boy. New York critics have called it a high spot in the cycle of Abbott comedies, including "Three Men on a Horse," "Boy Meets Girl," "Room Service" and "Brother Rat."

The cast is headed by Eddie Bracken, who was well liked here and in New York as Billy Randolph in "Brother Rat." Other members of the company are Connie Nickerson, Marshall Bradford, Fraye Gilbert, Irving Morrow, James Lane, Hope Landin, William Blees, Henry Lascoe and Lora Rogers.

John Steinbeck's widely read story of loyalty and loneliness, "Of Mice and Men," comes to the American for a week beginning Dec. 12, instead of Dec. 11, as originally scheduled. The cast is headed by Claire Luce and Guy Robertson.

Former Missouri Student Writes Broadway Farce

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.

A PLAY and a production which popped up on Broadway this week do much to prove that although college fraternity boys are traditionally short of cash they can become quick and sure financiers when the pressure grows too great.

The production of this new comedy, "Where Do We Go From Here?" is a series of real-life adventures much more exciting than the fictional plot on the stage.

It was written by William Bowers, a 22-year-old newspaper man of Long Beach, Cal. Finding no sale for it, he gathered a group of amateur actors and they decided to produce it themselves.

They contributed a little of their own money to rent a theater. They staged an impromptu concert that earned enough to pay for scenery material. Fortunately, one actor's father was a designer and painter and he contributed his services. Another actor was a cousin of Dwight Taylor, successful Hollywood scenario writer, and he persuaded cousin Dwight to see their show.

Cousin Dwight thought that it was a good Broadway bet and persuaded another playwright, Oscar Hammerstein, to join him in producing the play in New York. They promised the West Coast actors that any who succeeded in getting to New York could play their original roles here, and six of them arrived, some by hitch-hiking.

The play is a breezy comedy, suavely performed, and has only one defect—it has practically no plot. It is simply the story of a group of boys in a fraternity house of a Midwestern college, They are frantically trying to raise $10,000 to prevent their house from being sacrificed, but a quick canvass of the alumni brothers fails to raise any cash aid. Ironically, the banker who threatens to foreclose on them is one of their own fraternity brothers.

The solution of their dilemma is simply that they discover the man who holds the mortgage has no right to foreclose.

That is really all the plot there is, but it is interwoven with so many humorous characters and gags that it comes off as a witty and mostly entertaining revelation of the humorous, bawdy and embarrassing scenes that apparently happen to a group of fraternity brothers.

There is the serious-minded science student who is experimenting with a group of guinea pigs in the fraternity house bathroom. There is the house book which catalogues every girl any of them have had dates with and details just how enthusiastic each girl is about necking.

There are the serious "bull" sessions in the living room, sessions which are usually broken up when a lookout, equipped with binoculars, yells from upstairs that the girls in the dormitory across the campus have begun to disrobe. There is the return of the fraternity brother who graduated in 1905 and who now proceeds to act more juvenile than a kindergarten student. There is the girl student who suddenly accuses one of the fraternity brothers of being the father of her unborn child.

The youthful author says the play is a result of two years spent in the Alpha Tau Omega House at the University of Missouri where he was a student in the school of journalism.

Although a majority of the players are new to Broadway, all of them gave lively, interesting performances, including Ralph Holmes,, a son of the stage star, Taylor Holmes, and brother of the movie star, Phillips Holmes. The lone girl in the cast is Cathie Bailey, who is making her Broadway debut. She has been a summer stock ingenue for five years.

BROADWAY'S musical field, already pretty well occupied, has had to make room for a newcomer, "Leave It to Me," which opened 10 days ago and now is first in popularity among the tune shows.

"Leave It to Me" is a melodic adaptation of that play by Sam and Bella Spewack several seasons ago, "Clear All Wires." It is hilarious buffoonery making fun of certain phases of our American diplomatic corps and spoofing both our own and European politicians.

"Leave It to Me" is the adventure of Alonzo P. Goodhue, a good citizen of Topeka, Kan., who was very happy there until his wife became politically ambitious and maneuvered him into appointment as United States Ambassador to Russia. Once in Moscow, his excellency, Mr. Goodhue, becomes equally ambitious to get back to Topeka and enlists the services of an American newspaper correspondent.

The correspondent's suggestion is for Mr. Goodhue to misbehave himself so much that the State Department, to save its dignity, will have to recall him.

Mr. Goodhue, following instructions, first gives the fat Nazi Ambassador a kick in the stomach. But that makes him a hero among all the other Ambassadors.

He tries to shoot the last of the Romanoffs. He shoots instead a would-be assassin who is trying to kill the Soviet Foreign Minister. That makes him a great man with Stalin, who immediately stages a giant parade in his honor. The parade is almost the finish for Mr. Goodhue,as he has to stand at attention in the reviewing stand for hours while legions of soldiers, guns and tanks pass in front of him.

Every misdeed he tries rebounds in his favor, and just as it appears that the Russians will try to keep him there forever as a public hero, he tries to do some good. He advocates an international peace plan that sounds very effective. For that, he is asked to go back to Topeka as soon as possible.

With Victor Moore in the role of Mr. Goodhue, the show couldn't miss. He was Vice-President Throttlebottom in "Of Thee I Sing" and in this he waddles amidst the self-important personages of the world, a man who wants to be a good fellow without pretense to greatness but finds that very greatness thrust upon him. When he sings "I Want to Go Home" you really feel as if Washington has played him an unfair trick.

Moore is surrounded by a resplendent cast, including William Gaxton, Sophie Tucker and Tamara. But, the hit of the evening was another of those new faces who have been delightfully swarming over Broadway recently.

This new face belongs to 22-year-old Mary Martin, daughter of Judge Martin of Weatherford, Tex. Miss Martin first went to Hollywood, but the movie moguls there left her in lonely isolation. So she sang in a night club where Producer Vinton Freedley saw her and signed her for this, her first role on the Rialto.

She sings "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" and at the same time does a burlesque of burlesque's own strip-tease numbers.

The New York critics forgot the other established stars in the show and raved so much about her that city editors sent over reporters to write front-page stories about this gal who came to town only two months ago.

Scouts from the same movie studios that spurned her in Hollywood formed a line at the stage door after the opening to sign contracts, but the erudite Freedley had already signed her to a run-of-the-play. It will be some time before she can go West again. She seems happy about that.

LOIS WILSON AS MRS. STEPHEN HAINES, THE FIRST, IN "THE WOMEN," CURRENT AMERICAN THEATER PLAY.

'If I Were King' Makes Rousing Movie Comeback

By Colvin McPherson

FRANCOIS VILLON, who in recent years has been singing in operetta and trying to look like Dennis King, has gone back to his historical business of being only a rogue, only a vagabond poet with the grand manner. And, Justin Huntly McCarthy's sturdy old drama, "If I Were King," is likely not to be one whit less popular in new form, at the Ambassador Theater, than it ever was before.

For Ronald Colman is a new Villon that is taken to the heart of a movie audience immediately. Strange fellow, this Colman, a man who drops out of sight and gossip for a few months and then comes back with a characterization that shines above other Hollywood efforts like an airplane beacon over a cornfield. Whether moat-jumper at Zenda, masquerader in London or high mucky-muck at Shangri-La, one of the best actors of our time.

In the Ambassador's film, Colman and Preston Sturges, the screen play author, and Frank Lloyd, the director, make the immortal "tinker of verses" an animated, witty, bold and well mannered knave, a kind of fellow who will turn from his prayers for a pretty damsel and compose poetry for her as easily as most men make up lies. And such poetry! It will send many a movie fan scurrying to the library to make the literary acquaintance of this Francois Villon.

But when talking of performances in "If I Were King," there is another to match Colman's. This is the one by Basil Rathbone, as King Louis XI, who called Villon's bluff, in fiction at least, and made him prove that he could rule France and drive off the Burgundians. The versatile Mr. Rathbone is nothing short of astonishing. Heretofore not much more than a sneer-in-profile, albeit an excellent one, he becomes a cackling old villain of a sort that George Arliss would give his monocle to play.

Director Lloyd, who also was producer of the film, surrounds his two star players with setting, action and extras to give them greatest support. "If I Were King" is full of laughter and roistering, brawls and conspiracies, inspiring calls to arms and a magnificent clash at the West Gate of Paris.

Using his well known method of planning every detail ahead of time on paper, Lloyd has brought forth a smoothly flowing narrative, with no breaks in the action and no loose ends to the plot. His scenic staff has put up some of the most solid-looking sets in recent medieval history and the actors wear the costumes as if they knew how to dress themselves.

Frances Dee plays Katherine de Vaucelles, Villon's object of adoration, with a royal reserve and Ellen Drew gives Huguette her combination of rowdiness and sensibility. C. V. France, imported from England to play Villon's foster father, is another actor sharing credit for the excellence of the show.

"Swing That Cheer," which is about a swell-head football player and his interference, completes the Ambassador program. Some of the gridiron battles, apparently clipped from the newsreels, are thrilling, although it seems that the same cheering section cheers for both sides in the big game. Maybe foul professionalism has invaded even school spirit.

Brother Rat.

A BETTER example of collegiate life is shown at the Fox, where "Brother Rat" is the main feature. Written by two former students of Virginia Military Institute, when they were at Virginia Military Institute, and about V. M. I., to abbreviate it, "Brother Rat" refuses to fall into Hollywood's established ruts for college films.

There is a big game, as a matter of fact, a baseball game, but the chief worry of the boys at V. M. I. is how to get their star pitcher, Bing Edwards, through a chemistry examination, into line for a diploma and past the commandant when, if the truth were known, he would be kicked out immediately. The horrible truth is that he has gone and got married and is about to become a father.

The one or two slightly off-color remarks in the stage version have been penciled out so that "Brother Rat" on the screen is as innocent as it can be. Scenes written in for the film round out the action more completely and give opportunity to show the actual campus of V. M. I., which the cameraman visited before the picture went into production in Hollywood.

Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane, Ronald Reagan, Jane Wyman and Jane Bryan are a collection of the Warner Brothers' best young people and with them is Eddie Albert, from the stage, who plays Bing Edwards in a quiet, sure and altogether suitable manner.

"The Storm," second feature for the Fox, roams the seven seas in search of a dramatic situation. Wreck of a freighter against an iceberg, explosion of another vessel in the Pacific and fistfights in every port are treated as a matter of routine. Finally Nan Grey performs an appendicitis operation on Tom Brown during a storm and that is considered sufficient to bring the picture to its close.

The Young in Heart.

LOEW'S main entry, which arrived last Thursday, is a light and beguiling comedy with a bit of emotional stir. Adapted from "The Gay Banditti," I. A. R. Wylie's magazine serial, it recounts the happenings which result when a family of fortune-hunters attaches itself to a wealthy but lonely recluse.

Roland Young, Billie Burke, Janet Gaynor and Douglas Fairbanks Jr., are members of the family and Minnie Dupree, from the stage, is their chosen benefactor. Capably acted, for the most part, and with a good central idea, "The Young in Heart" is one of the better entertainments of the week. A little more subtlety in treatment and a less hackneyed ending would have helped it greatly, however.

"The Little Adventuress," on the same program, has no originality at all. It features Edith Fellows as an orphan with a race horse and no money.

Girls on Probation.

A FOREWORD to "Girls on Probation," at the St. Louis, says that the probation office is many times a "halfway milepost between happiness and degradation." Jane Bryan, who has the hard luck to become involved in bank robbery in the film, finds the probation office a pretty good place. Investigator Dorothy Peterson helps her return to respectability and eventually two criminals who would have ruined everything are shot.

In "Personal Secretary," Joy Hodges, a columnist who relies on astrology as her news source, enters into a rivalry with William Gargan, who pays for his tips on stories. It's pretty fantastic and even if true, as the farmer said, it wouldn't be possible.

"Men With Wings" and "Service De Luxe" are in continued run at the Missouri. One is about airplanes, the other about tractors. But romance is of first importance in both.

'L'Equipage' Booked For Screening Room

A French film, "L'Equipage," also called "Flight Into Darkness," will be shown at the S'Renco Screening Room next Saturday, Sunday and Monday nights at 7:30 and 9 o'clock. The story of a French World War flyer who finds himself in love with a comrade's wife, the picture stars Annabella, French actress now under Hollywood contract, with Charles Vanel, Jean-Pierre Aumont and Jean Murat. Dialogue is in French, with English titles.

The R-K-O studio in Hollywood made an English version of the same story last year, with Paul Muni, Miriam Hopkins and Louis Hayward in leading roles, under the title of "The Woman I Love." Anatole Litvak directed both productions.

Maria Reining in Concert Debut With the Symphony

Viennese Soprano to Make First American Appearances, Outside of Opera, on Friday and Saturday—Strauss Premieres on Program.

MARIA REINING, lyric soprano of the European concert and operatic stages, will make her first American concert appearances next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, as guest artist of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at its regular concerts. She will sing the aria, "Glocklein im Tale," from Weber's opera, "Euryanthe," and two Richard Strauss selections never before heard in this country.

Miss Reining, who comes here from operatic performances in Chicago, is a native of Vienna, got her musical training there and made her professional debut there. She has since sung at the Darmstadt Opera, in Munich and in the summer of 1937 was one of the chief participants in the now-famous Toscanini revival of "Die Meistersinger" at the Salzburg festival. Recently she won a triumph as Elsa in "Lohengrin" at Covent Garden, London.

The two Strauss selections to which she is giving first American presentation are from Strauss' opera, "Arabella"—the Monologue from Act 1, "Mein Elemer Das Hat So Einen Sonderbaren Klang," and the aria, "Das War Sehr Gut, Mandryka, Das Sie Noch Nicht Fortgegangen Sind," from Act III.

Conductor Vladimir Golschmann's program for the orchestra alone will feature Mozart's popular Symphony in G Minor; the first American performances of the Overture from Cantata XXVI, "Ache Wie Fluchtig! Ach Wie Nichtig!" by Johann Sebastian Bach, with symphonic transcription by Leonid Leonardi; Brahms' Variations on a Theme of Haydn; the world premiere of "Pastel Sonore" by Albert Verley, and the first St. Louis performances of the Prelude to Act III of Strauss' "Arabella."

MARIA REINING, SYMPHONY GUEST ARTIST AT THE END OF THE WEEK.

Strauss, now 74 years old, composed his opera, "Arabella," when he was in his seventieth year, using a work by Hugo von Hofmannstal called, "Lucifer: Figures for an Unwritten Comedy," as its basis. The opera, with Clemens Krauss conducting, was presented for the first time anywhere at Dresden, July 1, 1933. Herbert Peyster, critic, said echoes of the Johann Strauss traditions were in the music, and that it stood "head and shoulders above all German operatic output for four or five years." The story is laid in Vienna in 1860s, and centers around the love intrigues of two sisters.

The Weber aria Miss Reining will sing contains some of the finest passages of "Euryanthe." In spite of containing pages of music comparable to the best of Mozart creations, the opera has never achieved genuine success because of a cumbersome libretto.

The Mozart symphony has not been played by the orchestra since the 1934-35 season. The G-Minor symphony was composed at Salzburg in 1773, the same year Mozart wrote the "Jupiter" and the E-Flat symphonies.

Verley, composer of "Pastel Sonore," is a distinguished French chemical engineer who has made music his avocation and has written several important orchestral works. Golschmann gave the world premiere of Verley's "Cloches dans la Vallee" four seasons ago. Leonid Leonardi directed a theater orchestra here for several years and is well known as a brilliant musician. He was graduated from the Paris Conservatoire. His orchestration of Samuel Scheidt's Choral Prelude, "Vater Unser in Himmelreich," was played by the orchestra, under Golschmann's direction, in December, 1936.

Next Sunday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, a special concert of "Music of Our Time," with Carleton Smith, prominent American musical authority, as commentator, will be given. The program for this concent will consist of "Psalm for Or-orchestra" by David Diamond; "Speed" from "A Symphony of the City" by Carl Eppert; Symphonic Suite, "Lieutenant Kije," by Serge Prokofieff, all of which have never been played in St. Louis before, and the Second Symphony of Sibelius. Popular prices have been established, ranging from 25 cents to $1.

Y. M. H. A. Players In Camp Life Comedy

The Y. M. H. A. dramatic group will open its 1938-39 season next Sunday night with Arthur Kober's comedy, "Having Wonderful Time." Three performances will be given on three consecutive nights. In the cast are Frank Galine, Rose Kranzberg, Meyer Fiman, Al Chotinsky, Cy Grossman, Ruth Chotinsky and Leonard Blumenthal.

"Having Wonderful Time," recently made into a motion picture starring Ginger Rogers and Douglas Fairbanks Jr., is the romance of a typist and a young law graduate at a typical upstate New York camp frequented by residents of the Bronx. The original play version is more satirical and less censored than the screen play was.

Metropolitan Opera Broadcasts to Begin Next Saturday with Gluck's "Orpheus and Eurydice"—Experiment with Shakespeare Play at Noon Today—Network News—Studio Gossip.

By J. L. S.

A PERFORMANCE of Gluck's "Orpheus and Eurydice," from 12:55 to 4 o'clock next Saturday afternoon, will open the fall-winter matinee broadcasts from the Metropolitan Opera House. KSD will be able to begin the broadcasts at 12:55 if KFUO can re-arrange its schedule so as to make the necessary exchange of time with KSD. Otherwise, KSD will have to wait until 1:30 to pick the opera up from the WEAF network.

The revival of Gluck's opera is planned as a wholly new production with new settings and departures from established conventions. Kerstin Thorburg, the Swedish contralto, will sing the role of Orpheus, and Irene Jessner, soprano, that of Eurydice. Marisa Morel, a young soprano who has sung in the opera house at Turin, Milan, Vienna and Salzburg and is to make her Metropolitan Opera debut early this week, will be cast as Amor, and Marita Farell as the Happy Shade. Artur Bodanzky will conduct. Milton Cross will be the announcer for the series.

A SCENE which could not be attempted in Shakespeare's time will be used in the Great Plays production of his "Julius Caesar" at 12 noon today on the WJZ net and KWK. In the scene, set in the camp near Sardis, where Brutus broods over his misfortunes following the murder of Caesar, the voice of Brutus' wife, Portia, is heard as if she were speaking to him subconsciously. In Shakespeare's manuscript, Portia plays no part in this scene, although Brutus' lines refer to her constantly. The limitations of the theater in his day made the production of such a scene impossible, but with the modern technique of radio, Portia's voice can be brought into the scene logically. The lines she speaks are modern additions to Shakespeare's play.

Franchot Tone is reported considering an offer to headline him in a Sunday radio series. . . . Jean Sablon, the singer, plans to return to France for movie work after the final Hollywood Hotel broadcast Dec. 2. He was recognized as France's No. 1 popular singer, but won only a fair success in this country until he got the Hollywood hotel billing. . . W. C. Fields has departed from the Saturday night Hit Parade show after four of the 26 weekly appearances at $5000 per for which his contract provided. . . . The CBS, according to "Variety," would like to have Maurice Evans take over Orson Welles Sunday period when the latter shifts to Friday night on Dec. 9.

PLANS for radio coverage of the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth of England to Canada and this country are already being worked out by the NBC for the WEAF and WJZ networks. The broadcasts will begin with the preparations for the trip, and will cover the departure from England, the voyage across the ocean and then, in detail, the reception to the royal couple. Although the protocol division of the State Department has not made a statement as to arrangements for the reception, the NBC is formulating its plans on those for the reception to the King and Queen of Belgium in 1919, the late Queen Marie of Roumania, in 1926, and the King and Queen of Siam in 1931, all of which followed a similar pattern.

The serial titled Wings of the Martins, which began last week on the WJZ net under the auspices of the NBC, the U. S. Office of Education, the WPA and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, is scheduled on KWK this week, at 8:30 Wednesday night. It deals with problems faced by parents in the rearing of children and with the need of co-operative effort by everyone in educational effort outside of the classroom.

Broadcasts from the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago will be carried on the WJZ net at 3 p. m. Monday, Nov. 28, through Friday, Dec. 2, and at 4:45 p. m. the same days on WLW, WHO and other Midwest stations.

Bill Krenz, pianist, and Lola Hutchison, soprano, are billed with him Sundays, and Fritz Wolf, violinist, and Miss Hutchison Mondays and Tuesdays.

Edith Dick, formerly a Hit Parade singer, has been signed as a regular on Buddy Clark's Sunday Supplement program. For the past few months, she has been singing in early morning network shows.

Judy Canova, the comedienne and singer on KSD's Charlie McCarthy program, and her brother and sister, Annie and Zeke, took four-year courses at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music to prepare for concert careers. But Judy's developing a talent for mimicry and hillbilly comedy resulted in changing of their plans.

THE CBS is auditioning a show planned to feature Billy Gilbert, the comedian. . . . The show which Jesse Lasky is preparing is reported slated to displace Billy House's Sunday night program on and after Jan. 8. . . Frances Langford, the singer, who will be out of a radio job when Orson Welles' Mercury Theater Playhouse displaces the Hollywood Hotel Friday night, Dec. 9, has offers of spots on two other network programs. . . . A new series for which the orchestra will be Artie Shaw's is likely to be spotted on the CBS net opposite Charley McCarthy when Welles moves to Friday.

Henry Fonda is billed for KSD's Charlie McCarthy hour next Sunday . . . Walter Hampden will do one of his favorite roles in the Great Plays period next Sunday noon when he will produce "Othello" . . . A radio adaptation of Walt Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" will be performed in the Radio Theater the day after Christmas . . . Radio Amateurs In WEAF Chain Broadcast Today

RADIO hams of the Susquehanna Valley section in New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland will stage a program at 7:30 this morning on the WEAF net. The broadcast will be in the nature of an emergency drill by radio operators of 16 amateur stations, with each reporting to a control station at York, Pa. Brief talks on the value of messages sent by amateur radio operators in times of flood and other disasters will be made by Merrill Bernard, chief of the Rivers and Floods Division, U. S. Weather Bureau, and J. L. Fieser, vice-president in charge of domestic operations of the American Red Cross. Lieut. E. K. Jett, chief engineer for the Federal Communications Commission, will comment on the drill.

JAMES TODD HEADS PRESS ASSOCIATION

Moberly Man Elected President at Closing Session of State Body.

The Missouri Press Association elected James Todd of the Moberly Monitor-Index as president at the final session of its seventy-second annual convention yesterday at Hotel Statler. He succeeded George B. Holland of Boonville.

Clint H. Denman of the Sikeston Herald was named vice-president; Mrs. J. W. Pollard of the De Kalb County Record Journal, Maysville, was elected recording secretary, and Wilson Bell of the Potosi Independent-Journal, treasurer.

Wage and hour problems and social compensation statutes were discussed at general sessions. The Missouri Women's Press Association held breakfast and luncheon meetings.

In appreciation of the 30-year record of the Missouri University School of Journalism, the association presented a framed memorial to Dean Frank L. Martin. It was announced that two annual scholarships to the school have been established by the Kansas City Board of Trade. They will be awarded to students chosen by a daily and weekly newspaper in the State. Different papers will select winners each year.

The British team will take the affirmative of the subject, "Resolved that the United States enter into an alliance against Fascist Powers." The members of the Oxford-Cambridge team are Christopher Paget Mayhew, former president of the Oxford Union Society, and Philip R. Noakes, former editor of the Cambridge Review.

Washington University debaters are Eugene V. Fredirich, president of the University Band, and Albert E. Schoenbech, vice-president of the student governing body of the law school. High school students will be admitted to the debate for 15 cents.

1556 Suits for December Term.

Yesterday was closing time for the issuance of writs in suits returnable to the December term of Circuit Court. A total of 1556 suits have been filed for that term, 95 less than for the corresponding term a year ago, it is announced by Steve Liskiewicz, chief docket deputy in the office of Circuit Clerk H. Sam Priest.

UNITED CHARITIES SOLICITATION TO GO ON

Workers to Stay in Field Week After Campaign Formally Closed $488,849 Short.

Workers in the United Charities campaign, which ended officially yesterday with subscriptions $488,849 short of the goal of $2,495,170, were requested to continue their work for another week in an attempt to obtain additional funds, Kirk E. Latta, acting director of the United Charities, said last night in a Community Forum interview on the radio.

He pointed out that total contributions reported at the final general report meeting Friday amounted to $2,006,331, or about $190,000 less than the total obtained in the campaign last year.

"Last year's total, however, was not reached until six weeks after the formal closing of the campaign," he said. "Bearing this in mind, we have asked all our workers in both the city and county to continue their efforts for another week. These workers still have prospect cards, containing the names of more than 5000 persons whose aggregate gifts to the campaign a year ago amounted to approximately $175,000."

He said that many important services offered by the 87 welfare agencies affiliated with the United Charities would have to be curtailed as a result of the failure of the organization to reach the goal. Because the campaign last year also fell short of the necessary funds, the agencies had a deficit of $409,000, and were required to borrow or use funds that should not have been used for operating expenses, he said.

Irving Edison, campaign vice-chairman, declared that more than half of the prospective pledges still outstanding were in the Special Gifts Division, although workers in this group were responsible for more than half of the campaign goal. He said special gift solicitors would continue to work until all possibilities of obtaining funds had been exhausted.

A final breakfast meeting of captains and chairmen in the campaign will be held Nov. 28 at Hotel Statler. Campaign headquarters at the hotel have been closed and future reports are to be made at the United Charities office, 613 Locust street.

THANKSGIVING DAY MAIL

No Regular Deliveries but There Will Be Two Collections.

All branch postoffices will be closed Thanksgiving day and there will be no regular mail deliveries in the city or county.

Receiving windows at the Main Postoffice, Eighteenth and Market streets, will be open all day Thursday and parcel post shipments will be accepted at the Eighteenth street platform. Mail will be collected in the early afternoon and at 9 o'clock at night, and special deliveries will be made after 7 a. m.

BOARD TO STUDY YOUTH PROBLEMS IN ST. LOUIS

Social Planning Council Survey to Seek Basis for City Program.

The appointment of a commission to make a thorough study of social problems confronting the youth of St. Louis was announced yesterday by Dr. Llewellyn Sale, president of the Social Planning Council of St. Louis and St. Louis County. The survey will be made under the auspices of the council and the St. Louis Bureau for Men.

Dr. Sale said the purpose of the study was to "enable St. Louis to know and plan for its youth." The commission, he said, is to consider the needs of youth and to appraise the facilities and resources for meeting them.

The commission will make recommendations to the Council in regard to procedures and changes in existing programs. It is also to assist to the council in carrying out approved recommendations. Much of the detail work is to be carried out through a series of technical committees, the first of which will be assigned to research.

Other technical groups will conduct investigations in health problems, recreation, education, Negro youth plans and leisure time activities. The commission will issue periodic bulletins as the program progresses.

Members of the commission are Chairman R. H. B. Thompson, Mrs. Pearl Case Blough, Mrs. D. B. Coleman, Scott R. DeKins, the Rev. B. F. Hall, Dr. Marvin Kirstein, E. G. Steger, Mrs. Victor Weir, John A. Fleischli and the Rev. Joseph Husslein, S. J. The technical staff will be headed by G. MISSOURI INCOME TAX RULING APPEALED Artophone Co. Contests Judge Joynt's Decision on Interstate Business.

A test suit to determine the right of the State to compute income taxes on interstate business transacted by Missouri firms was appealed to the Supreme Court yesterday by the Artophone Corporation, 4200 Forest Park boulevard, distributer of electrical appliances. The appeal is from a recent decision by Circuit Judge John W. Joynt in a suit filed by the company to abate a portion of income taxes levied for the year 1936.

The court held that the State can legally consider in the computation net profits derived from business transacted partially within the State which cannot be definitely allocated to other sources. While the amount of the rebate sought by petitioner is only $102.14, its attorney, Robert T. Burch, estimated that the issue involves extra payment of about $1,000,000 a year by all business firms in the State similarly situated. The appeal is in behalf of all such firms, it was stated.

The Artophone Corporation paid an income tax of $497.36 in 1936 based on its net profits. Its total sales for that period aggregated $7,856,168, of which $762,060 was from sales made to purchasers living outside of Missouri. A portion of the latter was included by the company in computing the tax, but the State demanded payment of an extra tax of $503.02.

Included in the extra assessment was $400.88 based on $27,529 proceeds the company received from insurance on the life of Raymond C. Layer, one of its officers, who died in July, 1936. The firm's contention that the insurance was not income of the business was upheld by Judge Joynt, who abated that part of the tax. The firm pointed out it had paid premiums totaling $7485 to maintain the insurance.

The tax levied is 1 per cent of net profits.

President's Thanksgiving Proclamation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.

FOLLOWING is the tet of President Roosevelt's Thanksgiving day proclamation, issued today:

I FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, the twenty-fourth of November, 1938, as a day of general thanksgiving.

Our fathers set aside such a day as they hewed a nation from the primeval forest. The observance was consecrated when George Washington issued a Thanksgiving proclamation in the first year of his presidency. Abraham Lincoln set apart "a day of Thanksgiving and praise to our beneficent Father who dwelleth in the Heavens."

Thus from our earliest recorded history, Americans have thanked God for their blessings. In our deepest natures, in our very souls, we, like all mankind since the earliest origin of mankind, turn to God in time of trouble and in time of happiness. "In God we trust."

For the blessings which have been ours during the present year we have ample cause to be thankful.

Our lands have yielded a goodly harvest, and the toiler in shop and mill receives a more just return for his labor.

We have cherished and preserved our democracy.

We have lived in peace and understanding with our neighbors and have seen the world escape the impending disaster of a general war.

In the time of our fortune it is fitting that we offer prayers for unfortunate people in other lands who are in dire distress at this, our Thanksgiving season.

Let us remember them in our families and our churches when, on the day appointed, we offer our thanks to Almighty God. May we by our way of living merit the continuance of His goodness.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

By the President:
CORDELL HULL,
Secretary of State.

(Seal) Done at the City of Washington, this nineteenth day of November, in the year of Our Lord, nineteen hundred and thirty-eight, and of the independence of the United States of America, the one hundred and sixty-third.

65TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tremlett, 2609 South Grand boulevard, will celebrate their sixty-fifth wedding anniversary Nov. 28. They were married at the Christian Church, Eighth and Mound streets. He is a former cashier, 87 years old, and his wife is 82.

A bridesmaid, Mrs. Mary Rodgers, is 82 and lives at 5351 Delmar boulevard.

REHEARING DENIED ON FEES TO CONTINENTAL LIFE COUNSEL

State Supreme Court Stands by Decision That Claims Are Not Preferred.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 19. — The Missouri Supreme Court denied today a rehearing of a case in which the court held last September that Theodore Rassieur and Frank Pace, attorneys for the defunct Continental Life Insurance Co., were not entitled to preferred claims against the company's assets for $35,000 in fees allowed them by St. Louis Circuit Court.

The Supreme Court, in its opinion, again condemned the management of the Continental Life under its former president, Ed Mays. Recalling its previous finding that the insurance company was insolvent when taken over by the State Insurance Department in 1934, in a dissolution suit, the court declared, "No one knowing anything that Mays and his directors knew about the insurance company and what they had done with it, and to it, could have had reasonable grounds to believe that it was solvent."

The Circuit Court had allowed Rassieur $30,000 and Pace $5000 for services in defense of the dissolution suit, and declared the fees preferred claims against the firm's assets.

LIBRARY PATRONS CLAMOR FOR BOOKS BY H. G. WELLS

Big Demand Ever Since "War of Worlds" Broadcast Three Weeks Ago.

The Public Library and its branches have been deluged with requests for books of H. G. Wells ever since the broadcast of "The War of Worlds" which caused widespread excitement three weeks ago, Librarian Charles H. Compton reported yesterday.

Copies of "The War of the Worlds" were exhausted within a few hours the day after the broadcast, Compton said, and since then there has been a brisk demand for all of Wells' fantastic novels. There has also been a demand for any books about rockets, he added.

Sure!
"Reliable!" says Miss Keck. How many have found that word so true of REM, because for years they have relied on it for quick relief. There are definite reasons why REM is so effective.
(1) REM is made specifically for coughs resulting from colds.
(2) REM is a real cough medicine, not just a "tickle stopper."
(3) REM is thorough, because it works two ways . . . not only in the throat, but also systemically. That's what makes it so very much more effective.
So if you have a cough resulting from a cold, don't fool around with it. Go after it with a real cough medicine like REM.

OPERATIONS IN ILLINOIS OIL AREA REACH 700

170 Wildcat Tests—100 Wells Completed During the Week.

By the Associated Press.

CENTRALIA, Ill., Nov. 19.—Illinois oil activity reached a new record of 700 operations last week. There were 170 wildcat tests.

New locations for future drilling were being announced by developers with apparent disregard of the season. One hundred wells were completed in the Illinois basin this week and the Lake Centralia-Salem field claimed 60 of them. The others principally were in the Fayette filed and the Tri-county area of Richland, Clay and Wayne counties, although two producers were completed in the old Eastern Illinois field in Lawrence and Wabash counties.

The Texas company, which had about 100 of the 275 operations in the Lake Centralia-Salem field, announced 11 successful completions. Company officers said all 11 wells produced from the Benoist formation and the initial aggregate production was 4814 barrels. The two best wells were the K. Wayman and the Frederick No. 6, each said to have had an initial production of 1100 barrels.

Operations by Magnolia.

The Magnolia company announced 10 completions in the Lake Centralia-Salem field with an initial aggregate production of 2430 barrels. All but one produced from the Benoist between 1777 and 1882 feet. The other was from the McClosky at 2132 feet.

The Magnolia also announced completion of one wildcat in Jefferson County, the No. 1 Harvey, which was producing 10 barrels an hour on pump, and the near completion of the Dare No. 1 well, where the plug was being drilled. Saturation at the Dare well was cored at 2780 feet.

Magnolia announced nine new locations in the Lake field, all on the J. H. Young farm, sending to 30 the number of completed wells, operations and locations on this property. Magnolia already had about 40 operations in the Lake field.

New Pipeline in Operation.

The first oil from the Centralia area reached the Indian refinery at Lawrenceville by pipe line this week, when the Central State Pipeline Co., associated with the Texas Co., completed its line. Oil was shipped by train and truck before the pipeline's completion.

Activity of the Carter Oil Co. featured the Fayette County development. The company had 73 tests in various stages of operation in addition to 100 successful completions.

The marketing situation definitely was "looking up" to independent operators with news of the Globe Refining Co.'s laying a pipeline in the county and the near completion of the Allied Oil Corporation refinery at St. Elmo to replace the refinery destroyed by fire last month.

Some independents, due to the glutted market and the resultant limitation which some marketing agencies placed on the amount of oil they would take from each well, had discontinued development programs.

One Fayette Test Abandoned.

Wildcatting in the unproved area of Fayette County was watched with interest. One disappointing abandonment was the Laura Siger farm in Wilberton by A. J. Baxter and associates.

Two areas in Richland County also were watched. One was the Pure Oil Co.'s Cypress sand field in Northeast Noble, East Denver, West Preston and Northwest Olney townships. Pure had only two completions, both producers, there, and was completing a third well, the Frank Wakefield No. 2, which had set casing to pay. The other area was the south end of Preston Township which was a part of the north limit of the North Olney field. Much wildcatting in this vicinity was expected to define the edges of the pool.

In Clay County the Kingwood Oil Co.'s Elliott No. 1 became a good producer this week north of Flora and three other tests were almost to the McCloskey.

Wayne County's wildcats held the interest of Wayne operators in spite of heavy activity in Pure's Cisne field and in the Weinert pool. Two important wildcats were in the Pure oil block slightly northeast of the center of the county. They were the Muhlbach's A. B. Anderson No. 1 in North Jasper township and Haswell's Fitch No. 1 in North Elm River township.

Pure Oil Co. Well Completed.

In the Cisne Pool Pure completed the Stella Billington No. 2 and was completing the C. H. Billington No. 2 with three others in process of completion.

Weinert successfully completed the Morlan C-3 and C-1 in the Big Mound pool, with three more Morlan wells, the A-4, the B-2 and the C-4 nearing completion.

The success of the Clyde King well in north Wabash County, the Oris Pepple well in Lawrence County near St. Francisville, and gas wells near Russellville added interest in the old oil areas of Eastern Illinois.

New wildcat tests were announced for Jasper County in the Rose Hill vicinity and for Jackson County at Vergennes.

Comedy for Jewish Relief.

The Jewish Consumptive Relief Society of St. Louis will present a musical comedy Wednesday evening at 8:15 at the Municipal Auditorium, to be followed by a dance. The proceeds will be used for the treatment of needy consumptive Jews.

Auto News and Notes

H. P. SCHALLER, MANAGER of the St. Louis area for United Motors Service, Inc., a division of General Motors, has been appointed manager of the concern's New York operations, which is the largest of its 24 branches in this country.

The appointment will become effective Dec. 1

Schaller will be succeeded here by D. C. Shaw, who is manager of the branch at Buffalo, N. Y.

Schaller joined United Motors in Boston, his home city, in 1920, and worked up to be assistant manager of the branch there. In 1928 he was transferred to Memphis, Tenn., to open a branch there.

In 1934 he was made manager of the St. Louis branch, which includes the Memphis area.

SALES AT THE ANNUAL ST. Louis Auto Show, which closed in the Arena last night, were exceptionally good, Joseph A. Schlecht, secretary-manager of the Greater St. Louis Automobile Association and manager of the show, said yesterday. The week, from that viewpoint, was one of the best the association has ever experienced, he declared, remarking that the distributors of the higher priced cars fared as well as did those of the low priced lines. Truck sales at the show also weer very good, Schlecht said, and the exhibitors of trailers, airplanes and motorboats reported a most encouraging attitude by the public.

N. L. PHILLIPS HAS BEEN APpointed sales manager for Midcity Motors, Inc. He started in the automobile business in 1924 in Franklin County, Illinois, and spent most of the next seven years as a retail salesman for a Dodge dealership.

N. L. Phillips.

In May, 1931, he came to St. Louis and became sales manager for a firm on South Kingshighway.

In 1932 he became sales manager for another automobile firm, and continued in executive sales positions with several companies until August, 1936, when he was appointed a sales executive with an auto concern on South Jefferson avenue.

MANY OF THE MEN WHO make motor cars, the Associated Press reports, are beginning to look upon a 4,000,000-unit output next year as a virtual certainty as retail demand holds up and orders at the factories show little indication of leveling off. Factory activity at the moment is above the production level in the comparable weeks of 1937, and plant executives and sales managers, planning the schedules as far ahead as possible, see no likelihood of a let-down in consumer requirement until well after the first of the coming year.

Few of the producers themselves have been willing openly to sponsor the 4,000,000-unit estimate for next year, being content rather with the venture that an increase of 35 to 50 per cent might develop. This would bring the aggregate fairly close to that total, but the spread indicated the uncertainty most manufacturers felt until a few weeks ago. Consumer interest in the current automobile shows undoubtedly had much to do with the further rise in producers' spirits. The sales division of various companies reported more than customary interest in the displays and an increasing number of sales on the show floors.

Encouraged as they are over the prospect of increased distribution of their cars in the coming year, the manufacturers point out that production costs have been increased and prices reduced for virtually every model currently made. For these reasons, they make it clear, a large volume of sales must be made if operations are to be maintained on a profit basis. It was largely with the expectation of stepping up unit sales that price cuts were undertaken with the presentation of the 1939 models.

The first time the industry exceeded 4,000,000 assemblies in one year was in 1923, when it turned out 4,180,450 vehicles. These had a wholesale value of $2,592,033,428. In 1935, 4,119,811 vehicles were produced with a wholesale value of $2,187,846,702.

An indication of what most of the manufacturers look for next year is given in the upward boost in tentative production schedules. Pontiac division of General Motors had a tentative output program calling for 125,000 units next year. It is now aiming at 200,000 in 1939.

ACCELERATED BUYING OF automobiles is definitely indicated by retail delivery reports for the first 10 days in November, a statement from the Packard factory says. In that period, more new Packards were delivered to retail buyers than in any other first 10 days of a month in 1938.

A USED CAR LOT HAS BEEN opened by the Marvin Yates Pontiac Co., at 3531 South Grand boulevard, near Gravois. It will be in charge of S. P. Mothershead, who has been used car manager for Yates for the past five years.

FORTY-THREE CUBIC YARDS of dirt are hauled at a time in the world's largest dump truck, which is at work on the Los Angeles flood-control system. This truck, weighing 36 tons empty, rolls on 14 13.50x24 Firestone ground-grip excavator tires, in a tandem triple installation. It has nine forward speeds and three in reverse, air-controlled clutch, power brakes and hydraulically operated steering.

A DEMONSTRATION OF THE new Bendix hydraulic steering stabilizer, which is designed to hold a car running straight in case of a tire blow-out, will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday on North and South road opposite Charles Shaw Park in Clayton. The demonstration will include driving the car over two logs at 25 miles per hour to show the action of the stabilizer; shooting out a rear tire with the car running 70 miles per hour and locking its brakes, shooting out a front and a rear tire on the car on the same side of the car at the same time at 70 miles per hour, and driving the car with two flat tires while steering with one hand laid lightly on the steering wheel. Another stunt will be shooting out a front tire at 70 miles per hour and then letting the car hit a 10-inch high sandbag on the same side as the blown tire.

The stabilizer is a simple device, easily attached to a car and acting only in case of an emergency when it automatically takes control of the steering. Also, sudden shocks, as when a car's wheels hit obstructions or holes in a road, are absorbed instantly by the stabilizer's hydraulic action. In case of hitting a large obstruction or a tire blowing out, the stabilizer acts regardless of the speed at which the car may be traveling.

Wednesday afternoon's demonstration will be sponsored by Borbein-Young & Co. and the Downey Equipment Co., the distributers.

PRICES OF THE 1939 LINE OF Dodge trucks have been reduced as compared with prices of the 1938 line. The reductions range as much as $40 on some models. Prices of Dodge's new Deisel-engined heavy duty trucks are yet to be announced.

CLEAN, FRESH AIR FROM outside of the car is filtered, warmed and circulated by the new "climatizer" system of the 1939 Studebaker models. The system is out of the way of driver and passengers, and in no way encroaches upon interior room.

PRODUCTION OF LINCOLN-Zephyr cars has been increased twice since the 1939 models were brought out less than a month ago, and daily output is running 50 per cent above the initial schedules, according to A. S. Hatch, in charge of Lincoln and Lincoln-Zephyr sales. Hatch says that this is the more significant in that the factory holds production to a long-term level instead of running too strongly at first and then having to taper production off.

THE NEW 61-HP ENGINE used in the wholly new Overland cars develops its maximum torque of 106 foot pounds at 2200 r. p. m. Engineers assert that it will maintain a car speed up a 15 per cent grade of 40 miles per hour.

"LONG DISTANCE" ORDERS for cars one and two years in advance of production are frequently received by the Oldsmobile retail organization, according to D. E. Ralston, general sales manager. "The other day we delivered an Oldsmobile eight to a mining engineer who had just returned from a two-year stay in South America," Ralston said. "The order had been on our books since 1936 and carried a credit for the value of a car which the engineer had turned in at that time."

A TRESTLE NEARLY 100 FEET long, fitted with new-type focusing apparatus, is used in the factory final assembly line for adjusting headlamps of the 1939 Plymouth cars, which have the headlights streamlined into the front fenders. More accurate and permanent focusing is assured.

THE INSISTENCE OF Charles E. Duryea, pioneer auto builder, who died recently, that pneumatic tires should be superior to solid tires, was a material factor in the development of the tire industry, according to F. B. Davis Jr., president of the United States Rubber Co. In 1894, when Duryea was building his third car, he placed his first order for pneumatic tires with the Hartford Rubber Works, at Hartford, Conn., which more than 30 years ago became part of the United States Rubber Co. The tires, delivered in August of that year, were single tubes, two inches in diameter. With his first set of pneumatic tires, Duryea won America's first auto race of 50 miles from Chicago to Evanston and return, on Thanksgiving day, 1895.

THINGS ARE GETTING SO crowded in the sky that Col. Arthur C. Goebel, famous for his 1927 non-stop flight to the Hawaiian Islands, has installed a warning signal on his Phillips 66 skywriting plane. This signal, a cross between a fog horn and a whistle—makes a noise much like a banshee. Col. Goebel uses up a lot of space in writing Phillips 66—since the half-mile high letters are spaced more than a mile apart—in fact, the plane pretty well covers a 20-square-mile area before the writing is completed, so the Colonel intends to sound his "A" every time he begins his handwriting in the sky to give fair warning to all nearby aircraft. Goebel has been skywriting wherever weather permits for the last five years and figures he has put enough skywriting smoke in the 66's alone to draw a smoke line from New York to Paris.

OBJECTION TO DISTILLERY SALE ON PENDERGAST BID

Lienholders Point Out Price Would Not Cover Mortgage and Their Claims, Too.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 19.—Attorneys representing lien holders filed objection today to sale of the Independent Distillers of Kentucky, at Bardstown, on a high bid of $122,500 made by the T. J. Pendergast Wholesale Liquor Co., Kansas City. The bid, made Nov. 10, represented offers of $35,000 for real estate and $87,500 for other assets.

The objection, filed with Referee Hite H. Huffaker, asked for the withholding of sale confirmation on the ground a $30,000 mortgage lies against the real estate, which would not leave enough to cover $12,000 in liens. Appraisal of $123,131 for the real estate and $92,454 for other assets was cited.

$15,500,000 SUITS FILED BY GASIFIER CO.

White Motor Co. and Ford Defendants in Patent Infringement Actions.

The Gasifier Manufacturing Co., which formerly manufactured a device at Clayton to reduce gasoline consumption of automobiles, filed suit against two major automobile companies yesterday asking damages totaling $15,500,000 for alleged patent infringement.

One suit, filed in United States District Court here, for $3,000,000, was against the White Motor Co., maker of trucks. The other was filed in Dallas, Tex., asking damages of $12,500,000 against the Ford Motor Co.

The petitions allege the two companies have been infringing on the patent for six years. They state the Ford company has used approximately 12,500,000 of the devices and the White company has used about 3,000,000. Royalty of $1 is asked for each one used.

Two similar suits now pending were filed here by the company last Sept. 2. They were for $10,000,000, against the General Motors Corporation, and for $6,000,000, against the International Harvester Co.

Maurice O. Smith, of Dallas, Tex., inventor of the "gasifier," is now president of the company. The other officers and major share holders are St. Louis men.

Engagement Announced at Informal Family Dinner —Church Wedding Soon After Easter.

THE engagement of Miss Ann Elizabeth Shapleigh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blasdel Shapleigh, 3 Southmoor, and Hugh Adair Logan, was told to members of the immediate families at an informal dinner last night. Mr. Logan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bryan Logan, 7525 Westmoreland drive.

The wedding will take place in April, shortly after Easter, at the First Congregational Church, with a large bridal party in attendance. A reception will be held afterward at Mr. and Mrs. Shapleigh's new home, now in the process of being built on Babler lane off Litzsinger road just west of Warson road. Miss Shapleigh is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Schofield of Pasadena, Cal., and of the late Dr. and Mrs. John Blasdel Shapleigh. A graduate of Mary Institute, class of 1934, she attended Mount Vernon Junior College in Washington for a year. She has traveled extensively. Accompanied by a group of friends she spent the summer of 1935 in Europe with Mrs. Atwell T. Lincoln, and last winter toured Egypt, Greece and the Holy Land. In the fall of 1935 Miss Shapleigh served as a special maid of honor to the Queen of Love and Beauty at the Veiled Prophet Ball, and made her debut at a reception at her parents' home.

His mother is the former Miss Lucille Fullerton, daughter of Mrs. Baxter P. Fullerton, who makes her home with the Logans. Her father, the late Rev. Baxter P. Fullerton, was former moderator of the General Assembly of the Presyterian Church. The prospective bridegroom's paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Logan, formerly of Kansas City, who recently celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Many Parties on Social Calendar For Debutantes

ONE of the largest of the week-end parties for debutantes was a combination cocktail and dinner given last night in honor of Miss Becky Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erastus Wells. Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. Terry were host and hostess at the dinner, given at the weekly dinner dance at the St. Louis Country Club, and preceding it their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David R. Calhoun, entertained at cocktails at their home on Spoede road.

In addition to Miss Wells, the following debutantes, with their escorts, were present: Miss Martha Bixby, Miss Laura Hale Rand, Miss Mary Jane Allen, Miss Theoline Bostwick, Miss Margaret Adreon, Miss Lida Lee Christy, Miss Caroline Gatch, Miss Frances Howell Lewis, Miss Betsy Jones and Miss Warrene Hobbs. Seated at a smaller table at the Country Club, with the host and hostess, were Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw T. Terry, Mr. Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton H. McMillan and Mr. and Mrs. Calhoun. Mrs. Whitelaw Terry and Mrs. McMillan are sisters of the debutante.

Another cocktail party yesterday afternoon was given by Mr. and Mrs. Benedict Farrar, 8 Edgewood road, in honor of Miss Agnes Potter Galt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Galt. Besides debutantes and their escorts, the host and hostess entertained Mr. and Mrs. Galt and Mr. and Mrs. John Allan Love, uncle and aunt of the honoree.

Close to 100 members of the debutante set called at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Maurice J. Lonsway, 3 Ridgetop drive, for a mixed tea yesterday afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock in honor of Miss Florence Tierney, and Miss Cecilia Clare Curran. Yellow and white chrysanthemums decorated the table in the dining room and more of the blossoms were used in the living room.

Assisting the host and hostess were the parents of Miss Curran, Mr. and Mrs. Con P. Curran Jr., and Mrs. John Leo Tierney, mother of the other honor guest.

Mrs. Charles Edward Potter and her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Franklin Trigg, entertained at luncheon yesterday at the St. Louis Woman's Club for Miss Suzanne Weidle, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Alvin Weidle.

The table, set in the private dining room, was decorated with coral-colored roses and snapdragon and white pompons. Coral candles in silver candelabra lighted the table.

Mitchell-Morrison Wedding in College Chapel

MISS LORRAINE MORRISON and Thomas Joseph Mitchell were married yesterday morning in the students' chapel of St. Louis University by the Rev. Bakewell Morrison, S. J., uncle of the bride, and the university's Dean of Religion. The wedding party was composed of Miss Betty Warner, maid of honor; Richard Fitzgerald, best man, and five ushers—Joseph, William and Delaney Mitchell, the bridegroom's brothers, and William K. Morrison III and George Hirt Morrison, the bride's brothers.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kenderdine Morrison Jr., wore a costume suit of teal blue wool with a short fur jacket, and vintage wine red accessories—suede hat, gloves and slippers. She wore a corsage of lilies of the valley and carried a prayer book used by the bridegroom's mother at her wedding. Miss Warner was in old rose wool with deep wine accessories, and a corsage of gardenias.

After the wedding a family breakfast was served at the Morrison home, 6024 McPherson avenue. White flowers decorated the house and the candlelit dining room table from which the wed-

Dorothy Waltke And E. J. Seidel Are Engaged

Parents of Bride-Elect Announce Betrothal Cocktail Party at Their Home for 100 Guests.

ABOUT 100 friends invited to Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Waltke's home, 6224 Forsythe boulevard, for cocktails after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon were told of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Jane, and Eugene J. Seidel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Seidel, 6040 West Cabanne place.

Guests were received before the living room mantel, which was banked with white chrysanthemums. An elaborate arrangement of white blossoms decorated the dining room table. A large crystal epergne stood in an oblong tray filled with lilies of the valley. More of the lilies were combined with white roses for the second tier of the vase and roses sprayed from the top in profusion. Flowers spilled from crystal cornucopias at either side of the centerpiece, and a garland of roses further ornamented the board.

Off the dining room a bar was arranged in the breakfast room, the entire wall of which was hidden by smilax.

After Miss Waltke's graduation from Mary Institute she spent a year in Millbrook, N. Y., at the Bennett School. Two seasons ago she was maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet Ball and made an informal debut. She has traveled extensively abroad.

Mr. Seidel attended John Burroughs School before going to Western Military Academy, from which he was graduated. He later studied at St. Louis University.

No date has been set for the wedding.

New Yorkers Come Here to Live

MRS. W. STUART SYMINGTON III will arrive soon from New York to join her husband in St. Louis where they will make their home. Mr. Symington has recently been named general manager of the Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co., and has been in St. Louis several weeks, staying at the Park Plaza.

Eve Symington, as she was known professionally from 1934 when she began her career of night club singing at Place Piquale in New York, until this fall when she left the Sert Room of the Waldorf Astoria, visited in St. Louis last week. On her first trip to her new home she was entertained at several small parties. Last Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. David R. Calhoun, entertained at cocktails for Mr. and Mrs. Symington, and later at a small supper at Deer Creek Club. Tuesday, Mrs. Chester E. Wright, 30 Portland place, invited a few friends for luncheon at Bridlespur Hunt Club in Mrs. Symington's honor.

She turned to singing in the torch manner in 1934. Because she is the daughter of former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, her appearance attracted attention but after this novelty wore off the crowds returned to hear her songs. Mrs. Symington, the mother of two young sons who are at school in the East, decided to end her career this fall. During her night club appearances, columnists remarked on Mr. Symington's nightly presence and his enthusiastic applause.

Mrs. Symington is a granddaughter of John Hay, Secretary of State under President Theodore Roosevelt; a niece of Mrs. Payne Whitney and a cousin of Jock Whitney, Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson and Mrs. Robert E. Lee Taylor. Mr. Symington, Yale graduate and club man, is a member of an old Baltimore family. President Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge attended their wedding in 1924 and the reception afterward.

Miss Blanche Renard Engaged to New Yorker

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the engagement of Miss Blanche Renard, a former St. Louisan, and Leo Greenwald of New York. The wedding will probably take place in January.

The prospective bride, a member of a well known St. Louis family, is the sister of Mrs. Henry V. Putzel, 4463 Westminster place, and Wallace Renard, 6 Forest Ridge. She is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis Renard. For the last two years Miss Renard has lived in New York, where she is a member of the research department of the National Council of the Jewish Federation and Welfare Fund. Her fiance formerly lived in Milwaukee, Wis. Miss Renard will return to St. Louis to spend the Christmas holidays with her family.

News and Views Of St. Louisans In New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.

TRUST New York to think up ways of outsmarting its false spring. With Christmas approaching—warm breezes have betrayed shrubs and trees into rebudding in the Park and Coney Island still boasts sun bathers.

The long arm of showmanship has come to the rescue. Lord & Taylor stopped traffic on Fifth avenue with windows featuring winter at its worst, and draped in snow and ice. There's a bit of fatalism in the mere two words of the signs so prominently displayed—"It's Coming!" Added to this, noise machines, stationed overhead, grind out sounds of a howling and terrific blizzard. Crowds shiver as they take their turn peering and peeping through the clear glass left in the center of the frost-covered windows, to enjoy the raging snowstorms going on within.

But for all the freaks of weather, the season marches on. The National Horse Show, with all its lingo of hocks and gaits and withers, had its own way at the Madison Square Garden last week, and along with the necessary equine accessories, brought out a blue-riboned exhibit of mink, ermine, sables and silver foxes. Mr. and Mrs. August A. Busch Jr. of St. Louis were guests of Sam Steiner in his box.

The Metropolitan Opera opens the season this year with Verdi's "Otello" and the S. R. O. sign has been posted all week for opening night—which rates as a gala evening even for those who are tone deaf or musically illiterate.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilson Gray are among the St. Louisians who are interested in musical affairs in New York. They have regular seats for the Metropolitan Opera, and will be in the audience on the opening night. Mr. and Mrs. Gray moved to New York several years ago. Mrs. Gray was formerly Miss Frances Buffum of Louisiana, Mo.

Mrs. Gray, when she lived in St. Louis, was much interested in the St. Louis Symphony, and was one of those instrumental in starting the Children's Concerts, back in the days when schools had to be more or less sold on the idea. Nowadays, Mrs. Gray is interested in the Metropolitan Opera Guild in New York. This organization stimulates interest in the opera by offering its members such privileges as passes to rehearsals, discounts on tickets and supplies interesting data as to current opera activities.

Last Monday, Mrs. Artemus Gates, assisted by Mrs. Gray, entertained a group of Guild members at a musical at her home in East 74th street. The soloist was Miss Muriel Dickson, one of the youngest and newest Metropolitan sopranos. Mrs. John de Witt Peltz spoke of the Opera Guild's "Listening Memberships," for out-of-town opera lovers, who get their Metropolitan over the radio. For these members, the Guild has special pamphlets as to current productions. On Tuesday, Mrs. Gray will entertain the Opera Guild at a tea in her apartment in East 86th street, in the Gracie Square district of New York, overlooking the East River. Mrs. Gray and her children were still occupying the Gray summer home at Woods Hole, Mass., Sept. 21, when the New England hurricane caused so much damage in that section of Cape Cod and Buzzard's Bay. Arriving home from a visit to a friend, and pausing on high ground, Mrs. Gray and her children were just in time to see the Atlantic Ocean advance up the lawn in front of their house and rise to the level of the second floor from which members of the household had to be rescued by boat.

A foreigner, coming into town just before one of the big Saturday football games, might be led to believe, that the Pennsylvania and Grand Central Stations were practice field for the home grounds. With hi-there spirit spilling all over the place, tremendous crowds rush from subways and taxis—all hurrying helter skelter to get to the platforms and to get a toe-hold on the last train to Princeton or New Haven.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Evans of Pittsburgh, came to New York last week-end and attended the Yale-Princeton game at Princeton. Mrs. Evans was formerly Miss Betty Caulk of St. Louis. Her mother, Mrs. John R. Caulk, came from St. Louis to join Mr. and Mrs. Evans at the Hotel Weglin. Mr. and Mrs. Evans returned to Pittsburgh on Monday and Mrs. Caulk went on to Baltimore to spend some time with relatives there.

Samuel C. Davis of St. Louis attended the Yale-Harvard game in New Haven Saturday. He is in New York this week with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Weaver Jr.

Mrs. Henry Dallas Thompson, who has been spending some time in St. Louis with her sister, Mrs. Albert T. Perkins and her niece, Mrs. Lloyd T. Stark, is now in Princeton, N. J., her former home, and is a guest at the Princeton Inn.

Mrs. Frederick Bliss III, the former Miss Helen Lipp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lipp, 74 Arundel place, St. Louis, and a bride of last summer, has lived in New York for almost three years now and is studying for a career on the operatic stage. She studies voice under Mme. Maria Gay, one of the famous 'Carmens' of the Metropolitan and now teacher of Bruna Castagna and John Gurney. Mrs. Bliss, beside two singing lessons a week and three hours daily practice, is studying opera technique with Dr. Lert, late of La Scala Theater, Milan.

Mrs. Bliss' apartment in the West Seventies, is in the modern manner, with furnishings in white and gray, and concert grand piano dominating the scene.

Out-of-town guests included the bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Louis E. Kloeber, and Mr. Kloeber, who drove here from Miami, Fla., and are guests of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Versnel of Webster Groves, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Versnel and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clayton of Hannibal, Mo.

After a brief trip to Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell will return to St. Louis for Thanksgiving. They will live in Blytheville, Ark. The bride is a graduate of the Academy of the Sacred Heart and holds several swimming championships. Her husband, the son of Mrs. Joseph Mitchell, 7520 Buckingham drive, was a member of the varsity football squad when he attended St. Louis University and is a member of Alpha Delta Gamma fraternity.

Last fall, the juniors gave an advertising party, with the clubhouse walls covered with advertisements which the guests matched in their costumes.

Thus a Duchess of Windsor fashion note should be interesting. A friend of ours observed in Paris that the Duchess of Windsor always wears gloves. It was noted in a box at the theater that while the guests of the Duke and herself were without gloves, the Duchess kept hers on during the whole performance. The Duchess' gloves match her costumes, according to fashion observers, as to color and material whenever possible. To English women there is no departure from the tradition that in Great Britain women never appear in public without gloves.

Speaking of gloves, brings up the question of hands, recalled by the fact that recently we noticed a marble cast of the hands of Mrs. John R. McLean in one of the Friendship drawing rooms. Mrs. McLean in her lifetime had been noted for the beauty of her hands, and had a sculptor copy them in marble.

Other expressive hands in Washington are those of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mrs. Edward Finkensteadt, sister of Mrs. Harold Walker and Mrs. Armistead Peter III.

Probably the most adept of Washington women tapestry weavers and makers of petit point as well as of knit articles is Mrs. Newbold Noyes. While her children were little she made practically all of their clothes. Now she has the ambition to make tapestry covers for her chairs.

An accomplished needlewoman is coming to Washington in Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, wife of the new Governor of Massachusetts, when she visits friends here. Governor-elect Saltonstall is related to Mrs. Nicholas Longworth through her mother's family, the Lees of Boston.

Friends of the Charles Carrolls of Howard County, Maryland, are pleased with re-election to the Maryland Legislature of Charles Carroll Jr., great-great-grandson of the Charles Carroll of Carrollton who signed the Declaration of Independence. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll Jr. frequently visit Washington.

Provisional Junior League Members Taking Volunteer Training Course

THE 30 recently chosen provisional members of the Junior League have begun an introductory course in volunteer service. The satisfactory completion of the course, plus a shorter specialized course in January, and an acceptable amount of volunteer welfare work, will qualify the provisionals for active membership in the league.

The course is directed by Miss Leah Feder, associate professor of the George Warren Brown Department of Social Work at Washington University. Miss Feder gives some of the lectures herself, and these are supplemented by field trips to local agencies.

The first lecture was given in league headquarters Nov. 10. Monday the provisionals were taken to the Turner School, of which Everett H. Colbert is principal, to hear a talk by Mrs. Leona Evans, district superintendent of the Provident Association. Family Service was discussed by Miss Ruth George, case supervisor of the Provident Association, Wednesday in the association's district office. Thursday morning John K. Rowland, Secretary Administrator of the St. Louis City Social Security Commission, spoke of public relief and social security.

This week's program will begin tomorrow morning with a lecture by Miss Feder in the George Warren Brown building on "The Youthful Offender." In the afternoon at 2:15 o'clock, a field trip will be made to Bellefontaine Farms. Tuesday morning Miss Lottie Schlatter of the Board of Children's Guardians, will discuss "The Case of a Particular Child."

Because of the Thanksgiving holidays, the subsequent lecture will be held on Tuesday morning, Nov. 29, in the Nurse's Home of the St. Louis County Hospital, where Dr. Theodore R. Meyer, director of the County Health Department, will speak on Essentials of a Public Health program. A lecture in the league club rooms, the following day on "The Social Worker in the Hospital" by Miss Mary K. Taylor, director of Social Service in the Washington University Clinics and Allied Hospitals, will be followed Dec. 1 by a visit to Holy Cross House of which the Rev. William H. Kirk is director. There Miss Enid Cole of the County Welfare Association will speak.

Dr. Paul E. Kubitschek, director of the Child Guidance Clinic, will speak Monday morning, Dec. 5, in the George Warren Brown School building on "What Makes People What They Are." There will be a field trip to the Occupational Therapy Workshop that afternoon.

Miss Feder will speak on "Social Planning in the Community" Wednesday morning, Dec. 7, in the George Warren Brown building, and the next morning in the clubrooms, she and Mrs. Frances Goodall, placement secretary, Department of Volunteer Service of the St. Louis Social Planning Council, will talk on "Social Welfare and the Volunteer." Miss Feder will summarize the course Monday morning, Dec. 12, and the examination will be held the following day.

Tomorrow's speaker on the Monday morning league lecture series will be Gordon B. Enders, explorer of Tibet and co-author with Edward B. Anthony of "Nowhere Else in the World." Enders is foreign adviser to the Grand Lama of Tibet, and is the only foreigner to hold a cabinet post there with the rank and title of the Tibetan nobility.

CARIBBEAN CRUISES ATTRACT TRAVELERS

Advance Bookings Said to Indicate Upward Business Trend.

The increasing number of advance bookings for winter cruises is looked upon by steamship officials as an indication of the upward trend in busines in this country. Also, the fact that many tourists are turning to the West Indies and Carribean for travel is said to be induced by internal conditions in these countries. Governments of these countries are expending large amounts of money to improve roads, hotels and other facilities which are important to tourist trade.

Panama and the Great Canal, on the program of the United Fruit Line cruises, has been called the "Crossroads of the World." This surname has been given to this exotic land by tourists who have mingled with its teeming hords of intermingled population. Sauntering through the crooked, cobbled streets of Panama City, one sees faces upon which has been engraved the path of world history and intrigue. Here a Russian; there a Mohammedan; over there a chattering group of native peons, virtually a never-eending stream of nationalities, each with his own peculiar and different mannerisms.

Many Shops and Bazaars.

As is expected, where there are so many different nationalities, there are shops and bazaars which offer for sale the handiwork of each nation. Of great interest to tourists are the bazaars, where hand-carved jade jewelry, hand-loomed rugs and blankets, and pottery of ancient Mayan design are for sale and barter at incredibly low prices. To the traveler who is interested in acquiring pieces representative of many countries, Panama City offers the most complete market of the Western Hemisphere. Oriental perfumes, hand-worked jewelry, hand-woven cloths, and many other articles of interest are displayed in the quaint shops of cosmopolitan Panama City and Colon.

SEMI-WEEKLY BERMUDA SAILINGS MAINTAINED

A moving picture depicting high lights of Bermuda was exhibited here to independent travel agents on Monday evening. The picture was under the supervision of William S. Moody of Chicago, passenger agent for the Furness-Bermuda Line.

Semi-weekly sailings between Bermuda and New York are maintained throughout the year. No passports are required of Americans visiting this group of islands, said to be England's oldest self-governing colony. Of the 30,000 inhabitants, about one-half are white, mostly of English stock and tracing their ancestry back to the earliest settlers. Transportation is limited to horse-drawn vehicles and bicycles. The Government aquarium displays 416 species of tropical fish, some brilliantly colored, others of curious shapes.

MAIDEN VOYAGE SCHEDULED

Mauritania to Sail From Liverpool June 17.

Announcement of the maiden voyage of the new "Mauretania" to New York from Liverpool on June 17, 1939, has recently been made by officials of the Cunard Line. A few weeks prior to this voyage, the ship will make its trial trip, probably in the Irish Sea, where the "Queen Mary" tried out two years ago.

The "Mauretania," an express ship and said to be the largest liner ever built in England, will have 10 decks and will accommodate approximately 1500 passengers. The advent of air-conditioning dispenses with the old-fashioned deck ventilators and provides more deck space.

Spanish Forts.

Five old Spanish forts remain in Puerto Rico, four of them in good condition. The massive stone wall which formerly surrounded the city also still stands on two sides, including the famous gate of San Juan, through which Ponce de Leon, the island's first governor, entered the city.

Columbus Monument.

Aguadilla on the west coast of Puerto Rico is the only spot under the American flag where Christopher Columbus ever set foot. A monument to the famous explorer has been erected there.

Trout Fishing.

Rainbow trout, planted in Puerto Rican mountain streams, are growing at the rate of 12 inches a year. It is expected that the first fishing permits will be issued in 1939.

AROUND-THE-WORLD CRUISE

Cruises of long or short duration to many exotic ports are holding theattention of the travel-minded at this season of the year. Holiday cruises between Christmas and New Year touching on ports in Southern waters have been scheduled by many steamship lines.

What is said to be the only around-the-world cruise of the season has been scheduled for the Cunard White Star liner "Franconia" which sails from New York on Jan. 5. Five continents will be visited and the liner will also stop at one of the ports which figured in the fate of the luckless captain of the "Bounty." In connection with this cruise, Clifford R. Sabrey, travel expert from the New York office spent a day in the St. Louis office for the purpose of giving additional information to those contemplating the cruise.

Early morning departure of seven well-equipped hunters. They are headed into a reservoir artificially created for sportsmen.

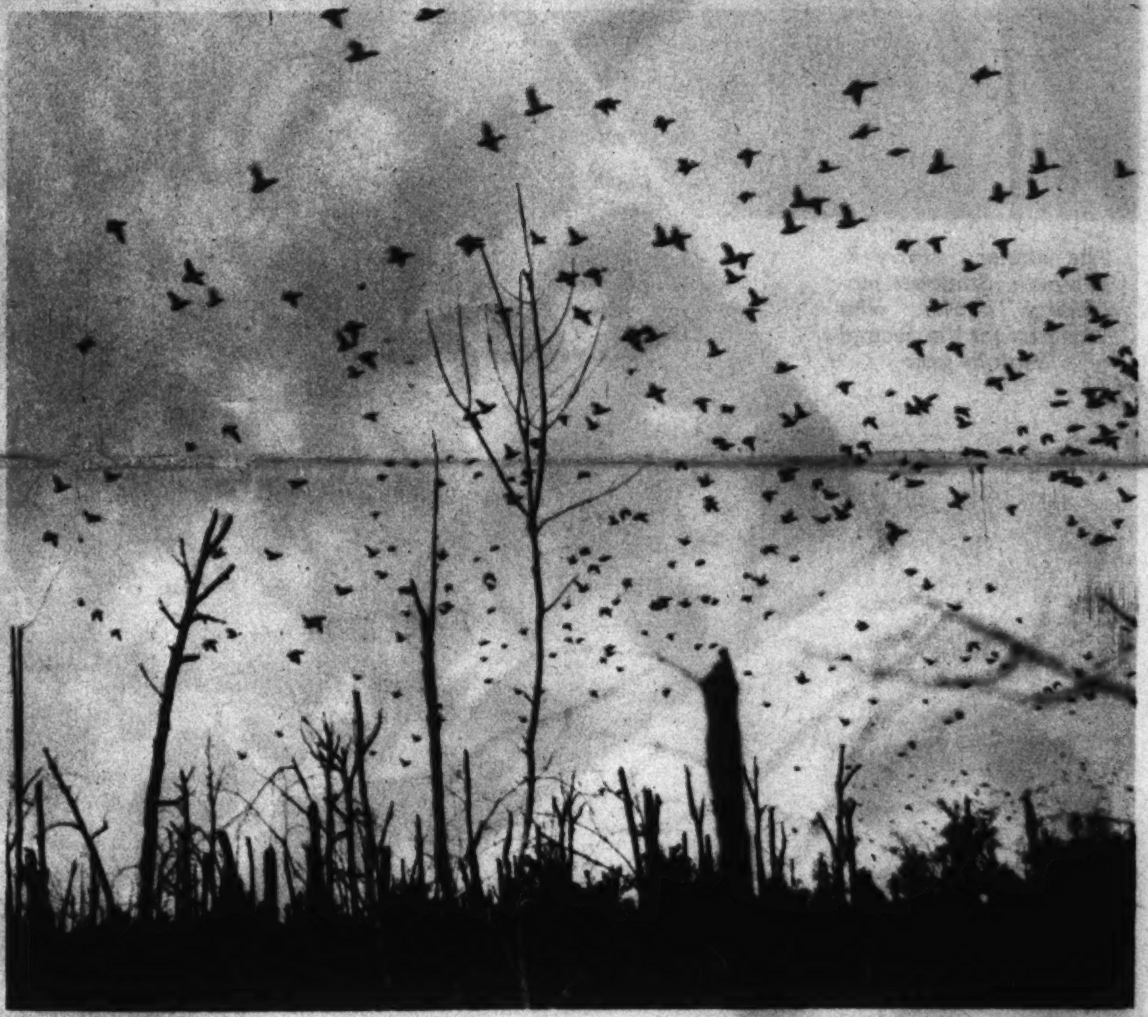
Open Season for Ducks

SPORTSMEN in the St. Louis area came into more territory Wednesday when open season on ducks was officially declared in Arkansas. A 47-day legal period of duck hunting began October 15 in Missouri and Illinois. The Arkansas duck season was ushered in as in previous years with a duck calling contest at Stuttgart, photographs of which are on the next page.

After the contest, expectant hunters indulged in reminiscences of other seasons, then a few hours' sleep, and before dawn hurried to marsh and river bank where they concealed themselves in blinds or sought natural protection of surviving foliage. Hunters applied themselves to practical application of duck calling theories expressed at the contest, each hoping to kill his legal limit of 10 birds.



Flocks darkening the early morning sky. Thrilling spectacle for hunters with itching trigger fingers.

Tournament of the Duck Callers

THE night before the opening of the duck season in Arkansas, for the last three years, a duck calling contest has been held at Stuttgart, sponsored by the local American Legion post. The winner is proclaimed "national" champion, although most of the contestants are from the State. Last Monday night, the contest, with 30 entrants, was witnessed by 2500 persons, and was broadcast by radio. All but two contestants used callers made of wood and reeds. Several different types of quacks were achieved by varied methods of pursing the lips.

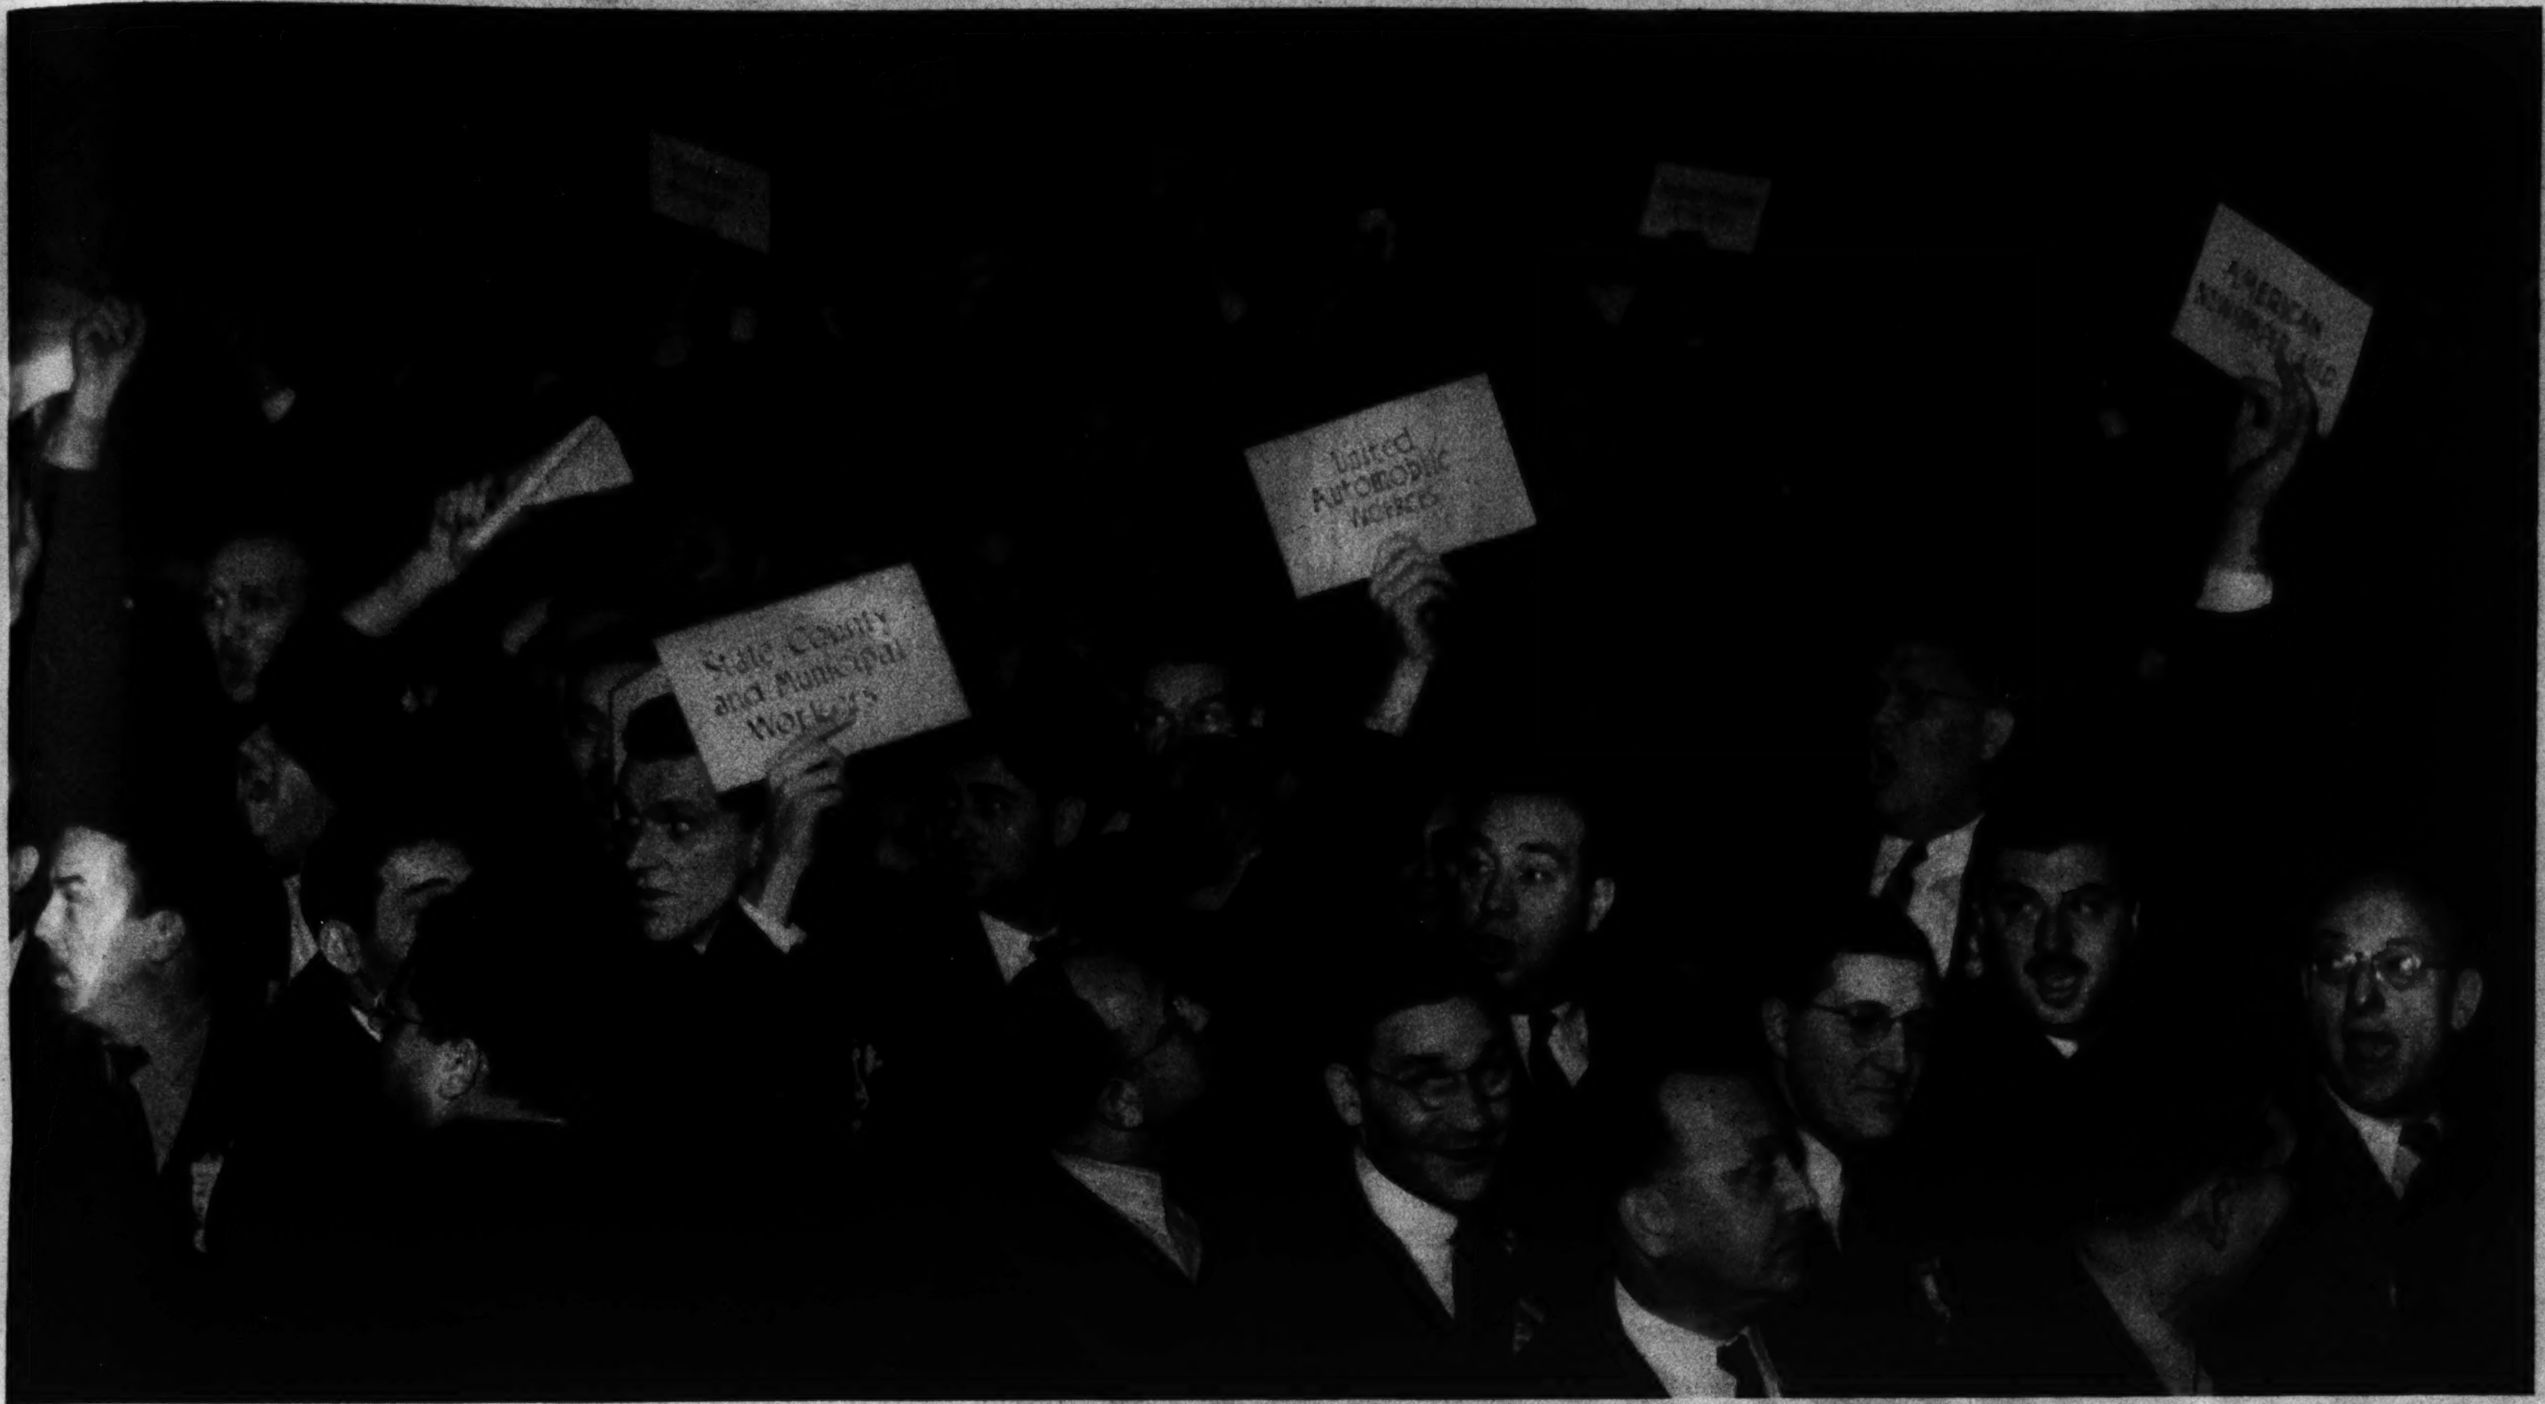
Peace but No Compromise, Says CIO



The 500 delegates to the C I O convention demonstrating for John L. Lewis after the reading of the new constitution for a permanent organization.

One of the few photographs ever taken for publication of Kathryn Lewis, daughter of John L. Lewis. She is his executive assistant, and one of 12 delegates chosen by President Roosevelt to represent the United States at the coming conference of the American republics in Lima, Peru. She dodges publicity.

Richard Clifford, old coal miner, who came to seek Lewis' aid for an old-age pension, and fell asleep while waiting.

THE C I O, in the words of its leader, John L. Lewis, crossed the Rubicon last week in its first constitutional convention, held at Pittsburgh. The die of permanent organization was cast. The Committee for Industrial Organization, which as the rebellious outcast of the American Federation of Labor had caused the greatest labor upheaval in the history of this country, became the Congress of Industrial Organization, a permanent body of 41 unions, claiming 3,800,000 members and dominance in American labor. In a committee report on peace negotiations with the A. F. of L. the C I O sounded a battle cry of "no compromise." It accepted "the goal of unity in the labor movement," but insisted on recognition of its fundamental purpose of organizing workers into powerful industrial unions.

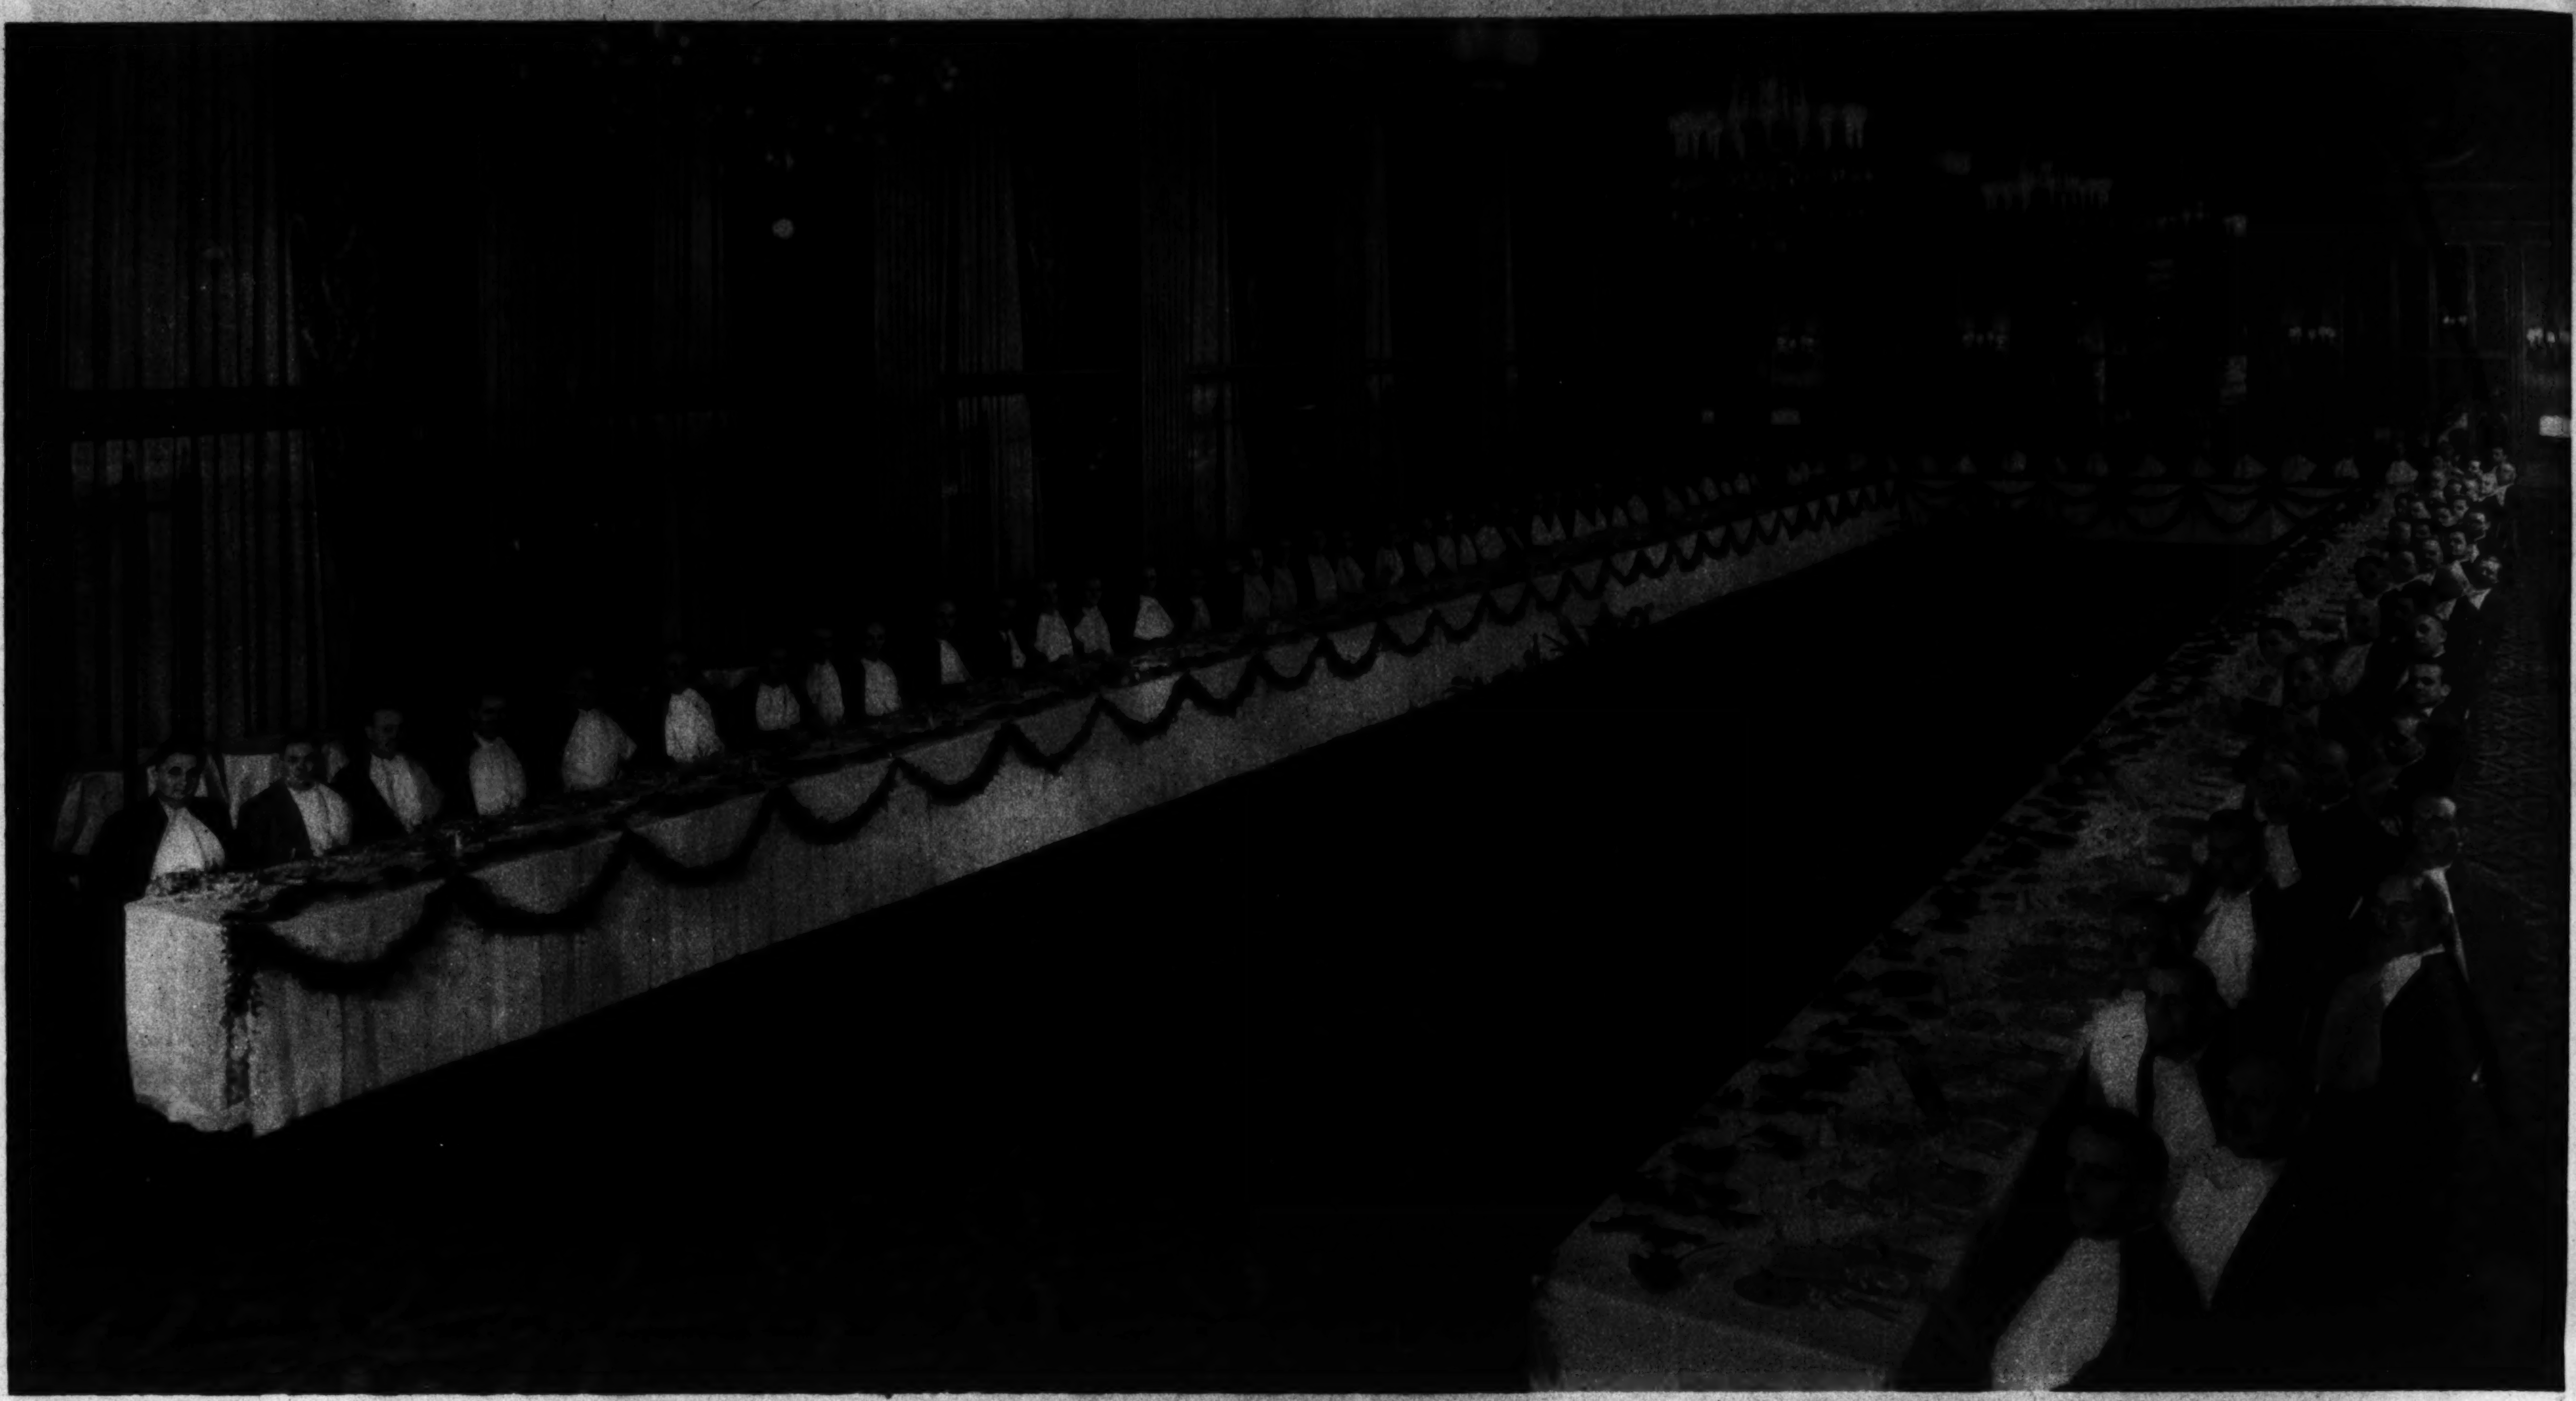
Diners in Bibs Do Honor to the King of Chefs



FAR from committing social sacrilege, these diners with their napkins tucked in their collars were following a strict rule of their society, Les Amis d'Escoffier (Friends of Escoffier), at the second annual dinner of the St. Louis branch of the organization at Hotel Statler last Monday.

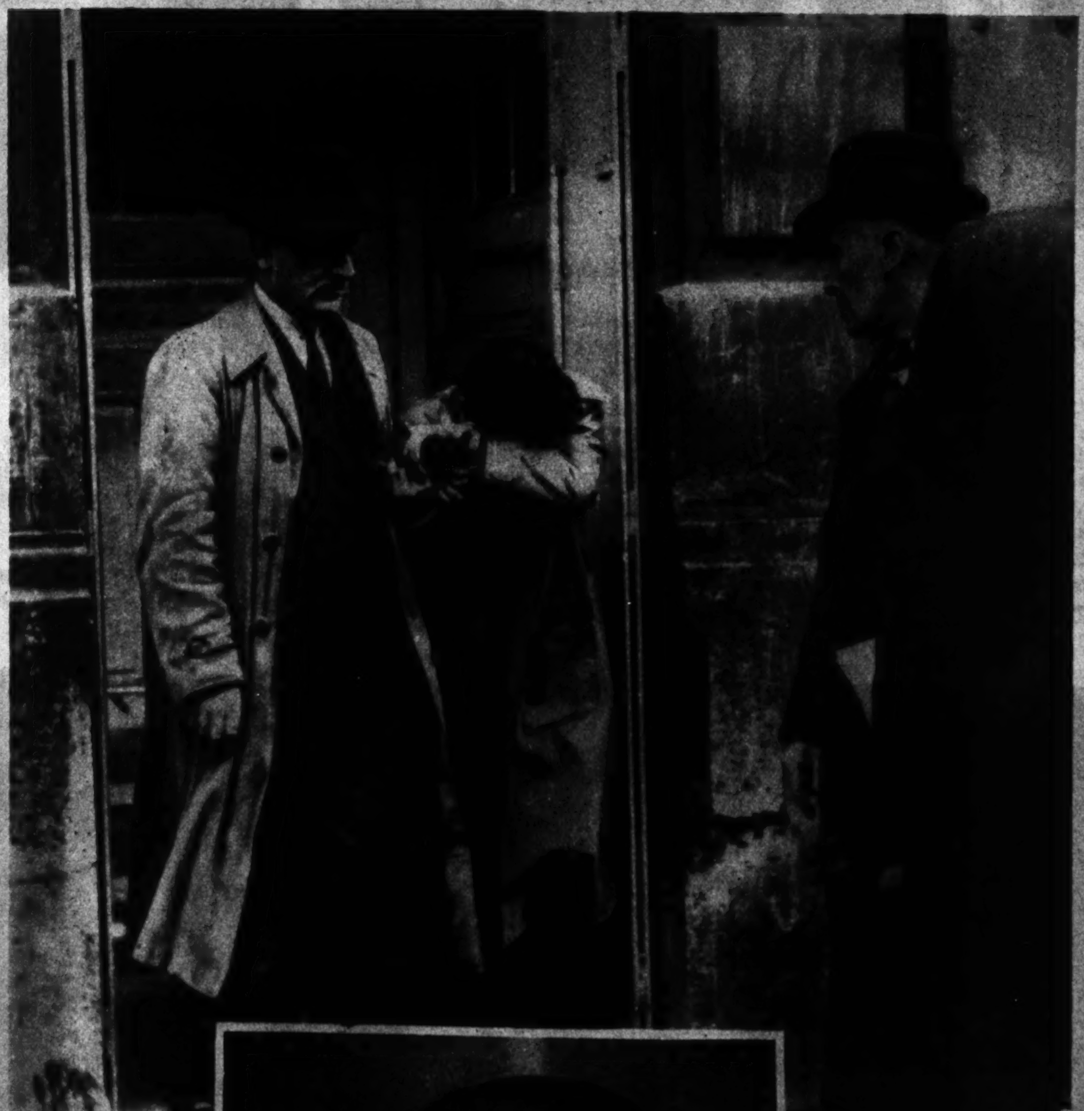
The society was organized in memory of Auguste Escoffier, "king of chefs and chef of kings" (the kings: Napoleon III, Edward VII, Wilhelm II), who died in 1935. Its chief purpose is to carry on a tradition of fine food and fine wine. And its banquet rules are designed to make the enjoyment of food and wine complete. There is no smoking until coffee is served, because smoking dulls the palate. The banquets are stag affairs because the presence of ladies might tend to make it an event of social rather than gastronomical importance. Clothes are supposed to be informal for comfort, although a few guests violated the rule Monday and wore dinner clothes. No controversial subject may be brought up in conversation—bad for the digestion. Witty anecdotes, banter, and talk of food and drink are called for.

About 60 of the 94 members of the local branch are chefs, maitres d'hotel and hotel managers; the rest are gourmets. The banquet lasted three hours. It consisted of hors d'oeuvres with vermouth, Dubonnet and sherry; consomme Mikado with sherry; lobster thermidor and souffle potatoes with sauterne; a filet of beef, Chateaubriand sauce with pommard; pate de foie gras in aspic, salad, and cheese rolls with champagne; multi-colored ice cream and strawberries; cafe brule—coffee in which brandy has been set afire—and liqueurs.

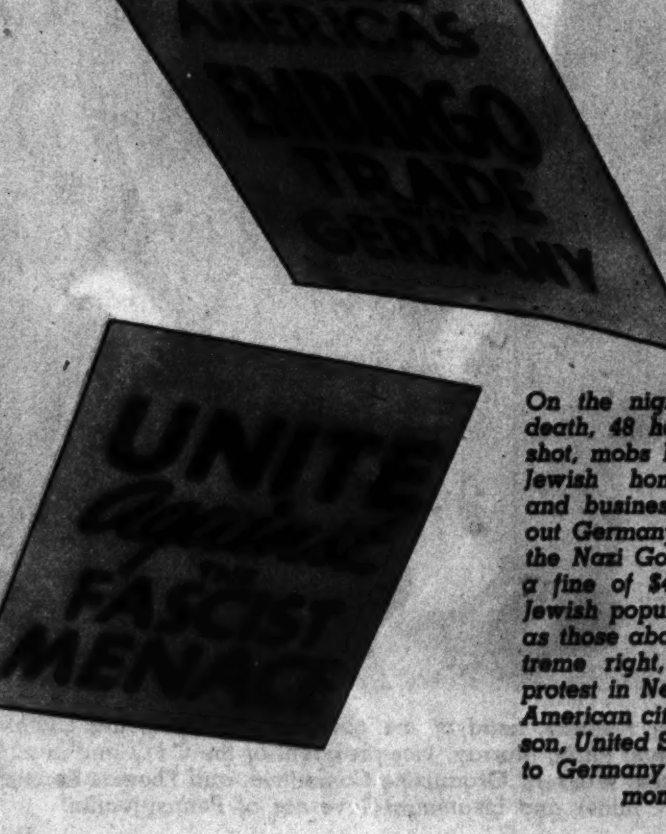
Another Shot Heard Round the World

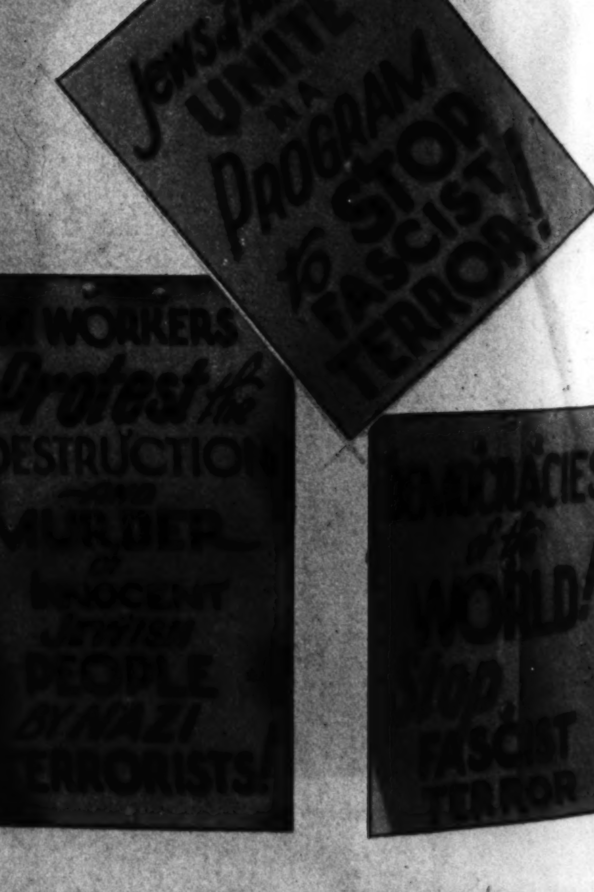
A brooding, desperate 17-year-old Polish Jew from Hanover, Germany, walked into the German Embassy at Paris on the morning of November 7 and fatally wounded Ernst Vom Rath (above), the third secretary, with two pistol shots. Attaches subdued the boy and called police.

Questioned again and again after the shooting, Grynszpan (above), said the uncontrollable despair that caused him to shoot the German Embassy secretary was the result of a Nazi order for Grynszpan's parents to leave Germany.



Herschel Grynszpan, homeless youth whose permit to stay in France had expired several weeks before he shot Vom Rath, being led from a police station for questioning.





On the night of Vom Rath's death, 48 hours after he was shot, mobs burned and looted Jewish homes, synagogues, and business houses throughout Germany. The next day the Nazi Government imposed a fine of $400,000,000 on the Jewish populace. Signs such as those above, at left and extreme right, were carried in protest in New York and other American cities. Hugh R. Wilson, United States Ambassador to Germany (right), was summoned home.

The First American Citizen to Be Beatified

Blessed Frances Xavier Cabrini

Beatified Mother Cabrini. Center, a Madonna-like portrait showing her at 30, when she founded Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart; left, shortly before death; right, official portrait.

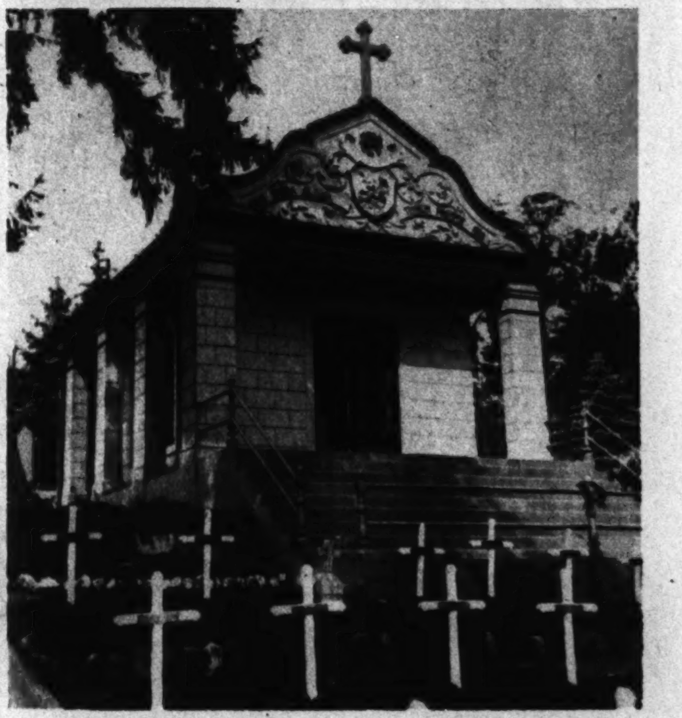
WITH the beatification last Sunday of Mother Frances Xavier Cabrini, the first American citizen ever to have been so honored by the Roman Catholic Church, some of her former associates and students of her life work are freely predicting that she will be canonized within a few years, thus becoming the first sainted American citizen. Italian born, Mother Cabrini came to this country in 1889 with five nuns, dedicated to religious effort among her countrymen in America. Naturalized, here she remained until death in 1917 at Chicago in a hospital she had founded. From the little band of nuns she led to these shores has grown the Order of the Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart of Jesus. Her beatification—the act of proclaiming her "blessed," usually a step toward canonization—is directly attributable to acceptance by Church authority of two miracles. These, supported at formal inquiries by first-hand testimony, concern the recovery of two persons from ailments deemed medically incurable. She died at 67, after only 28 years in the United States. But she had founded 67 institutions, excluding scores built on the efforts of other members of her order, now numbering more than 5000.. For canonization, two more miracles must be attributed to the now Blessed Mother Cabrini, then be accepted by the Pope, after painstaking proof.

(Acme Photos)

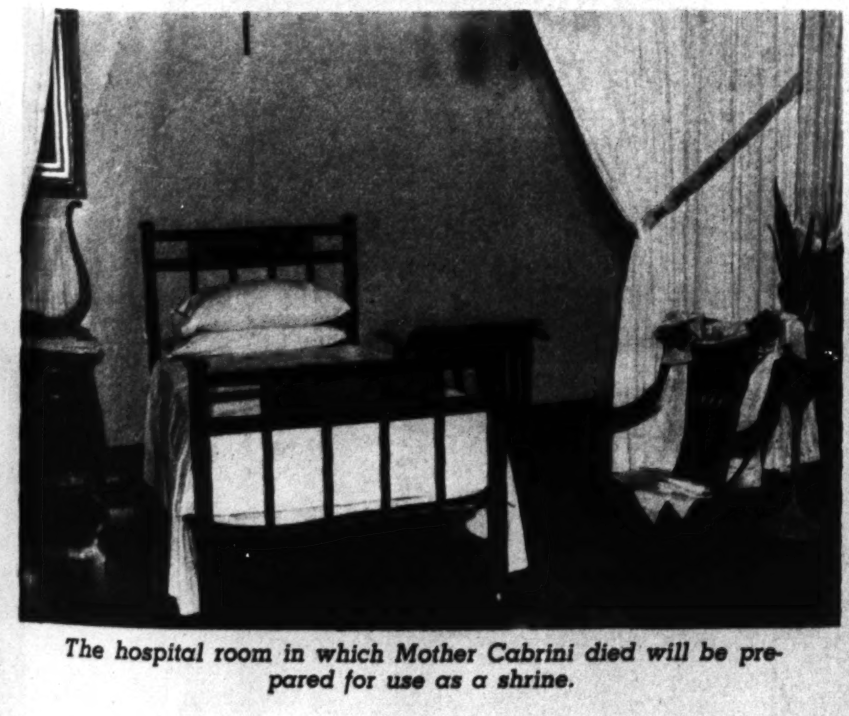
Mother Cabrini's favorite statue—the Blessed Virgin, known as Our Lady of Grace. She ordered one given to each institution fostered by her order.

Cardinal Mundelein presided at the beatification hearing and the Rev. George J. Casey (right) was one of two "devil's advocates," seeking to disprove the miracles: One, restoration of sight to a baby accidentally blinded by improper treatment at birth. A relic of Mother Cabrini's hair was placed on his forehead and recovery took place after prayer. Another, a nun restored to health after a vision of Mother Cabrini, although physicians had abandoned hope of her recovery. Both incidents were supported by medical testimony, and the boy who had been blind appeared to show his clear eyes.

Columbus Hospital, Chicago, founded by Mother Cabrini, where she resided in declining years. Here was held the first ecclesiastical hearing in the United States to determine right to beatification.



Tomb of the Blessed Mother Cabrini. Before beatification her remains were in a vault at West Park, New York. An unusual state of preservation—supporting but not essential evidence for canonization—was not apparent. Her right arm now has been removed and portions of the bone sent to institutions as "first-class" relics.



The hospital room in which Mother Cabrini died will be prepared for use as a shrine.

The Spanish War as Seen by the Children

THE drawings on this page are from a striking collection of graphic works made by Spanish children which is now being exhibited in the United States. The artists are all boys and girls between the ages of 6 and 14 and the drawings were collected in Madrid, Valencia and refugee centers in France. They are children who have lived through the civil war now going on. Many of the pictures in the traveling exhibition are contained in "They Still Draw Pictures," a book with introduction by Aldous Huxley just published by the Spanish Child Welfare Association of America. Funds from the exhibition and from the book, which sells for $1, will be distributed by the Quakers for the benefit of all children in Spain, whether of Loyalist or Rebel parentage.

There is a decidedly macabre significance to these illustrations that come from the uninhibited hearts of children growing up in a country where shriek of air raid siren and whine of shell are as normal as the lowing of a cow. Power of psychological and dramatic expression is limited by deficiency in technique but, nevertheless, the power of execution and the artistic resourcefulness are surprising to artists as well as laymen. Drawings of aerial bombardment are painfully vivid and complete—explosions, panicky stampedes for shelter, bodies of victims, mothers upon whose faces the tears run down in beadlike chains hardly distinguishable from the lines of machine gun bullets descending from the sky.

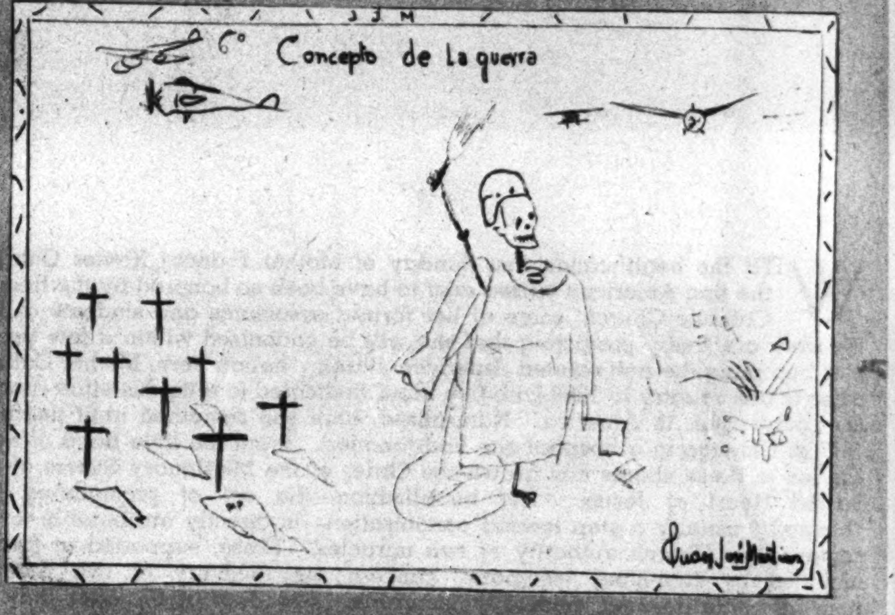
A soldier lies dead and a householder runs to save his burning chattels. Fiercely primitive in color, perspective, and particularly in human drama, this picture by 13-year-old Tomas Bosca Gomar preaches a lesson that the great Goya preached a century ago: In war, no one can win.



Death walks through the land with graves on one side, explosions on the other, and planes overhead. Juan Jose Martinez has entitled his picture "My Concept of War."

The inscription on the coffin in this illustration by Concepcion Rodriguez, 13, reads "Death of a Hero and Grief of a Mother."

Don Budge Turns Pro

Action Arabesque of Don Budge, Who Made All-Time Record in Amateur Tennis

BEFORE long, now that Don Budge has turned professional, the tennis world should have an answer to a paramount question: Can the precedent-breaking amateur champion beat the professionals, Ellsworth Vines and Fred Perry? There should be a revival of the interest that flagged when Budge made many of his tournaments rather boring by winning so easily.

A few weeks ago, with a final backhand cross-court placement, Budge defeated Gene Mako in the national championship contest at Forest Hills, New York, and became the first champion in history to win the United States, French, British and Australian titles in a single year. Just five years before, his brother, Lloyd, took Don to Tom Stow and asked the California U. coach to work on him. Stow summed up the gawky, powerful youth, by saying, "No overhead shots, no net game, serve a joke, and doesn't know how to throw the ball up properly." Two hours a day for three days a week, Stow fed him practice balls. Deciding the lanky redhead would never learn to volley, Stow concentrated on ground strokes to corners. Those have become his deadliest weapons. Within a year Budge was showing results. At 19, he held the California State and the national junior boys' championships. At 23 he may be on his way to the professional championship.

OLIVIA DE HAVILLAND

Her Real Name's De Havilland

As Miss de Havilland appeared in the part of Angela in "Anthony Adverse."

IN HOLLYWOOD, they call her Olivia de Havilland for a reason unusual in movieland—it's her real name. She's of English parentage, was born in Tokyo in 1916, came to the United States three years later—by way of Hawaii—and landed in California. In her school days at Saratoga, California, she starred in amateur dramatic productions, having an edge over her competition because her mother was a dramatic coach. A scout for talent for the movie "A Midsummer Night's Dream" saw her in a high school production of that classic, signed her up, and when Gloria Stuart was recalled to her own studio, Olivia fell right into a principal role—Hermia. Then a long term Warner Brothers contract, now stardom. She is five feet, four; hair reddish-brown; loves flowers, perfume, clothes and the color blue.

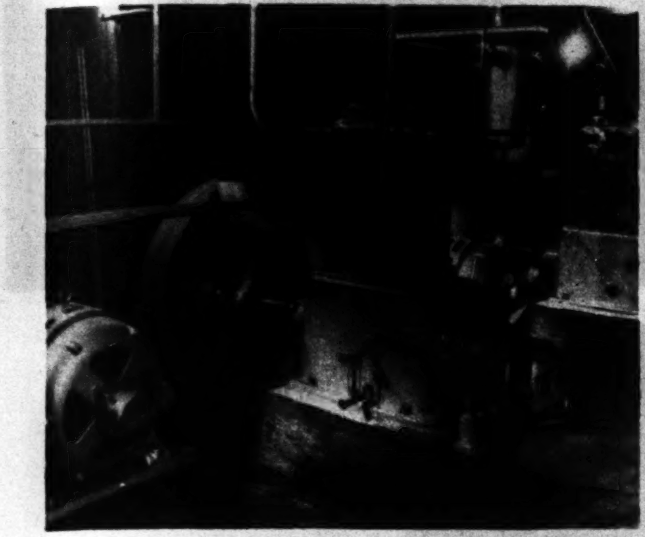
Freezing the Flyers' Floor in Two Hours

Over a six-inch cork insulation, used as a base of the ice floor—

—Fifteen miles of pipe was welded together—

—And ultimately connected with the main lead, a section—

—Connected directly with the conduits from the—

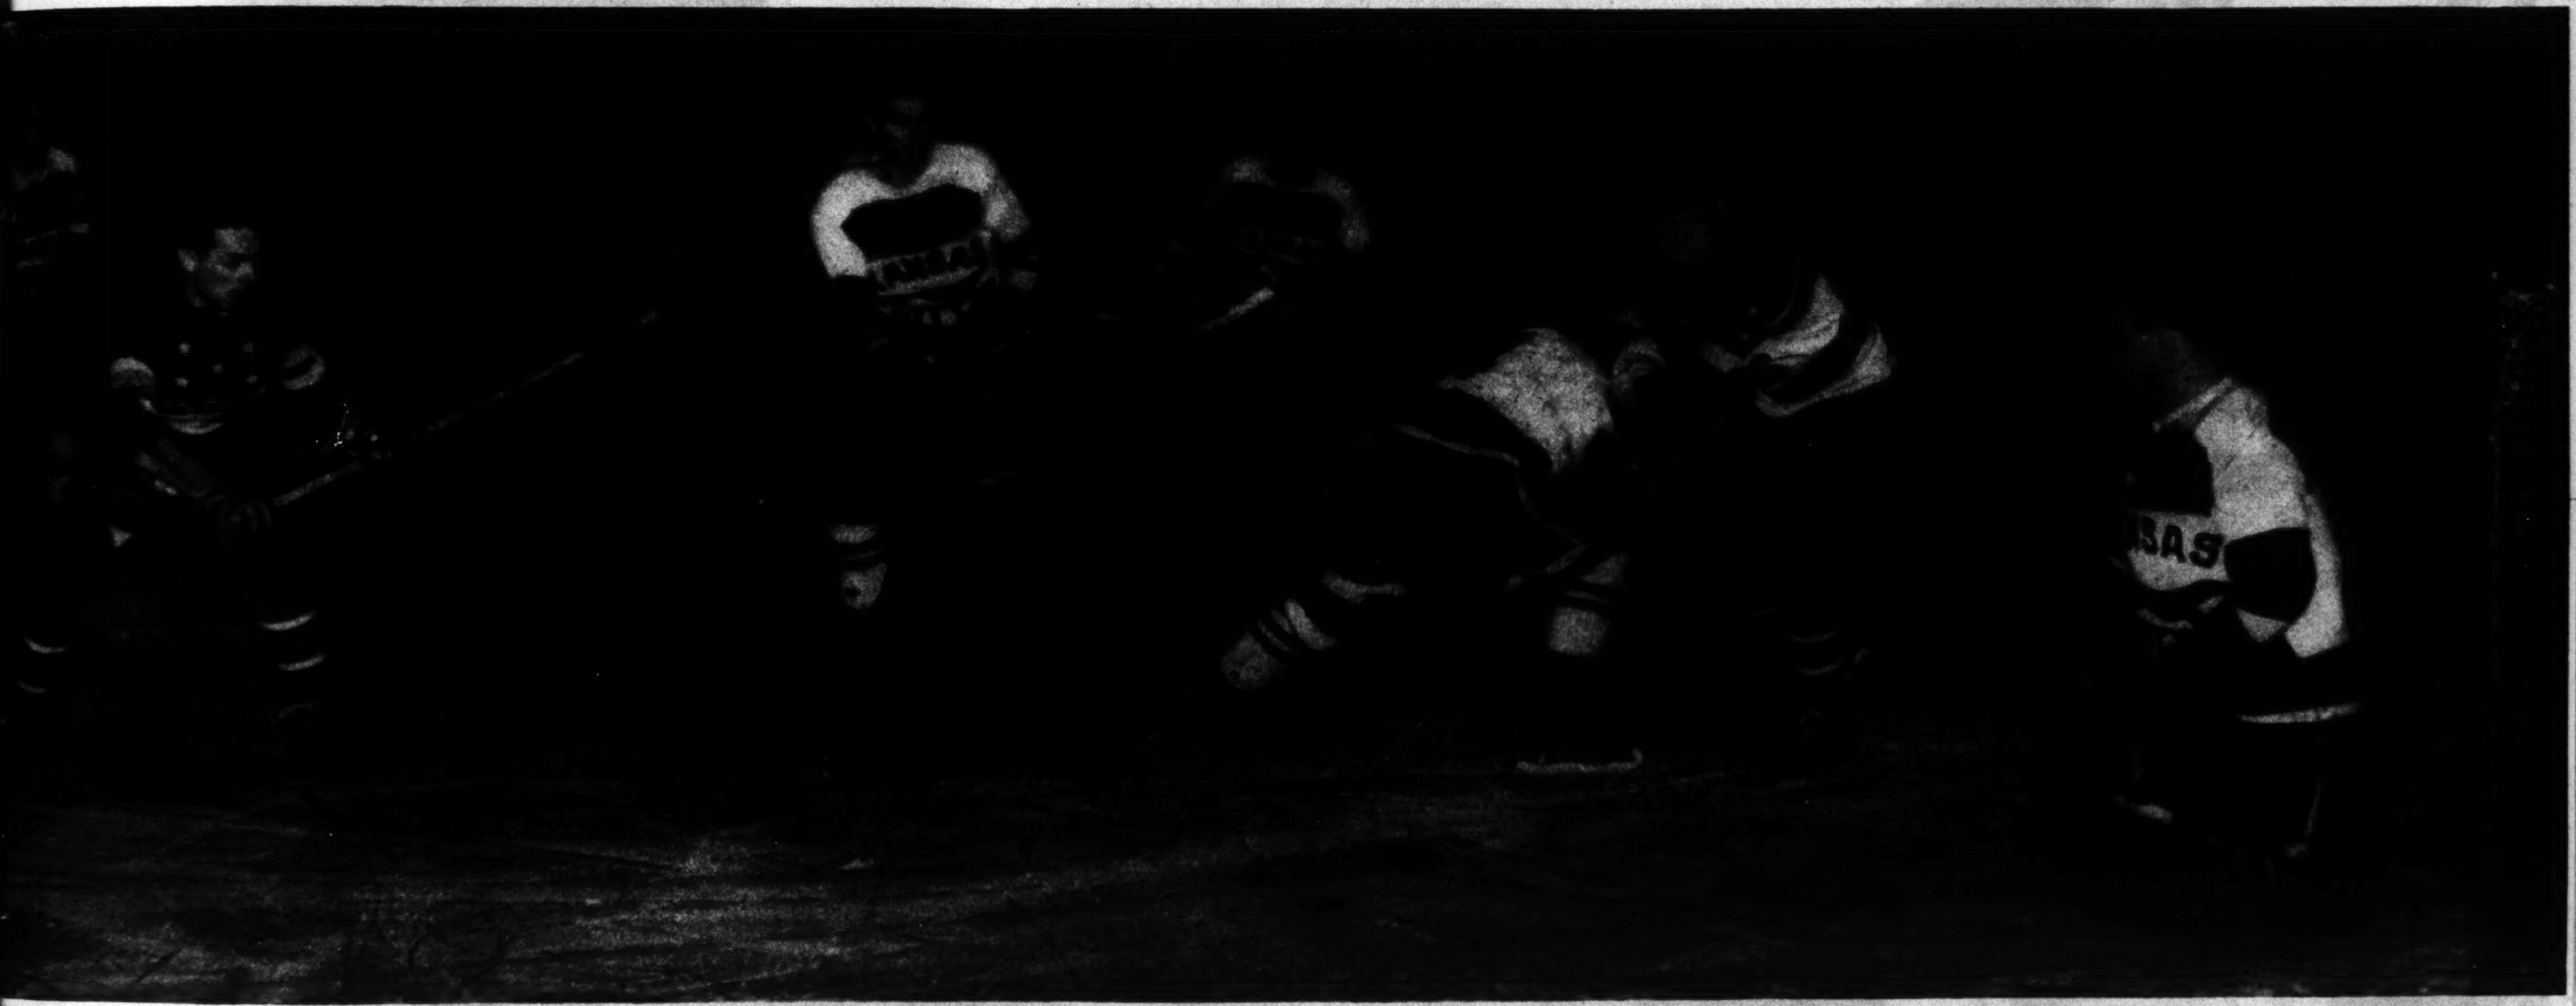


—Huge ice machine which sends cold brine through the pipe lines.

Before the machine was placed in operation, wire screening went over pipes—

—On which concrete was spread, making a substantial flooring—

—Of ordinary appearance as soon as finishing touches were applied.



Heated moment on the ice during a professional hockey game between St. Louis Flyers and Kansas City team on the artificial ice floor at the Arena.

Half pipes, half concrete. Partly finished, the Arena floor looked like this.

A MODERN freezing plant was installed this month under the floor at the Arena, replacing an old plant used to manufacture the smooth coating of ice for hockey players and other skaters. In less than four weeks, workmen in 24-hour shifts laid 15 miles of pipe, each section welded in three places. It took six hours to freeze "a floor" with the old plant. The new one will do it in two, enabling the Arena management to convert the floor from dirt or wood to ice between late afternoon and early evening. Already credited with having one of the finest ice skating plants in America, the Arena now is the home of the St. Louis Flyers, professional hockey team, and also used for ice theatricals, such as the recent show introducing Maribel Y. Vinson, champion figure skater, and the revue scheduled to open Tuesday featuring Sonja Henie, champion skater and movie star.

When concrete hardened, the floor was flooded, the ice forming almost instantly—

—Until it looked like this at the recent opening of the Flyers' home season.

Doing Away With Illiteracy Through WPA

AFTER several years of foraging in backwoods and brush of the hillier sections of the United States, the Education Division of W P A recently announced that under its supervision 1,000,000 persons in America had been taught to read and write. So thoroughly did Uncle Sam comb the hills that he found his millionth W P A pupil in a West Virginia log cabin near the Little Kanawha River, miles from the beaten trail. About 5000 teachers of the Education Division, all taken from the ranks of the unemployed, have by such methods taken the little red schoolhouse, and at least two of the three R's, to the illiterate adult. When the schoolhouse itself is within reach of pupils, it is not an uncommon evening sight to see its windows glowing with light, or to catch glimpses in the early autumn dusk of lanterns swinging down the hills as men and women make their way through the brush to class. So intense are the students on their elementary work that in many places plans to close schools for spring planting were abandoned when elderly pupils voted to work days, study nights. The 1930 census disclosed about 4,250,000 illiterates in America. All are not mountaineers. Negroes, Indians and Mexicans in the South and Southwest are a substantial part of the group. Another large element is the foreign-born in cities who retain alien customs and language despite years in this country. For them W P A provides citizenship instruction as well as educational instruction.

In Southern Louisiana live hundreds of Americans descended from Acadian French who were deported from Nova Scotia. Most of them are prosperous farmers, known as "cajuns" (Acadians), but until W P A many never learned to read and write English. This group meets nightly at the home of Mrs. Cyberin Montet, 75, near Lafayette. Her granddaughter, Mrs. E. W. Dugas (standing), is the teacher.

2 Serve with HOT milk or cream, and sugar

"WHY DIDN'T someone think of this before?" That's what hundreds of people say when they first taste Kellogg's Corn Flakes served this special cold-weather way—piping hot with hot milk or cream!

Of course you know how good Kellogg's Corn Flakes taste the usual way. Everyone does. Their famous flavor has made them America's favorite ready-to-eat cereal for more than thirty years. And that flavor can't be copied. It's the result of a recipe discovered by Kellogg's years ago and remains today a closely guarded secret.

For an entirely "different" breakfast, enjoy Kellogg's Corn Flakes this new way. Hot milk or cream, poured on just before eating, has a way of bringing out even more the rich, malty goodness of their unique flavor. It's a wonderful, new treat these brisk wintry mornings. But to be sure of getting that flavor, remember to ask for genuine Kellogg's Corn Flakes.

Get the big family-size package at your grocer's today. Serve them cold or serve them—piping hot! Either way they're so downright good that you're sure to win cheers from your family!

School of the Ballet in Japan

THE ballet in Japan did not become famous by accident. From early youth, aspirants to the classical chorus of outstanding ballet masters are trained in dancing. Frequently, the first walking steps of a baby girl are turned toward the dance floor. Photographs on this page are of students at the famous school at Takarazuka. Later they will participate in the school opera, which for the first time this year will tour America and Europe.

(Wide World Photos)

Takarazuka girls, students at Japan's famous school of the ballet, have fun with an elephant. The school is in a resort town, near a zoo.

She loops the loop in an iron hoop.

For Sparkling Clean Teeth

DO AS YOUR DENTIST DOES —USE POWDER

NOTHING else cleans and polishes teeth more quickly and leaves them more naturally white—than POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know, almost always uses powder.

All Cleansing Properties

As it is only the powder part of most dentifrices that cleans, a dentifrice that is all powder just naturally cleans effectively. Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—all cleansing properties.

For over seventy years many dentists everywhere have prescribed Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder because normal teeth simply cannot remain dull and dingy looking when it is used. Dr. Lyon's cleans and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling with natural brightness. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed and your breath so sweet and pure. Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is a special dental powder developed for HOME USE by a distinguished practicing dentist.

No Acid, No Grit or Pumice

Free from all acids, grit or pumice, it cannot possibly injure or scratch the tooth enamel as years of constant use have shown. Even as a neutralizer in acid mouth conditions, Dr. Lyon's is an effective antacid.

Brush your teeth with Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder regularly — consult your dentist periodically—eat a diet rich in minerals and vitamins, and you will be doing all that you can possibly do to protect your teeth.

Costs Less to Use

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is more economical to use. In the same size and price class Dr. Lyon's outlasts tooth pastes two to one. Even a small package will last you for months.

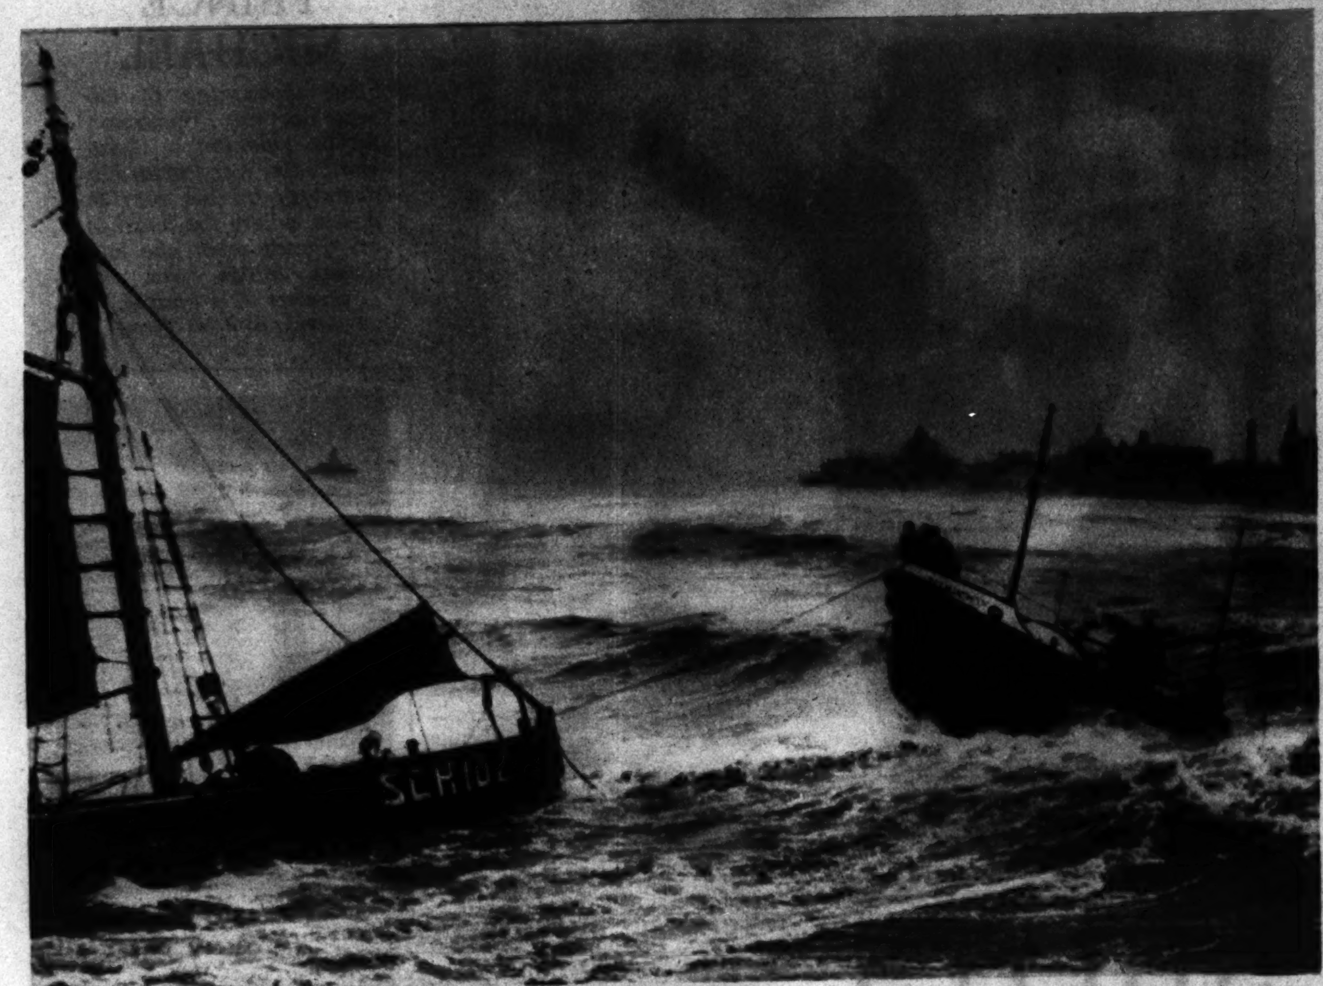
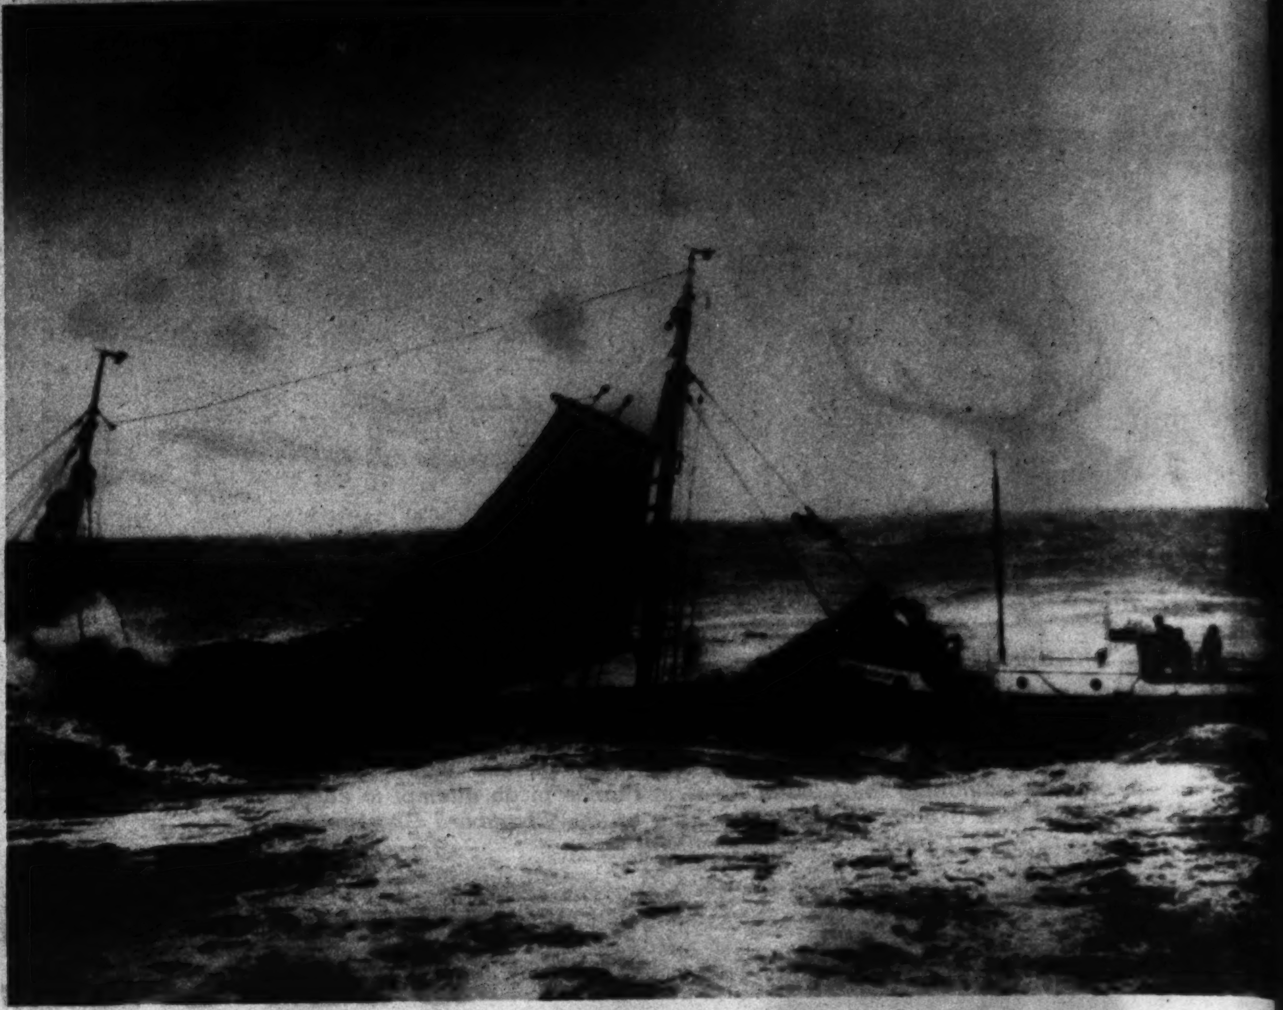
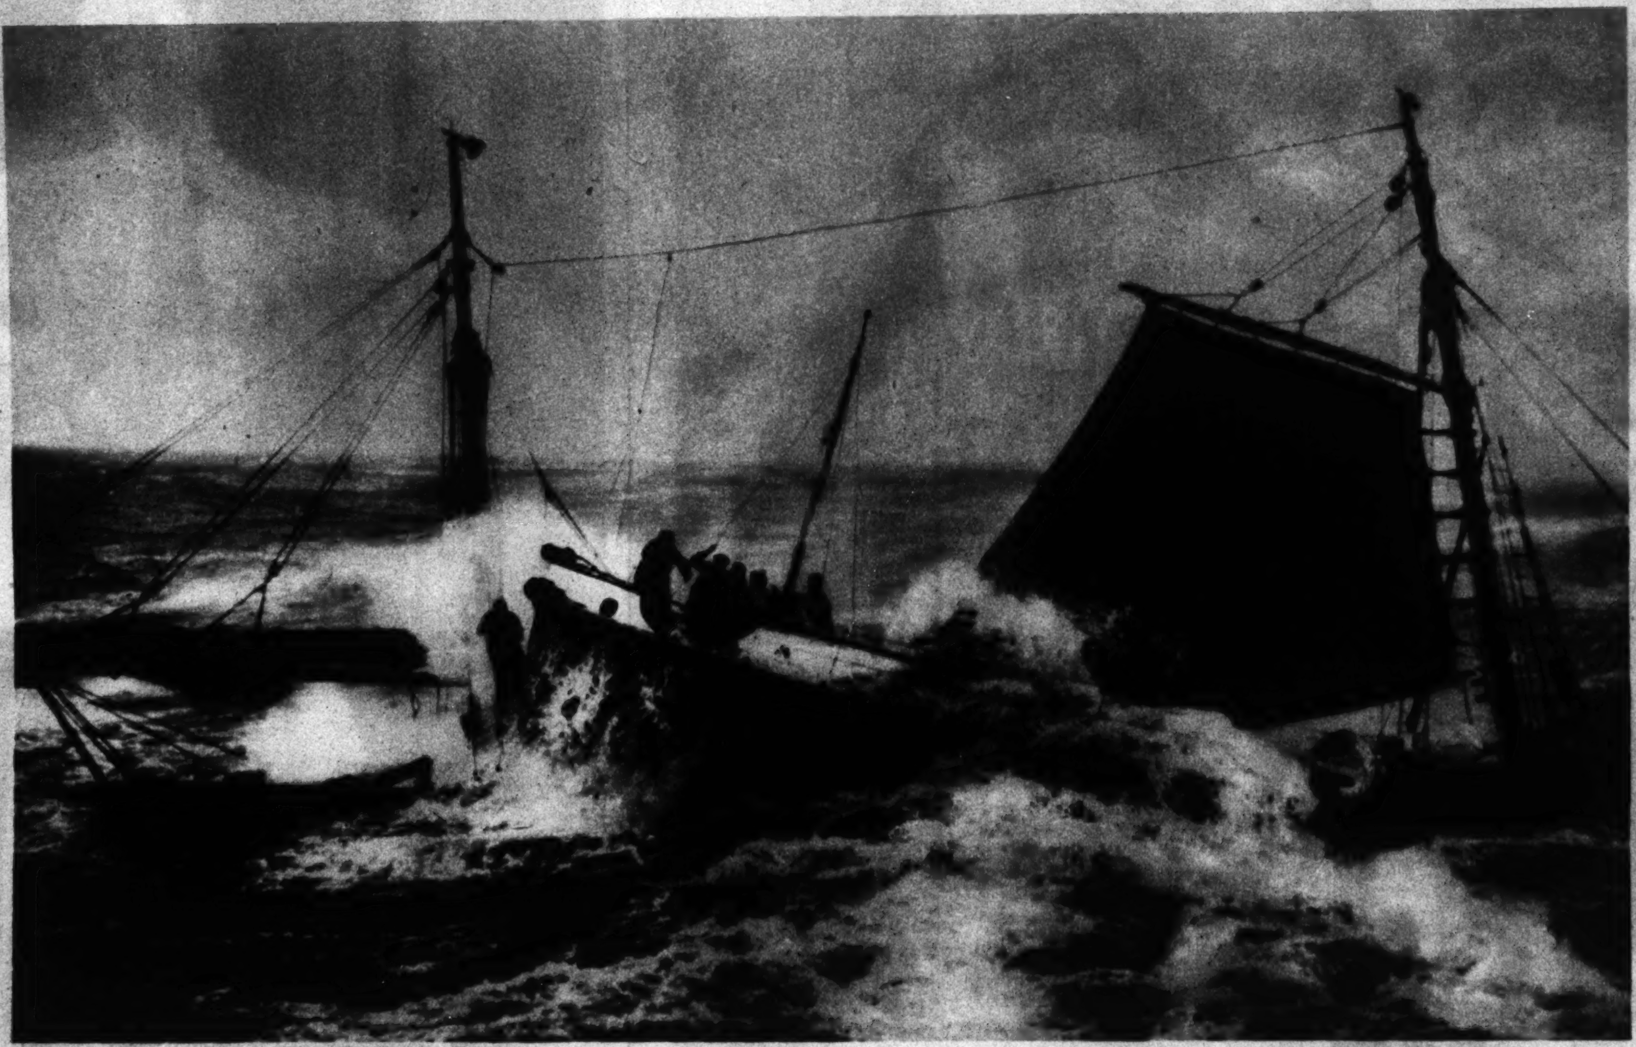
Sank Within Sight of Its Home Port



Dutch coast guardsmen in the motor lifeboat Zeemanshoop get a line aboard the SCH 102 as they begin the perilous task of rescuing the crew of the storm-beaten fisherman.



The launch runs alongside the SCH 102 for a brief interval. The man in the fore rigging is getting ready to drop to the deck of the launch. Several men are in the after rigging, marooned by the waves sweeping the deck



Tossed high above the waterlogged SCH 102, the launch is in grave danger of being smashed against the sinking ship as the coast guards pick sailors from the rigging.

SELDOM are pictures taken of shipwreck wherein the danger is as great as that portrayed in this recent North Sea disaster which ended in the almost miraculous rescue of 11 of 14 fishermen off the Netherlands coast. The two-masted lugger SCH 102 fought its way to within sight of its home port, Scheveningen, only to start sinking under the battering of the waves. In prompt answer to distress signals, Dutch coast guardsmen shoved off in the motor lifeboat Zeemanshoop (The Hope of the Sailor), ran alongside the stricken vessel, and with superb seamanship took off the surviving members of the crew. At any moment during the daring rescue, waves might have hurled the lifeboat against the lugger, stove in its side, and sent the rescuers down with the SCH 102.

Toys Reflect the Grown-Up World

CHILDREN have most fun with toys which enable them to imitate the pursuits of grown-ups, tests by the Toy Manufacturers of America have shown. Consequently the toys which make children think and learn in such fields as science, mechanics, agriculture, transportation and domesticity are more in evidence this year than ever at the association's annual preview in New York City, as shown in these pictures. The annual Christmas toy sale is put at $225,000,000 by the association, with 10,000 types of toys listed.

Turning the crank of a tiny meat grinder. All the utensils are small copies of the real thing. As this girl prepares a "meal" for her dolls she acquires familiarity with domestic pursuits.

Many toys this year come in groups which can be added to, like this miniature grocery. Cans and cartons are dummies. The 8-year-old boy is learning sales talk and enjoying it.

Possible start of a scientific career. The boy is 2. The microscope, using polarized light, magnifies 600 times.

Even tiny vacuum cleaners are sold.

The energy of these boys, which might be wasted in aimless banging and hammering, is diverted to constructive house assembling.

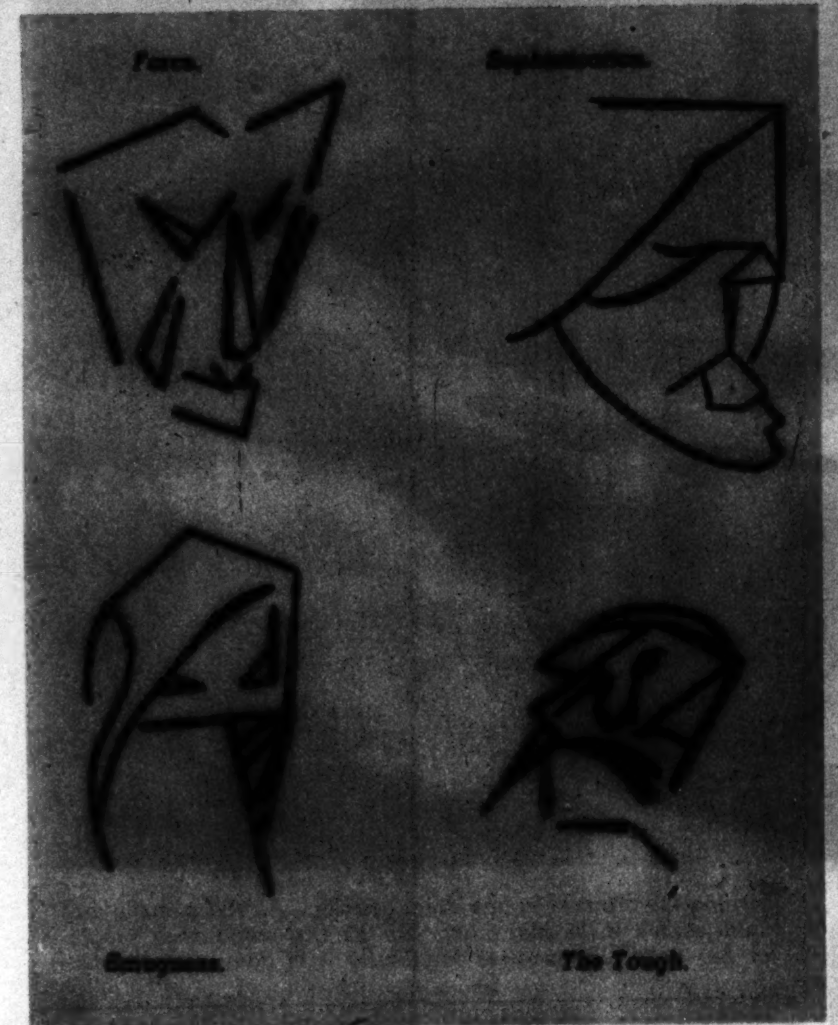
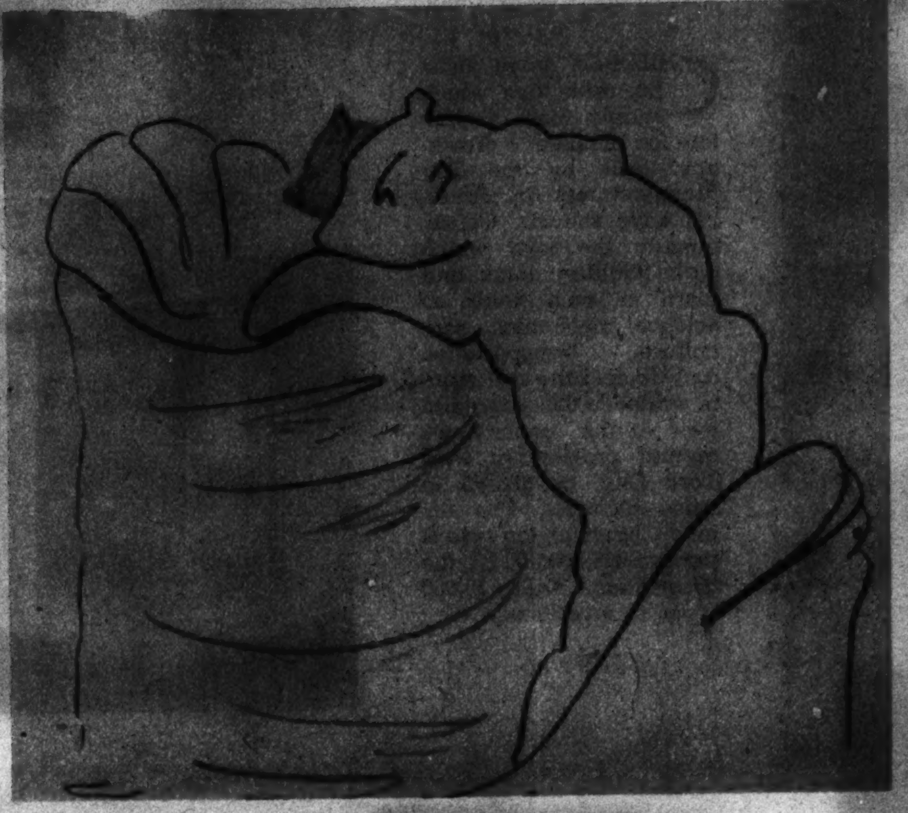
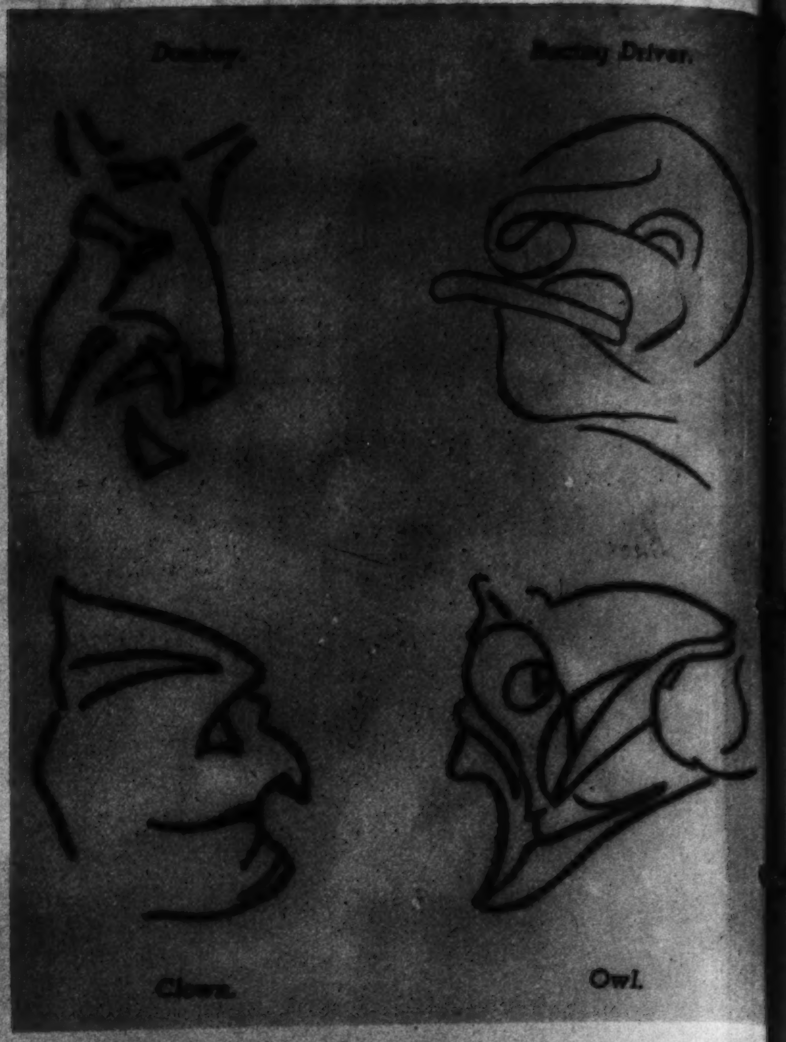
PILLOW SKETCHING





Bear in Honey Tree.



ONE morning Mary H. Friday, Granite City artist, awoke in the bed at her home, 2139 Cleveland boulevard, and, vexed at the necessity of getting up early, punched her pillow. Still half asleep, she stared fixedly at the object on which she had vented her wrath. Through narrowed lids the folds and wrinkles began to take shape. Awake now, she seized pencil and pad, quickly traced the vision suggested by the punched pillow, and from it all grew a new game—pillow sketching.

Participants should have some ability, not necessarily talent, in drawing. Certainly, to make the game successful, each player must have lusty imagination with which to detect an image on the pillow, then after transferring it to paper, to label it. As popularity of the game develops, it is to be expected that many a parlor these winter evenings will resound with the thwack of fist on pillow. The interesting results that a skillful player may obtain are shown by the sketches on this page, made by Miss Friday.

UNCLE DAN
THERE WAS REAL FIREWORKS WHEN THE SCHOOL BOARD MET!
THE NERVE OF THAT TEACHER! TELLING ME TO KEEP MY TOMMY AWAY FROM KINDERGARTEN! SHE WON'T LOOK SO SMART WHEN I GET HER UP BEFORE THE SCHOOL BOARD TODAY!
SCHOOL BOARD MEETS TODAY
BUT, GENTLEMEN, IT WAS MY DUTY TO HAVE TOMMY KEPT AT HOME! A CHILD THAT HAS COLDS ALL THE TIME JUST CAN'T BE ALLOWED NEAR OTHER CHILDREN!
NONSENSE! OLD SUSIE SMITHERS NEVER TALKED LIKE THAT WHEN SHE WAS TEACHING!
THIS IS THE KIND OF DISPUTE THAT'S MORE OFTEN RILED UP THAN SETTLED BY A SO-CALLED DECISION. WE'D BEST ADJOURN TILL I HAVE A TRY AT SMOOTHING THE TROUBLED WATERS.
I DON'T SUPPOSE BEING UPSET ABOUT TOMMY COULD HAVE ANYTHING TO DO WITH HOW MAD YOU GOT AT THAT NEW TEACHER?
OH, UNCLE DAN! I HAVE BEEN WORRIED ABOUT TOMMY'S COLDS. BUT THAT'S NO REASON FOR SOME UPPITY SCHOOL TEACHER....
TOWN HALL
WELL, NOW, LET'S TACKLE TOMMY'S PROBLEM FIRST. HAVE YOU BEEN DOING WHAT DOCTORS ADVISE TO HELP BUILD RESISTANCE AGAINST COLDS? GIVING HIM COD LIVER OIL....IF HIS DIET IS DEFICIENT IN VITAMINS A AND D?
I TRIED IT...BUT IT SEEMED TO UPSET HIS DIGESTION.
THEN YOU DON'T KNOW ABOUT THE FORM OF COD LIVER OIL THAT'S MORE EASILY DIGESTED?
WHAT KIND IS THAT?
SCOTT'S EMULSION! SELECTED COD LIVER OIL EMULSIFIED! LABORATORY TESTS SHOW IT'S MORE THAN FOUR TIMES EASIER TO DIGEST THAN PLAIN COD LIVER OIL... AND IT'S PLEASANT-TASTING TO BOOT!
SOUNDS GRAND!.. I'LL GET SOME FOR TOMMY TOMORROW!
HMMMM. THE SCHOOL BOARD'S STILL WAITING TO SETTLE THAT BIG DISAGREEMENT YOU TWO HAD!
GRACIOUS! SCOTT'S EMULSION SETTLED THAT! TOMMY MUST HAVE BEEN LOW IN VITAMINS A AND D BECAUSE SINCE TAKING SCOTT'S EMULSION TOMMY HASN'T HAD A COLD FOR AGES!
EVERYONE OUGHT TO KNOW THAT SCOTT'S EMULSION IS FOUR TIMES EASIER TO DIGEST THAN PLAIN COD LIVER OIL. PLEASANT-TASTING, TOO!
GROWN-UP OR YOUNGSTER! IF YOU'RE SHY OF COD LIVER OIL VITAMINS A AND D, SCOTT'S EMULSION WILL HELP YOU BUILD RESISTANCE AGAINST COLDS!
